

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

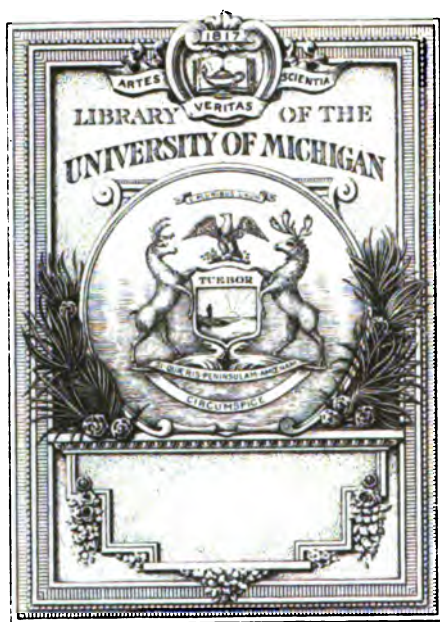

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE GOVERNOR OF THE

STATE OF NEW YORK.

No. 2.

IN ASSEMBLY,

JANUARY 6, 1897.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,

ALBANY, January 6, 1897.

To the Legislature of the State of New York:

The message of the Governor is a constitutional requirement, and the facts and recommendations herein submitted are in compliance therewith.

Financial Condition.

The finances of the State are satisfactory in spite of the hard times. The total valuation of property is $4,368,712,903. The State tax for the fiscal year is $11,751,837.71, and the total funded debt was on September 30, $2,320,660. The revenues received during the last year from corporations, inheritance tax and the Raines Liquor Law were $8,030,228.66, the liquor law alone yielding $3,564,014.98. Notwithstanding this prosperous condition, every reasonable endeavor should be made to put the rate of taxation lower. The large expenses now practically fixed, including charities, the school system, the canals, the capitol, and aggregating nearly thirteen millions of dollars a year, render a satisfactory rate impossible, but the present depression and the uncertainties of the future demand the most exact scrutiny compatible with the magnitude and importance of our enterprises. The plan of appropriations, it seems to me, could be improved. That now followed permits money to be voted at any time during the session of the Legislature, with no recommendation or backing except one or more members whose activity and desires may be strong enough to work it through the two Houses. This method may, and I understand does, result in appropriations for special purposes which are covered by general appropriations made later. In my judgment the wisdom of an expenditure should have some other demonstration than the zeal of a member for his own projects or locality. Appropriations for the national government are made upon estimates provided by the different departments, thus providing the sanction and, to some extent, the responsibility of those departments for the required outlay. A department should know its own needs and all matters properly within it should be cared for upon its estimate, accompanied by a report showing their necessity. This method would, in some measure, fix the responsibility and would be, if not a safeguard, at least a check.

The Prisons.

Few subjects are of more importance than the treatment of criminals. Imprisonment is not alone for punishment, but for the safety of society and the reformation of the criminal. The last purpose can be accomplished only by the steady employment of the convict. Idleness imprisoned would result always in degradation, and the hope of reformation would be destroyed. Even if the welfare of the criminal were out of the question, society itself can not afford the blemish that would be put upon it by enforcing a degradation deeper than that resulting from imprisonment. Work must be provided and at once. The constitutional provision respecting prison-made goods increases the difficulty of providing it. There are nearly 20,000 persons in our hospitals and charitable institutions. The needs of these inmates should be met as far as practicable by the work of the criminal class, and if necessary in order to increase the opportunity for labor, the use of machinery should be dispensed with; for the saving of money is no part of the problem until the product of the criminal class falls below the reasonable wants of all the inmates of the State institutions. It is purely a question of State policy which broadens into a question of safety and morals. This subject might be relieved by a system of industrial training, which, in addition to the product made, would afford an occupation upon which the convict when released might rely.

The employment of short-term convicts in the making or improvement of roads may not be impracticable, and the consideration of a plan having that end in view may now well occupy your attention. The suggestions made in the report of the State prisons commission have been carefully prepared, and I commend those suggestions. The subject is urgent and its consideration should not be postponed. Its difficulty will be constantly increased by delay, for without employment the retrogression of our criminals will be marked and inevitable.

Banking.

The past year has been marked by many disastrous business failures, and yet out of 215 banks of deposit and discount, only two have failed and four have gone into voluntary liquidation. This record, made in a year of unprecedented stress, when the resources of the banks themselves have fallen off over thirty millions of dollars, demonstrates their stability. Our savings banks are and have long been a source of pride and encouragement. They are the depositaries of the savings of the thrifty and industrious. Their history marks with greater accuracy than any other sign the tendency of affairs among the comparatively poor. Their gain for years has been wonderful and steady, but the increase in deposits for the past year of over forty-six millions of dollars, raising the total to the marvelous sum of seven hundred and fifteen millions, shows that the pluck and energy of the working class are too strong to be overcome by an adverse current. The administration of these banks must be careful and wise and their investments safe.

The building and loan associations, of which more than four hundred are now in existence, with a capital of fifty millions of dollars, may be productive of substantial gain. They are entitled to just and considerate legislation, but nothing should be omitted to make their management economical and sound.

Insurance.

The report of the Superintendent of Insurance indicates that all companies doing business in this State, with one or two exceptions, are sound. If any legislation could lessen the number of weak companies it should be passed, for a company that is not likely to fulfill its contracts should not be allowed to make them.

Labor.

Every year the so-called labor question grows more important, and the need of its proper solution more imperative. The Board of Mediation and Arbitration, the Factory Inspector, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics are of considerable value. Their work is in the right direction but they are still far short of the requirements which the growing and enormous interests of the laboring people in this country have created. There is no natural antagonism between labor and capital. They are the same. Capital is nothing but labor turned into money. A man who quarrels with the accumulations of his neighbor, discourages the thrift and economy of which he himself ought to be an example. He makes war upon the very condition which he hopes some time to attain. Those who create and foster discontent in the mind of the laborer are not his friends. The largest opportunities possible to the laboring man should be provided. The largest wages consistent with the rights of the employer should be paid, and different persons performing the same work, even though some of them be women, should receive the same compensation. These results are more likely to occur through reason and mutual acquaintance than through rebellion. Tolerance is the first requisite of amicable relations, and this will arise when the employer and the laborer understand each other. Some plan should be devised which would afford to each, such information of the other as will form a basis for the friendly adjustment of differences between them. No such plan now exists here, and the result is the appalling loss of wages and property which is so often seen when the rights of the employer and laborer clash. The plan known as the University Extension has been tried in England, and is said by many to have produced satisfactory results. It is the investigation by careful, intelligent and conscientious men into the affairs of the laboring people, and their relations to their employers. Its tendency and purpose is to give and to get information, and by seeing both sides, prevent the conflict which a view of only one might produce. The work of the Commission of Mediation and Arbitration does not meet the need described. It is designed rather to settle disputes than to prevent them, and while it may be effective in producing such settlement, the damage has already been done.

Whether or not the scheme of the University Extension is feasible, it at least affords a suggestion along lines which must at some time be pursued. I commend this subject to the Legislature for that careful consideration which the great need of all our people in this direction demands for it.

The National Guard.

The National Guard of the State, including the Naval Militia, consists of about fourteen thousand men. The Naval Militia has come to be an important arm of the service, but the equipment for practical training is inadequate. I suggest that you consider the subject of building a State cruiser upon which the Naval Militia might receive such actual training as is provided the guard in the camp at Peekskill. The discipline and efficiency of the National Guard are high, and actuated by a desire to maintain this condition, I suggest to the Legislature the wisdom of putting this body upon a footing where its chief executive officer is not likely to be changed at every political election. This officer ought not to be subject to political control, and the frequent changes alluded to must have a disheartening effect upon the members of the National Guard and impair its high standard of service. This suggestion, if agreeable to the Constitution, might well extend to the whole of the Governor's staff, for it is certain that the National Guard would be served quite as well by officers with a more permanent tenure, and it is equally certain that the lustre shed upon the Governor by his staff might be dispensed with without loss of his dignity or danger to the State.

Railroads.

The railroad companies of the State have, with every other industry, felt the blight of the last year. Their condition, however, is still fairly prosperous. But little legislation is necessary upon this subject, but the frequency of accidents at railroad crossings has rendered necessary some means to prevent them. The method of reaching this result is not clear. The serious menace that surrounds all travelers where highways and railroads cross upon the same plane, would justify an inquiry by the Legislature through a commission or otherwise, as to the proper disposition of this question.

Agriculture.

No class does more work for small pay than farmers. No class renders greater service to the community at large or more completely meets the requirements of substantial citizenship. Their interests and occupation underlie the prosperity of the whole people. Any just legislation should be favored which would lighten the unusually hard condition under which they have suffered for the past few years. The establishment of a commission of agriculture was in the interest of the farmer and its work has been well done, but I understand that inadequate appropriations have prevented that accomplishment along certain lines which might be reasonably assisted. The proper application of the oleomargarine law and punishment for its violation may be cited as one particular in which lack of money has prevented the best results. The hard times now upon us should cause a careful scrutiny of every expense, but times can not be hard enough to justify withholding appropriations which are necessary to maintain the law and to protect the rights of every class.

Public Highways.

The means of obtaining good roads has been discussed for several years, and is worthy of the most careful attention. The roads of this State are not what they ought to be. Their rough and neglected condition in many instances has been the cause of severe but just condemnation. Many States with a comparatively small percentage of the wealth and population of New York, far surpass us in the construction and maintainance of roads. The need for improvement is apparent, and the initial steps can not be taken too soon to place our highways in a condition suitable to our wealth and population, and to remove a long continued and merited reproach.

The Capitol.

This subject may well be approached with reluctance. It is about 30 years since the building was started, and over twenty-two millions of dollars have been appropriated and spent or sunk. It has dragged itself through nearly a third of a century, always clamoring for money, until the people have nearly despaired of its completion and have come to regard it as an affliction from which time affords but little hope of relief. If an individual or a corporation had managed an undertaking as this has been managed, they would have been discredited years ago. We have now reached a point where the parts first constructed are in need of repairs, while other parts of the same building are unfinished. Other structures of enormous size and expense and of unequalled magnificence have been constructed in many places, begun years after the capitol was commenced and completed long ago. This building ought to be finished at once. The work should be done by contract, and sufficient money appropriated to pay for it. The State needs the structure for its uses, but it needs still more to escape the scandal of a building of enormous cost and unparalleled extravagance undergoing at the same time the process of construction at one end and decay at the other.

Canals.

The improvements to be made on the canals under the "Nine Million Dollar Act" are likely to be justified by the result. They will retain the advantages secured to us by nature and previous expenditures. The progress so far appears satisfactory, and the work should be prosecuted with the utmost energy in order that the money provided may not be consumed in the usual experience of commissions and examining boards and supernumeraries under different titles, and also that the benefits contemplated may be speedily enjoyed.

The Insane.

This most unfortunate of the dependent classes has been transferred to the care of the State under the act of 1890. New York is the first State to establish a broad and comprehensive system which yields the greatest benefits at the least cost. The system is now complete and its operation shows that the central supervision of expenditures makes a large annual saving over the old system of local administration. It places the welfare of the State above the interest of localities. The policy of recent legislatures should be continued. The annual report of the State Commission in Lunacy is commended for its statement of those matters which can not be reviewed at length here. An important addition is the Pathological Institute, which harmonizes the scientific work of the several hospitals and increases their efficiency. The increase in the number of insane is less than in former years, due probably to the revision by the Legislature of the insanity laws. This is said not to have worked detrimentally, for every proper case has been received and treated. The transfer of New York county to the State system with a lack of accommodation for the insane and the necessity for disproportionate construction during the ensuing year, creates an unusual condition which should be provided for.

The care of these unfortunate persons should be upon the broadest and most humane lines which the most enlightened minds can devise. The institutions of this State for the care of the insane are I believe, conducted with patience and skill and some which I have visited I know to be worthy of the highest praise. Economy, desirable in every direction, should in this, be tempered with generosity.

Public Schools.

The magnitude of our school system is partially expressed in its cost during the past year, which has been over twenty-four millions of dollars. More than 27,000 teachers have been employed, and more than 1,283,000 pupils instructed. The attendance during the past year has increased, probably as an effect of the Compulsory School Law, but there are still over 368,000 children who do not attend school. The number last stated is too large for the safety of the State. Their education should, in some way, be cared for. Facilities should be provided for those who are willing to attend, and compulsory institutions established for those who are not. A reformatory is not a proper place for a child not in need of reformation, but under the present law such reformatory seems to be the only place provided. A system of truant schools might be considered for those whose attendance is compulsory, and for those whose failure to attend is due solely to absence of opportunity the Legislature should strive to provide some means of attendance.

Excise Law.

The operation of the present excise law has been in many respects satisfactory. The revenue received from it from May 1st to November 20th was $11,000,083, more than twice as much as the receipts for licenses during the entire year of 1895. It has caused a large decrease in the number of saloons, and the expense of running the excise department is less than that of running the old excise boards. The law can however, be improved, and that improvement should be among the first duties of this Legislature. Some of the amendments needed are obvious to those living where the law has been applied, and others are apparent to those who have given the subject careful study. Neither class of amendments can be recited with any profit here, but all changes should have in view the protection of those who have in good faith attempted to obey the law and the prevention of those who, by subterfuge or direct violation, have attempted to evade it.

Civil Service.

This subject has been much discussed, generally exaggerated, and has provided capital to many who would otherwise be bankrupt. The value of practical civil service is beyond question. Its importance was recognized by the last constitutional convention, and its place is now fixed in the fundamental law of the State. But the work of the Legislature is necessary to render effective the provisions of the Constitution. This work should be done promptly and in good faith, not with reference to ideas so delicate as to be worthless in actual practice, but with a view solely to the elevation of the public service, and the highest discharge of the duties of every public office. Beauty is not always a test of efficiency and machinery that works disastrously is worse than that that will not work at all. Every means must be adapted to the end desired and in my judgment, civil service will work better with less starch. A scheme is not necessarily effective or high-toned because it lacks common sense, and they are not necessarily hostile who think that common sense would improve it. An examination for a public place should be suitable to the kind of service required, and sufficient margin should be given those making appointments so that the most competent help can be selected. Experience, character, tact and even muscle may be of more importance in some cases than the fraction of one per cent. in an examination in geography. The discretion of the appointing power should not be entirely subordinated to the marking system. If an examination has disclosed the fact that a certain number of men are qualified to fill a given position, the place would be more likely to be properly filled if the appointing officer could select from the whole number so qualified than if he was limited to a quarter of that number. Furthermore, it would reduce the chances of injustice to an applicant whose qualifications, on the whole, were superior to those of his competitor who had outranked him on paper. Civil service is intended to secure for the public at a reasonable cost, unquestioned integrity and approved skill, enlarged by continuous service, and not to exploit any particular idea. This intention should be carried out by the Legislature and will meet with prompt executive approval.

Forests.

A question too long neglected is the preservation of our forests. The State, either through indifference or false economy, has been stripped of its most valuable timber lands, allowed its water supply to be seriously impaired and the most wonderful sanitarium in the world to be defaced and partially destroyed. Every element of economy and foresight is outraged by this course. Private individuals have taken advantage of the State's neglect until of the entire Adirondack region, consisting of more than three and a half million acres, the State owns eight hundred and forty-one thousand, less than a quarter, and of the proposed Adirondack park of two million eight hundred thousand acres, it owns even a smaller percentage, about six hundred and sixty-one thousand acres. Of this proposed park more than eight hundred and eighty thousand acres are held as private preserves, and more than a million and a quarter acres by lumbermen and others, so that of the proposed total area of two million eight hundred thousand acres, more than two millions are owned by private individuals. More than a million and a quarter of the two millions so owned, are now subject to fire and axe, and the devastation wrought yearly is appalling and disgraceful. More than 450,000,000 feet of wood and timber are cut, and more than one hundred thousand acres stripped, every year. This work of devastation is progressing fast. The banks of the lakes and rivers and all sections accessible from either, are ravaged at such a pace that but few years more can elapse before that region, in many respects the most wonderful and valuable in the world, will be practically destroyed. The parts acquired or claimed by individuals are the best. A traveler through any desirable portion of that country is sure to be met with the charge of trespassing, for the cases are rare in which the title of the State to a desirable tract is acknowledged. Some time this deplorable condition must be rectified. Every year the loss to the State grows larger, in all cases difficult, and in some cases impossible, of recovery. The land is steadily and rapidly increasing in value. The bogus title burrows farther out of sight the longer it is let alone. Witnesses die, and the only thing sure to increase is the encroachment of individuals upon the domain of the State. The enlargement of the canals will require more water and the demand in every direction is increasing while the supply is steadily falling off. A subject of such magnitude should not be postponed nor conducted with the halting method which is too apt to distinguish public enterprises in which large appropriations afford convenient resting places in which office holders may grow old. Not long ago the State appropriated a million dollars to preserve the beauties of Niagara Falls. That subject is without significance compared to the Adirondack forests. Every consideration of health, pleasure, economy and safety urge the speedy consideration of this subject, and such consideration should include appropriations adequate to ascertain the nature of the titles adverse to the State, and to recover where the titles are insufficient and to purchase where they are valid. Any other course would be false and unwise economy.

Greater New York.

No legislation passed this session will involve greater responsibilities or be more far reaching in its effect than that relating to the communities to be embraced in the city of New York. This subject does not concern us alone, for the extent of its influence it is not safe to predict. Conditions have arisen more than once in which an entire National policy has depended upon this State. When questions of such moment become thus dependent, the position of the city of New York is commanding and may be decisive. Every move upon this subject should result from the utmost caution and study. I have entire confidence in the wisdom of the commission in whose hands the work has thus far rested, and whatever the Legislature may do to complete or supplement that work will, I trust, be done under a sense of the profoundest responsibility.

Biennial Sessions.

In many States the Legislature convenes once in two years, and wherever that practice prevails I understand there is no disposition to return to the yearly meeting. This is a large State and its interests are enormous and diverse, but these do not justify or even excuse the large number of confusing, expensive and unnecessary laws passed at every session. They serve no proper purpose whatever, and their tendency is to unsettle and mislead, even if they contain nothing more objectionable. The legitimate needs of this State can be provided for in a shorter time than is generally consumed, and the chief hope arising from protracted sessions and the passage of unnecessary laws is that the people may in their next Constitution conclude to correct both with biennial sessions.

I should be glad if no act should be passed not of pronounced utility or to meet some urgent public need. This would make possible an early adjournment, for which the people are always grateful.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMPTROLLER.

STATE OF NEW YORK.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, }
ALBANY, January 25, 1897. }

To the Speaker of the Assembly:

Sir.— I have the honor herewith to transmit to the Legislature the annual report exhibiting the financial transactions and the conditions of the finances of the State for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896.

I am, respectfully,

JAMES A. ROBERTS,

Comptroller.

REPORT.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
ALBANY, December 31, 1896. }

To the Legislature:

In submitting my annual report of the financial affairs of the State to the Honorable Legislature, for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1896, it will be of interest to recall the fact that this is the centennial of the organization of the Comptroller's department. It was created by chapter 21 of the Laws of 1797, passed February 17th. For several years, however, it was regarded as an experiment, and it was not until the passage of chapter 18 of the Laws of 1812 that its permanency was decided upon. It continued as a statutory office until the adoption of the constitution of 1821, when its status was defined by constitutional provision, and from that time forward the Comptroller's department has been regarded as one of the chief constitutional offices of the State.

The first incumbent of the office was Samuel Jones, for whom Samuel J. Tilden was named. He was appointed by a commission known as the "Council of Appointment," whose duty it was to make nearly all of the appointments in the service, outside of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and members of the Legislature. Their powers of appointment extended to county officers, such as judges, sheriffs, coroners, etc., and included 6,663 civil offices and 8,287 military, or a total patronage list of 14,950 offices at the time of its abolition in 1821. The decisive vote for Jones was cast by that great statesman and patriot, Governor John Jay.

He only had a vote in case of a tie. This Council was composed of four Senators elected by the Assembly, as provided for in the first constitution. The arrangement was an entirely unique and practical one for placing the patronage where it would do the most good, and that it was so placed is abundantly proved by the criticism of the system developed in the next quarter of a century. The constitution of 1821 abolished this powerful political council and provided that the Comptroller and the other State officers should be elected by the Senate and the Assembly in the same manner that United States Senators are now elected. The constitution of 1846 substituted for this plan, election direct by the people, and since then the Comptroller, together with the other important State officers, has been elected by vote of the people.

Comptroller Jones, in his first report to the Legislature, informed that body that the revenues of the State amounted to $172,833.44. It appears, however, that he was unable to meet his disbursements with this sum, as he reported the expenditures to be $322,831.37. The expenditures during the last fiscal year (1896) aggregated $26,510,425.77. These figures suggest a wonderful growth during the hundred years, in more ways than one.

INCREASING EXPENDITURES.

In my last report to the Legislature I called special attention to the enormous proportions which the fixed charges of this State had reached, and took occasion to give prominence to the fact that unless new sources of revenue were discovered a low tax rate could never again be enjoyed by this State. A very fruitful source of income was discovered in the new excise law, which yielded to the treasury, $3,564,014.98. But with this large addition to the State's resources, a comparatively high tax rate had to be made to provide the necessary funds to meet the ever-increasing expenditures. The tax rate last year was 2 69-100 mills on the dollar; with three exceptions this is the highest rate levied for the past 10 years, notwithstanding the increase of over $3,564,000 in the revenue. There is danger, therefore, that unless a determined effort is made to keep down unusual and extraordinary expenditures, the increased income from the excise law may incite a desire for appropriations, and thus raise the tax rate instead of lowering it.

The policy which has obtained in this State for years, of caring for the unfortunates of every class, has resulted in the establishment of a great number of extensive and expensive institutions. To such an extent has this policy been carried, that it seems as if we had a New York State institution to provide specially for sufferers from nearly every ailment—mental, physical and moral—that flesh is heir to. We have our institution for blind children at Batavia; one for deaf mutes at Malone; one for orphans and destitute Indian children at Versailles; two schools for the reformation of juvenile delinquents, one at Rochester and the other at Randall's Island; two reformatories for older and more vicious youth, one at Elmira and the other at Napanoch; an institution for feeble-minded children at Syracuse; another for feeble-minded women at Newark; one at Rome for idiots; three houses of refuge for criminal women, one at Albion, a second at Hudson, and a third at Bedford; a colony for epileptics at Sonyea; a home for old soldiers and sailors at Bath; another for old soldiers, with their wives or mothers, their widows, and for destitute army nurses, at Oxford; we have 11 immense hospitals for the care of pauper insane at New York, Buffalo, Binghamton, North Collins, Poughkeepsie, Middletown, Ogdensburg, Utica, Ovid, Rochester, Kings Park, L. I.; two hospitals for the criminal insane, one at Matteawan and the other at Clinton, and three State prisons, Sing Sing, Clinton and Auburn, for the custody of confirmed criminals.

But the State has been a liberal investor in other directions than in these institutions, and for the purpose of showing how vast is the amount of public money permanently invested by the State, I have caused the following statement to be prepared, which I believe is the fullest of the kind ever compiled in this State. It shows the moneys that have gone out of the State Treasury for the purposes named.

For grounds, buildings and permanent improvements:

For what expended.	Amount.
Charitable institutions (17).....	$6,369,110 70
State hospitals (12) includes Matteawan.....	15,204,099 59
Arsenals and armories (45).....	3,349,543 73
Normal schools (12).....	1,826,350 06
State prisons (8).....	4,528,058 65
State canals (5).....	65,347,000 00
New Capitol	22,254,023 60

It is proper to state in this connection that the buildings and grounds for the insane of New York and Kings counties, which accommodate nearly one-half of the dependent insane of the State, were turned over to the State without expense, although they had cost their respective counties many millions of dollars.

This is a large amount of money, but it does not cover all of the property owned by the State; only that requiring attention at the hands of the Legislature annually, in the way of a large appropriation for care and maintenance, was included. My object in compiling the above figures was not to show the magnitude of the State's investments only, but also to show the magnitude of the annual outlay called for by them and kindred matters of government. These expenses, which might properly be regarded as fixed charges, have reached gigantic proportions, as will be seen by the following statement of payments from the treasury during the last fiscal year, for the purposes named:

Charitable institutions.....	$1,864,599 43
State hospitals.....	4,028,594 81
		$5,893,193 74
National Guard (including arsenals and armories).....		739,978 18
School system.....		4,970,184 53
State prisons and maintenance.....		498,767 54
Canals, maintenance		1,005,950 40
New Capitol (care of, including State Hall, Agricultural Hall and Executive Mansion), maintenance.....		262,667 60
Judges' salaries and court expenses.....		720,979 61
Legislature	$651,211 43
Legislative printing and advertising.....	533,435 02
		$15,271,818 05

As already stated, the above expenditures are in no sense temporary; they are permanent, and must be provided for as regularly as the Legislature meets, and the most serious, I might with propriety say, the most alarming, feature, connected with them is that they are rapidly increasing. How true this is regarding the great charities of the State, is illustrated by the following statement, showing the payments from the State treasury, in aid for support of charitable purposes, for a period of 10 years, from 1887 to 1896 inclusive:

1887.....	$837,424 01	$631,047 57	$1,468,471 58
1888.....	992,882 55	921,832 34	1,914,514 89
1889.....	1,042,787 35	793,676 15	1,836,463 50
1890.....	1,065,308 86	963,164 43	2,028,473 29
1891.....	1,134,777 45	1,124,805 78	2,259,583 23
1892.....	1,227,474 26	1,042,213 47	2,269,687 73
1893.....	1,411,886 53	945,455 20	2,357,341 73
1894.....	2,464,230 54	1,132,436 69	3,596,667 23
1895.....	2,800,748 22	1,411,413 60	4,212,161 82
1896.....	4,214,181 48	1,674,012 26	5,888,193 74

Here is an increase of over 400 per cent. in 10 years; it should be stated in this connection, also, that there are five large institutions now in process of construction — the house of refuge at Bedford, the Reformatory at Napanoch, the Home for Soldiers and their wives at Oxford, a hospital at Collins, and another at Clinton—the maintenance of which, when completed, will largely augment the above figures. At the present ratio of increase it will be a matter of a short time only when the annual expenditures for charity alone in this State will reach $10,000,000.

The cost for charities, however, is not the only one showing a great increase of late years. The advance has been general, apparently, along the entire line of government expenditure, as will be seen from the following comparative statement, giving the aggregate appropriations from 1881 to 1896, inclusive:

AGGREGATE APPROPRIATIONS FROM 1881 TO 1896, INCLUSIVE.

	General.	Canal.	School.	Insane.	Total.

1894	8,908,611 54	1,426,882 66	3,993,184 00	1,385,000 00	15,713,578 20
1895	8,972,035 97	1,507,734 30	4,022,675 00	4,200,000 00	18,709,445 27
1896	9,447,012 05	2,301,526 42	4,071,484 00	4,200,000 00	20,020,022 47

These figures should cause every thinking man to pause and ask, Whither are we drifting? It is true that New York is a great State; it is a growing and prosperous State; it is an enlightened and progressive State, and it is only natural to expect that the expenses of government would increase; but a proper regard for the interests of the people would suggest that the expenses of government should progress in something like the same ratio as the growth of the population. But such is not the case. The cost of government has far outstripped the increase of population. The census of 1880 showed the population of this State to be 5,082,871; the last census, that of 1892, showed a population of 6,513,343, a gain of 28 per cent. The total appropriations for maintenance of the State government in 1881 was $9,878,214.59, and in 1896 it was $20,020,022.47 — an increase of nearly 103 per cent. It appears, therefore, that the expenses of government have increased nearly four times as fast as the population. It is true the tax rate has not increased at anything like this ratio, and for that reason the ordinary taxpayer has not realized how greatly the expenses of government are multiplying. The reason for this is that large amounts are being raised from indirect sources. Last year $2,165,-610.12 was collected from corporations; $1,796,652 from the collateral inheritance and transfer tax; $503,951.56 from the organization tax, and $3,564,014.98 from excise, making a total of $8,030,-228.66 raised from indirect sources. Real estate was relieved of the burden of taxation to this extent, but the fact is, the money obtained from indirect sources came from the people and business interests of this State, just as much as the direct tax did. In other words, the people contributed, from one source or another, the entire $20,000,000 expended.

This is an enormous amount of money to squeeze from the people every year, and what is worse, the indications are, it will steadily increase, let the Legislature do the best it can. In view of this, and the additional fact that this Department has information to the effect that your honorable body is to be asked for appropriations for more new institutions, I respectfully suggest that it is time to call a halt on new, unusual and extraordinary expenditures, for a time at least, and enter upon the practice of rigid economy.

CORPORATION TAXES.

It is with a feeling of satisfaction that I refer to the operations of the corporation tax bureau of this office. The work has been thoroughly systematized, and, as a result, the business is transacted with vastly less friction than formerly, and, if I can judge by the numerous compliments received from attorneys and others representing the corporations, much better satisfaction is given to the people doing business with the office. Another beneficial result of these business methods is a steady increase in the number of corporations paying taxes, and in the amount of tax collected.

During the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, the 4,401 corporations on the Comptroller's tax list paid into the treasury, under the Corporation Tax Laws, $2,165,610.12, of which amount nearly 75 per centum was collected from personal property, a large portion of which would have escaped taxation but for this law.

The labor connected with the assessment of corporations is very great, and in order to determine which are assessable and which not, a large amount of correspondence and personal investigation are necessary. Much of this work, under the provisions of the law, must be done at the place where the principal office of the company is located in this State. These preliminary investigations of corporations claiming exemption, or a reduction of the amount of tax levied, are followed, in a large number of cases, by rehearings, which can only be had before the Comptroller, or his deputy, at the Comptroller's office. This feature of the scheme of taxation has become a very important element in the determination of questions at issue, as such rehearings are quasi-judicial. During the past fiscal year the time actually occupied in these rehearings was 251 hours, or about 36 full days.

The amount of corporation tax collected by this department during the last three fiscal years was as follows:

1896.....	2,165,610 12

During this period of three years the number of corporations brought under the operation of the tax laws was increased from 2,152 to 4,401 and the State's revenue was increased more than half a million dollars. The effect is that real estate has been relieved of just so much taxation.

The following tables show the amounts received from the corporations of the several classes during the years 1895 and 1896:

Insurance companies, on premiums.....	$132,588 04
Insurance companies, on capital.....	15,061 45

Foreign banks.....	71,026 29
License fees, foreign corporations.....	62,924 35
Total.....	$2,165,610 12

It will be noticed in connection with these tables that there has been a large increase in the revenue from the licensing of foreign corporations, but this does not represent all the good results accomplished by chapter 240 of the Laws of 1895. In addition to the increase from licenses, the State has received a large increase of the capital stock tax through the beneficial agency of this license tax, by bringing to the attention of the department, through the payment of license, corporations that would otherwise have escaped notice.

Furthermore, many corporations which have been organized under the laws of other States, for the purpose of evading payment of the corporation tax in New York, found that there was no longer any advantage in paying a tenth of one per cent. franchise tax in States where they were doing no business, and paying an eighth of one per cent. in this State, where all their capital was employed and for that reason have reorganized under the laws of this State.

The passage of chapter 908, of the Laws of 1896, which succeeds all the previous laws for the direct taxation of corporations for State purposes, was a great stride forward. That such was the case may be seen from the following facts:

In the last report of this department, your attention was called to the manner in which certain gas, water, power, electric light, street railway and other corporations had escaped taxation by the watering of stocks and issuing of bonds. The new law corrects the defect in the old statute and from present indications the income from these sources will be very largely increased.

A provision has also been made for the relief of corporations employing a part of their capital stock in manufacturing. That portion employed in manufacturing is exempt from taxation under the new law. This amendment was recommended by the Comptroller in his last report, and he now desires to congratulate the legislature upon the passage of this very important and just piece of legislation.

Two recent decisions by our courts have in effect declared that under the old law the capital stock of a foreign corporation was subject to taxation in this State and that alone. These decisions worked in two directions:

(1) A corporation organized in New Jersey with $5,000 capital stock, employed $40,000 capital doing business in New York. The courts held with this department as to the amount of capital employed here, but concluded that as the company had only $5,000 capital stock, it could not be taxed on more than $5,000. Had the company been a domestic corporation, it would have been taxed on $40,000.

(2) In another case the courts held, regarding the surplus of a foreign corporation, that if it had employed such surplus in doing business here, it might have been taxable, but as it was not actively employed, it was held to be exempt, and that the capital stock only was taxable.

The new law makes taxable the capital of a foreign corporation employed in this State, and not the capital stock. The old law, as construed by the courts, discriminated against domestic corporations in favor of their foreign competitors, but it is confidently believed that the new statute will cure this injustice.

During the past fiscal year there has been considerable litigation regarding the payment of corporation taxes, and the following list of the principal decisions by the court, together with the points decided, is worthy of the attention of those interested in the subject of corporation taxation.

In the case of the People ex rel. The American Axe and Tool Company v. Roberts, 82 Hun, 313, it was held that the words “capital stock,” as used in chapter 542, Laws of 1880, and the acts amendatory thereof, referred to the capital stock authorized by the charter of a corporation, and paid in and already contributed by the stockholders thereof; that the words “capital stock” did not mean share stock, but the property of the corporation contributed by its stockholders or otherwise obtained by the corporation to the extent required by its charter.

In the case of the People ex rel. The Brooklyn Elevated Railroad Company v. Roberts, 90 Hun, 537, it was held that the Comptroller in estimating and appraising the capital stock of the railroad company, for the purpose of taxation under chapter 542, Laws of 1880, and the acts amendatory thereof, complied with the statute where he fixed the valuation at the average price at which the stock sold during the year, and it was not necessary for him to ascertain the intrinsic or actual value of the stock in cash, unless such intrinsic value exceeded the market value.

In the case of the People ex rel. Frederick A. Stokes Company v. Roberts, it was held that a corporation employing a part of its capital in the purchase of goods of foreign manufacture was not a corporation wholly engaged in carrying on a manufacturing business, and, therefore, was not exempt from taxation upon its franchise or business, under chapter 542, Laws of 1880, and the acts amendatory thereof. The fact that such purchase and sale of foreign books was not the principal business of the corporation, but merely an incident thereof, did not render it less liable to the tax.

In the case of the People ex rel. The Chicago Junction Railway and Union Stock Yards Company v. Roberts, it was held that a corporation described by its treasurer as a “proprietary company,” having its entire capital invested in the stock of another foreign corporation, with an office in Jersey City, and also one in New York city, in which latter place the dividends upon the stock held by it were received, and in which its directors met and declared dividends upon its own stock, which were transmitted by checks drawn in and sent from New York city, did business in the State of New York, and was taxable therein.

In the case of the People ex rel. Parke, Davis & Co. v. Roberts, it was held that the right of citizens to associate themselves together and do business as a corporation is not a natural or inherent right, but is a special privilege granted by the sovereign power, and the privilege so granted can not be exercised in a sovereignty other than that granting it, except through the principle of comity. Corporations are not citizens, within the meaning of the clause of the United States Constitution referred to, and the right of the State to exclude from it foreign corporations is well settled. A State may impose upon a foreign corporation dependent for its right to do business upon the assent of the State, such reasonable terms and conditions as it deems proper. The imposition of a tax upon the privilege granted to a foreign corporation for doing business in the State of New York, measured by the amount of capital employed in such business within the State of New York, is entirely within the power of the State. Where a foreign corporation establishes a place for the sale of its goods, within the State of New York, pays rent for the premises, hires and employs agents and employes to conduct its business, and sells its product from such place of business, it transacts business within the State of New York. A business so conducted does not constitute interstate commerce, so as to exempt the corporation from a tax upon its business. (Affirmed by the Court of Appeals, June 9, 1896; no opinion.)

granted by chapter 542, Laws of 1880, as amended by chapter 522, Laws of 1890, was to encourage the maintenance of large manufacturing establishments and the employment of operatives within the State of New York. The relator did all of its manufacturing in Massachusetts; all of its stock was issued in payment for mills located there, and for stock and supplies contained in the mills; its general office, its sales, its bank account and the general control and management of the business were conducted within the State of New York. The court held that the corporation was not exempt from tax, as one "wholly engaged in carrying on manufacture within this State;" that for the purposes of taxation the bank account of the corporation and the manufactured goods sent to it from its mills in Massachusetts for purpose of sale in New York State, were taxable here as representative of the capital stock employed within the State.

In the case of the People ex rel. The Wiebusch & Hilger Co. (Limited) v. Roberts, 18 Delehanty, 530, the court held that when the return of the Comptroller to a certiorari, to review his determination in relation to corporate taxes, contains all the evidence and proceedings before him, including his decision, he can not be required to add items and particulars to such decision and then to return them.

THE SUCCESSION OR INHERITANCE TAX.

The collection of the succession or collateral inheritance tax last year was not attended with as satisfactory results as could have been desired. The amount collected was not as large as that of the year previous, while the difficulty and expense of the work of collection seems to be increasing. This is largely due to the ingenuity and skill of lawyers in drafting wills and deeds of trust so as to defeat the provisions of the law. A favorite method with them is the drawing of a will so as to create indeterminate remainders, or trusts, and thus render it impossible to fix the tax until the fulfillment of the conditions under which the trust or life estate is created.

The theory of the law is that a tax is due upon an estate at the time of the death of the owner, and that it should be paid after the lapse of a reasonable time for settlement. This being so, there is no good reason why payment should be delayed indefinitely and possibly entirely avoided, by the injection into a will of complicated conditions as to where portions of the estate may ultimately go. If a husband wills that his wife shall have a life use of his estate and that it shall then go to their children, it is manifest that the tax would be 1 per cent., whether paid at the husband's death or years afterwards, at the wife's death. Why should it not, therefore, be collected at once upon the husband's death? The same is true of an estate going to collaterals. The tax will be 5 per cent., whether paid promptly or after certain conditions of the will have been complied with, or fulfilled years later. In my judgment, the law should be amended so as to secure payment of the tax on all estates that are taxable, within a definite period and without years of delay and uncertainty.

It occurs to me also that it would be well for the Legislature to give very serious consideration to the question as to whether the collateral inheritance or transfer tax laws should not be materially amended so as to provide a graded scale that will make large estates yield very much more tax than they now do. At present an estate going to lineals, that is, heirs of the blood, pays 1 per cent., and one going to collaterals and strangers to the blood pays 5 per cent. All estates going to lineals, real and personal, under $10,000, are exempt from taxation, and only the personal property of the lineals above $10,000 is taxable. Estates of less than $500, real and personal, going to collaterals, are exempt, but both the realty and personalty of the collateral above $500 are taxed. Bequests to domestic and religious corporations and to bishops are exempt.

It will be seen from this that a grading of the tax is attempted in the present law, but it is a serious question whether it does not fall far short of accomplishing that which should be attained. If an estate of less than $10,000 should be exempt, why should not one millions greater pay a higher rate than a $10,000 estate? A large estate would certainly be less burdened by the payment of a higher rate than a small estate would be by the payment of a lesser one.

The principal burden of the inheritance tax falls upon personal property. No class of property is better entitled to bear this kind of a tax than is personal. As a rule it escapes taxation during the life of the owner. The equalized taxable value of real estate in this State, in the year 1870, was $1,532,720,907; in the year 1895, the last year reported, it had reached $3,908,853,377, a gain of $2,376,132,470, or more than 155 per cent. The equalized value of taxable personal property in 1870 was $434,280,278, and in 1895 it was $459,859,526, a gain of only $25,579,248, or less than 6 per cent. Now it is a well-known fact that the increase in value of personal property in this State of late years has been much more rapid than that of real estate, and that the amount of personal property owned here is equal to, if not more than, the amount of real estate; yet the above figures indicate a fabulous growth in the amount of taxable real estate, while, comparatively, the increase in the amount of personal property reported for taxation purposes is scarcely worth speaking about. The total amount of personal property now on the tax rolls is a trifle over one-ninth as much as the real estate, and only a fraction more than it was twenty-six years ago.

A significant fact bearing on this subject is that since the act imposing a tax of one-eighth of one per cent. for the privilege of organization was passed in 1886, the sum of $2,016,001,464 has been invested in the capital of corporations. This is nearly five times as much as the total amount of personal property now upon the tax rolls of this State.

The question is, therefore, Where is all this personal property? It evades taxation. The fact is, neither the assessor nor the tax gatherer ever gets a chance to list personal property until death intervenes and forces a balancing of accounts; then the administrator appears, the surrogate is visited, the will is produced, appraisers are appointed, strong boxes in bank and safe deposit vaults are opened, and hundreds of thousands and millions of dollars worth of securities that no assessor ever caught a glimpse of before are brought to light.

The opportunity for just and equitable taxation is perfect under such conditions, and why should not the State avail itself of it, particularly in view of the fact that never before could it secure the opportunity? It has been maintained by eminent authorities that it would be wiser and less demoralizing if government should forego all attempts to tax personal property during the life of the owner, await a transfer following death, and then levy an assessment large enough to make up for the previous years of exemption. The tax, then, would be no hardship to anyone. The decedent would have been allowed the use and enjoyment of his fortune during life, and the beneficiary would simply pay a fee for the privilege of receiving an estate, in the creation of which he had little or no hand. Against the payment of such a fee or tax he would have no reason to complain, as his right to receive it comes from the State, is by the grace of the State.

Another reason why large estates, particularly the personal property of such estates, should be made to pay liberally toward the support of government in the way of an inheritance tax, is because many of them owe their very existence to favors conferred by government in one form and another. The government throws its strong arm around the capitalist in the shape of a protective tariff; it gives the inventor exclusive rights in the way of a patent covering a long series of years; it gives him and his friends special privileges in the shape of a corporation charter, whereby they combine large amounts of capital, and thus conduct a vastly more successful business than they could if acting individually; it gives them the right of eminent domain, by which they overrun the interests of the individual, whether he likes it or not; it grants them limited liability as members of the corporation; it permits them to issue bonds and borrow money on them for long periods, something an individual cannot do; it protects them in their corporate rights by the strong arm of the civil and military law; it protects the lawyer, the doctor and other professional men from uneducated and unskilled competition, by requiring a thorough course of study and a qualifying examination.

In these special privileges conferred by government lie the foundation of most of the great fortunes of the country to-day. Moreover, they are largely composed of personal property, which, as already shown, very largely escapes taxation. In justice, therefore, to the mass of small land-owners and taxpayers who have from year to year borne more than their equitable share of the burden of taxation, I maintain that a transfer tax upon large estates that would make up, to a certain extent, for the years of exemption enjoyed, would be simple justice.

As stated above, the rate of inheritance tax in this State ranges from 1 per cent. to 5 per cent. This is a much lower rate than is imposed in other countries of the world, in many of which this method of taxation has been in vogue for centuries. The following are the rates in the countries named:

	Per cent.
Great Britain	from 1 to 10
France	from 1.25 to 11.25
Germany	from 1 to 10
Austria	from 1 to 9.5
Italy	from 1.36 to 13
Russia	from 1 to 8
Holland	from 1 to 10
Spain	from 1 to 10
Canada (Ontario, Nova Scotia and Quebec).....	from 2.5 to 10
Switzerland	from 5 to 20
Victoria (Australia)	from 2 to 10
Belgium.....	from 1 to 13.8

The result is the yield in revenue from this tax is much larger in Europe than here. The returns for 1893, the latest available, show the following amounts to have been collected from inheritance taxes, in the countries named, during that year:

Great Britain and Ireland.....	$53,609,975
France	39,873,306
Italy	7,030,000
Belgium	3,800,000
Victoria (Australia)	1,328,068

Taxation is resorted to as a necessity for the support of government. The tax should be spread as equitably as possible, and in a way that the greatest burden will fall where it can be most easily borne. It requires no argument to prove that a vast estate, aggregating many millions, can much better afford, upon being transferred, to make a liberal contribution towards government support than an estate of a few thousand. Moreover, its obligations to pay liberally are greater, as the necessities of such an estate, in the way of police, fire, military and court protection, are vastly greater.

In view of the facts adduced in the foregoing, it is submitted whether it would not be wise to amend the inheritance tax laws by adding another section, which shall provide for the imposition of a tax as follows:

5 per cent. on estates of $1,000,000 and less than $2,000,000
 10 per cent. on estates of $2,000,000 and less than $3,000,000
 15 per cent. on estates of $3,000,000 and over.

This proposed amendment does not in any manner affect estates of less than $1,000,000, but it does aim at a material increase in the tax paid by very large estates. It will be a matter of interest to show what the effect of such a law would have been, if it had been in force during the past three years.

	Amount paid under present law.	Amount that would have been paid under amended law.
1893.....	$3,071,687 09	$17,305,844 00
1894.....	1,688,954 20	8,633,989 00
1895.....	2,126,894 61	4,856,266 00
1896.....	1,796,652 00	2,418,491 00
	$8,684,187 90	$27,714,590 00

This would have made a difference of over $19,000,000 in the tax for three years.

The estate that would have contributed a large part of this increased tax was rated upon the local assessors' rolls as being worth $500,000, and upon that amount a personal tax had been paid, but when the great equalizer—death—appeared upon the scene and forced a settlement, the estate was found to be worth $80,- 934,580, instead of $500,000, with only $6,553,520 debts charged up against it; and upon these figures the inheritance tax was levied. If the above amendment had been in force at the time of decedent's death, and this estate had been required to pay its fair share of tax (in view of the evasion) into the treasury, it might have prevented a transfer to Europe of several millions of good American money. And who will say that any law that will divert to the people's treasury a part of the millions upon millions of American money now going to Europe to bolster up an effete and decaying nobility, is not a wise and judicious one?

It may be said, however, that a tax of this character would have the effect to dissipate great fortunes. Possibly this would be so, and would that be a consummation to grieve over? This country has just passed through the most threatening political campaign in its history. The portents of 1896 were vastly more dangerous than those of 1860, when peace and internecine war hung in the balance. Issues were advanced last year, and vigorously supported by a large element of the American electorate, which, if adopted, would have undermined the very foundations of our institutions. These issues were largely the outgrowth of discontent among the people. The farmer, as a class, the work-people and the small trade folk were in distress. For four years the conditions had been exceedingly unsatisfactory for them. Hundreds of thousands of industrious people were out of employment, the best efforts of the farmer had been attended with poor results, and the small tradesman and business man were worse off than if they had been doing nothing. And the fact that in the midst of all this discontent, distress and suffering, the fortunate few, comparatively, were luxuriating in immense and almost limitless wealth, did more than any other one thing to breed, propagate and disseminate these anarchistic and populist ideas as to government and finance. There is no mistaking the signs of the times in this country. There is an increasing enmity between capital and labor. And this feeling increases very nearly according to the concentration of great wealth in few persons. Furthermore, there are eminent authorities who are of the opinion that the multiplication of gigantic fortunes augurs no good for the perpetuity of republican institutions. Therefore, in view of the facts herewith adduced — that large fortunes are usually the result of government favor in one form or another ; that such fortunes call for greater police, fire and other protection, than small ones ; that it is claimed they are a menace to the perpetuity of republican institutions ; that it is impossible to make them pay anything like their fair share of tax during the life of the owner ; that it is manifest from $2,500,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 of personal property in this State is escaping taxation every year — it is respectfully submitted whether upon the transfer of this property upon the decease of the owner, which can happen only once in a generation, it would not be wise to make it pay an inheritance tax that would, in a limited degree at least, compensate for the great benefits it has received. In Pennsylvania the entire expenses of government are paid from indirect taxes, except a trifling tax on personal property. Real estate is free from taxation. The same could be accomplished here by judicious legislation. Should such a law be passed, it would be wise to couple with it liberal exemptions for bequests to educational, charitable and religious purposes, and it would also be well to encourage faithful service and proper appreciation of the same by exempting bequests to old and trustworthy servants and employees.

This whole subject is one pregnant with great import from a public and patriotic point of view, and it is respectfully submitted to the serious consideration of the Legislature.

During the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, there was collected under the taxable transfer or inheritance tax acts the net sum of $1,796,652. The number of estates paying tax was 2,624 as against 2,682 during the year ending September 30, 1895. The average payment per estate for 1896, prior to the reduction of fees was $778.27, as compared with $888.87 in 1895, a decrease of $110.60. The total tax paid in 1896, including all fees and disbursements, was $2,042,173.53, of which $1,265,978.38 was collateral, or five per cent. tax, and $776,195.15 succession, or one per cent. tax — the latter being a tax upon personal property alone. The largest payment made on account of tax during the last year upon any one estate was $83,000, but an application for a refunding of upwards of $27,000 of that amount has been filed in this department.

During the past year the department has had gratifying success in litigating many questions relating to the transfer tax, which have settled the law. The result eventually will be large and immediate returns of revenue. Among the more important cases are the following:

Matter of Moore.

Matter of Davis.

Matter of Ogsbury.

Matter of Strobel.

Matter of Livingston.

Matter of Kemp.

Matter of Turl.

Matter of Bronson.

Matter of Whiting.

Matter of Morgan.

Matter of Houdayer.

In the matter of Hamilton it was adjudged that even municipalities, such as the city of New York, when recipients of benefactions under testamentary dispositions are subject to tax. In the matter of Ogsbury it was held that where trusts were created in such a manner as to be subject to the will of the creator in any way, the trust fund must be taxed. In the matter of Strobel the courts decided that certain treaty exemptions did not interfere with the transfer tax. In the matters of Kemp, Livingston, Baudouine and Turl it was held that where decedents left real and personal property to the same beneficiary, making a blended fund, or had made contracts for building upon real estate, mortgages secured by the real estate which was not taxable should not be satisfied out of the personal property which was taxable, and that the amounts to accrue under such building contracts should not be taken out of the taxable personal property. In the matters of Bronson, Houdayer, Whiting and Morgan, the entire question of the taxability of the property within the State of New York of non-residents was settled. The four cases substantially laid down the doctrine that all property in this State of non-residents should be taxable, except certificates of stock of corporations and bonds of the United States.

It should be stated in this connection, however, that in a decision subsequently promulgated, the Supreme Court of the United States, in the matter of estates of Merriam and Cullom (vol. 16, Supreme Court Reporter, 1073), cases somewhat similar to the above, held that bequests to the United States government were subject to the transfer tax, and that although the property of the decendent included United States bonds the tax might be assessed upon the basis of their value, because the tax was not imposed upon the bonds themselves, but upon the estate of the decendent, and upon the privilege of acquiring property by inheritance.

Under chapter 908, Laws of 1896, appraisers are required to file in this Department copies of their report, and surrogates a copy of the order assessing tax. This enables a record of all estates which have contingent or indeterminate remainders, and upon which no tax can at the present time be collected, to be kept in this office, and proceedings for the collection of such tax promptly instituted upon the happening of such contingencies, although no proceedings in court be necessary to vest such remaining estate. The law is a very salutary one, and is working well.

THE SURPLUS.

The balance on hand to the credit of all funds, September 30, 1896, was $4,930,046.43. But the Legislature should not allow itself to be misled by this large balance. Of this amount only $2,494,366.34 was in the general fund, from which all current expenses of government must be paid. The remainder was to the credit of the canal fund, the school fund, etc. Now it should be borne in mind that the Legislature of every year spreads a tax, not a dollar of which is collectable or available until the succeeding 15th day of February, nearly a year in the future. But it makes appropriations in the supply and supplemental supply bills, which are available at once. The supply bills last year aggregating $1,960,038, the Capitol appropriation, $810,000; the Eastern Reformatory appropriation, $150,000; $500,000 of the care of insane appropriation, and many other large amounts, were paid almost immediately after the bills became law. Then, too, the general appropriation becomes available October 1st, but nothing comes in from the general tax until February and May following. The result is that without a surplus such as reported, the Comptroller, the first of every fiscal year, would have to go into the market and borrow the necessary money with which to meet current expenses, as he has been obliged to do for several years past. As evidence of this, I might say that the payments from the general fund for the first quarter of the current fiscal year, October 1st to January 1st, have aggregated $3,870,650.44; so that under ordinary circumstances the Comptroller would now be a borrower, notwithstanding the fact of his starting the fiscal year with a surplus of $2,494,366. The deficit was made good by the payment of the delayed New York city tax.

In this connection I desire to say very earnestly that I think it would be a great mistake for the Legislature to pursue any policy that would seriously reduce or obliterate this surplus. It would certainly result in much embarrassment to the Comptroller's Department, and the payment of large amounts of interest on borrowed money. This fact should be kept prominently in mind that, in round numbers, $500,000 are required for charity alone, every month, and this money must be promptly provided whether it is in the treasury or not.

LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES.

I would again respectfully call attention to the unsatisfactory manner in which the expenses of legislative investigating and special committees are met. In my last report I referred to the fact that the auditing of the accounts of these committees is one of the most difficult and annoying things the Comptroller has to deal with, for the reason that the charges by members of the same committee upon the same service vary so much in amount. In some cases members of a committee present bills for expenses averaging $4 or $5 a day, excluding railway fare, while other members of the same committee, for the same service, present claims for $7 and $8 a day. Such accounts never can be adjusted without more or less friction, and sometimes friction of a very exasperating character to both Comptroller and committeemen. In view of these facts it was suggested by me last year that the Legislature fix by law a uniform per diem rate, exclusive of transportation, which should govern as to the expenses of all legislative and special committees. In conformity with this suggestion such bill was introduced in the last session and received with favor, but in the crush of other business failed of passage. Speaking with the force gathered from another year's experience in this work, I desire respectfully, yet earnestly, to again urge the importance of such legislation. The present methods have been productive of severe criticism and the loss of much public money in the past, and will be again in the future, if allowed to continue. As evidence that this is a matter worthy of consideration, I may say that from 1879 to October 1st last, $823,534.51 were expended for committee expenses, exclusive of contested election cases, as is shown by the following table:

PAYMENTS MADE FOR SPECIAL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES

STATE BONDS.

Your honorable body is aware that the State has entered upon a policy for the enlargement and improvement of the canals, which will involve the issue of $9,000,000 of State bonds. It is for the interest of the people that these bonds should be placed upon the market in the best way possible, so as to make them sought after by investors.

As the law now exists, State bonds are subject to State and local taxation. This seems to be unwise, as by it the State, to a certain extent, discredits its own securities. The United States government has by law exempted its bonds from all direct taxation. Many municipalities in this and other States have exempted their bonds, so far as they had the power to do so, from taxation. It seems to me that this policy should be followed by the State, and that an act should be passed as promptly as possible, declaring State bonds to be issued exempt from State and local taxation. This would result in a better demand for them and in the realization of higher prices. It is my judgment, and also that of eminent financiers with whom I have conversed upon this subject, that the State would realize more from the sale of exempted bonds than it would lose in consequence of their being non-taxable.

A FINANCIAL BUILDING.

Although the new capitol is not yet completed, the indications are numerous that it will not be able to accommodate the several departments of the State government when finished. Notwithstanding that three important branches of government—the Comptroller's office, the Engineer's office, and the Banking Department, to say nothing of the Geological Department—are now occupying the old State hall, the capitol is crowded, and an agitation is already on foot to provide quarters outside for the State Library.

In view of these facts, it is suggested that it would be wise to convert the State Hall into a financial building, and permanently locate therein the three great financial departments of the government, namely, the Comptroller's office, the Treasurer's office, and the Banking Department.

The work of these departments is of a delicate and highly important character, and it is very necessary that the clerks while engaged in it should be disturbed as little as possible. The State Hall is some distance removed from the capitol, and offers no particular attraction to sightseers and curious people. Consequently, it is visited only by people having business to transact in the departments therein located. Then, too, the work of the financial departments is quite intimately connected, particularly that of the Comptroller's office and the Treasurer; and it would not only be advantageous to the employes to have them compactly located, but also to the public doing business with them.

The State Hall is well located, and is very substantially built, and, so far as the structure is concerned, it is in good condition.

But it has been sadly neglected of late years by the government, and now needs attention to prevent it from falling into decay and becoming untenable. I am informed, however, that by the expenditure of about $50,000 it can be again put in good repair.

The attention of the Legislature is respectfully called to this subject.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

The work of the Bureau of Charitable Institutions was not as satisfactory last year as could have been desired, for reasons that will appear later on.

During the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, there was an average of 5,851.94 inmates in twelve of the charitable institutions under my supervision. Craig Colony for Epileptics is not taken into account in this average, as the first inmate was received on January 27, 1896, four months after the beginning of the fiscal year. The home for veterans and their wives at Oxford, the Eastern Reformatory at Napanock, and the Reformatory for Women at Bedford are in process of construction, and not yet occupied.

The aggregate expenditure from the State treasury for maintenance for the thirteen institutions now in operation (Craig Colony included) was $1,020,339.27, which is exclusive of home products and profits from manufacturing.

The expenditure upon the Home for Veterans and their Wives was $31,101.77; on the Eastern Reformatory for Women at Bedford it was $24,498.69. The per capita cost to the State treasury for the 5,851.94 inmates of these institutions was $167.46, as against $168.31 in the fiscal year ending September 30, 1895.

Attention is called to the striking difference in the per capita cost of the different institutions. The accompanying table will be of interest in this connection.

STATEMENT showing the average number in each institution under the Comptroller's supervision, the total expense for maintenance for each institution, exclusive of home products, and the average per capita cost of each inmate; also the net cost to the State for maintenance for each institution, exclusive of home products, and the expense of supervision (i. e., salaries of superintendents, officials, clerks, and wages of employees), the per capita cost of each inmate, excluding home products, and the expenses of supervision; also the per capita cost of supervision and management for each institution.

"Ordinary support" excludes supervision and home products. * In making per capita cost in 1885 the number of school days only were taken. In the present table 366 days are taken, as in all other institutions.

It should be borne in mind when studying the above figures that there is a vast difference in the character of the several institutions, and that some, by the nature of things, must necessarily be much more costly to support than others; but there does not seem to be any good reason why the per capita cost of maintenance of institutions of practically like character should differ much. For instance, there are included in the above statement three large juvenile reformatories which vary in per capita cost for maintenance from $106.96 to $215.55. There are two houses of refuge for fallen women established on the cottage plan, and doing exactly the same kind of work. The per capita cost of one was $231.77, and of the other $314.38.

In my last report I discussed at considerable length the tendency among the managers of charitable institutions of late years to largely increase the wage and salary lists and expenses of management. This tendency has continued with no sign of abatement.

The fact that of the $167.46 per capita cost of maintenance, $76.34 goes for management, salaries and wages shows the absolute need of supervision here; but for some inscrutable reason the Legislature has declined to give the Comptroller the power of supervision so far as salaries, wages, etc., are concerned. Now, I maintain, in justice to the taxpayer and myself, that if I am to be charged with the responsibility of supervising these institutions, that I have supervision which will supervise, and that I also have the power, with the advice and consent of, say two other State officers, to regulate and equalize salaries and wages, as I already have power to correct the prices of supplies and repairs. It is neither logical nor economical to confer power as to one-half the expenses and to allow the other half to run wild. The per capita will never, in that way, be brought down to a satisfactory minimum. As will be seen from a table in the body of the report, the salaries and wages of the same grade of officers and employes vary greatly in the different institutions, and shift with the shifting opinions of the different boards of trustees.

The State Commission in Lunacy, by authority of chapter 944, Laws of 1896, has established a uniform scale of salaries and wages for all their hospitals, and it is not easy to see why a rule which applies to, and benefits, the hospitals of the State should not apply to, and benefit, the charitable institutions.

As evidence that this is no trifling matter, I may state that during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, the salary and wage account was increased $34,851.26 over the cost of the previous year, and that the increase in 1895 was greater than in 1896. While I am not in possession of the exact figures, from the data in hand, I feel warranted in saying that the increase in the cost of management during the past four years was over $125,000. By this I mean that the annual expenditure for these items is $125,000 greater now than four years ago, without corresponding increase of inmates.

By chapter 545, Laws of 1896, authority is given a board composed of the Governor, Secretary of State, Comptroller and the Lunacy Commission, to supervise and revise the salaries and wages of the employes in the State hospitals. I respectfully recommend that the same powers as regards the salaries and wages of employes of the charitable institutions be given to a board composed of the Governor, Secretary of State, chairman of the State Board of Charities and the Comptroller.

The average per capita cost for education in the different institutions during the past year has been large, which is chiefly accounted for by the fact that the curriculum of some of the institutions is far above a common school course. While exception must be made in favor of the school for the blind at Batavia and the institution for Deaf Mutes at Malone, I recommend that in all other charitable institutions the course of study be adopted which is laid down by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the common schools of the State. This recommendation is not intended to interfere with reasonable instruction in the trades.

A source of friction with some of the institutions has been the matter of supplies for officers' tables. It has not seemed exactly right to this Department that the taxpayers of the State should be required to pay for blue points, lobster, terrapin, frogs' legs, partridge, quail, venison, and most of the delicacies of the season, to supply the tables of officials already well paid and well housed by the State; but under the present law the Comptroller has been unable to prevent it. It is well enough that these officials should be allowed to supply their tables from the stores provided for institution use, but it is not right that they should be allowed to go into public markets and buy luxuries at State expense. The Insanity Act, chapter 545, Laws of 1896, section 38, provides, among other things: "Food supplies shall be allowed to officers and employes, and the families of superintendents * * * . Such families shall consist only of the wives and minor children of the officers; no other persons, except those regularly employed, shall be allowed rooms and maintenance, except at a rate to be fixed by the commission; such supplies shall be drawn from the supplies provided for general hospital use."

I respectfully recommend that the provisions of this section be made applicable to the State charitable institutions.

Another matter which should receive attention at the hands of the Legislature, it occurs to me, is the support and maintenance of juvenile delinquents at the industrial schools at Rochester and Randall's Island. These children are sent to these institutions for reformation. Their retention in the institution is for their own benefit, and for the benefit of their families, as well as for the benefit of the community. In a very large number of cases the parents and relatives of these children are abundantly able to pay for their care and maintenance at the institution, and there is no good reason why they should not be required to do so by law. The friends of insane persons who are sent to State hospitals for care, are required to pay for their keeping, if they have the means to do it. The same is true of many of the children sent to the blind asylums and to the institutions for deaf mutes. In these cases the unfortunates are not in condition to need State care from any act of their own, but in consequence of a dispensation of Providence. But in the case of the delinquents sent to the reformatories, the necessity for their confinement is due to their own misconduct, and if, therefore, their relatives are able to pay for their support, they should be required to do so.

And still another matter requiring special attention is the expenditure of public money for the permanent improvement of private property. This subject is given prominence now by reason of the fact that while the Legislature is striving to find employment for the idle convicts in the State prisons, and has enacted by chapter 429, Laws of 1896, that, so far as practicable, the public institutions of the State shall be supplied by articles the product of prison labor; the managers of the Northern New York Institution for Deaf-Mutes declare the law not applicable to their institution, and that they do not want to use prison-made stuff. The Attorney-General informs me they are right in their contention, for the reason that their institution is a private one. By chapter 216, Laws of 1887, the sum of $40,000 was appropriated to buy a site and erect buildings for the Northern New York Institution for Deaf-Mutes, and $37,473 have been expended upon it since, making a total of $77,473. The fact is, practically, all the money required for the land and buildings has been furnished by the State, yet the title is in a private board of trustees.

As regards the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents on Randall's Island, the State has already expended $547,556.25 for permanent improvements and betterments, and I understand that an appropriation of $34,120 will be asked for this year for betterments. This property is also owned by a board of private trustees. In my judgment, this is a mistaken public policy. If these institutions are to be steady recipients of State aid for permanent improvements, the title of the property should be transferred to the State, as was done with the immensely valuable properties in New York and Kings when those counties were brought under the State Care Act for the pauper insane.

I would, therefore, respectfully suggest that all appropriations for these institutions, other than for maintenance, be withheld until the title of the property is transferred to the State.

It is only justice toward the Soldiers and Sailors' Home, at Bath, to say that of the $160,000 appropriated for its maintenance during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, only about $45,000, or a little more than a quarter of the sum expended, came out of the taxpayers of the State, about $115,000 being paid by the general government. In other words, of the net per capita of $136, the general government pays $100. The State treasury acts only as a medium for transmitting this allowance, and this fact it is proper to take into consideration when fixing the appropriation for this most worthy and hard-pressed institution.

FOREST PRESERVE AND TAX LAWS.

In view of the fact that an amendment to the Constitution was passed by two Legislatures and submitted to the people, which showed a great lack of information as to the true situation with reference to the State lands, it may be profitable to direct special attention to the laws and to the situation in the Forest Preserve.

By article 12, section 270, of the Revised Statutes, it is provided that "the Forest Preserve shall include the lands owned, or hereafter acquired, by the State, within the counties of Clinton (except the towns of Altona and Dannemora), Delaware, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Hamilton, Herkimer, Lewis, Oneida, Saratoga, St. Lawrence, Warren, Washington, Greene, Ulster and Sullivan, except,

- (1) Lands within the limits of any village or city; and
- (2) Lands, not wild lands, acquired by the State on foreclosure of mortgages made to the commissioners for loaning certain moneys of the United States, usually called the United States Deposit Fund."

The act was originally passed May 15, 1885, subsequently amended so as to include Oneida and Delaware counties, and then incorporated into the Revised Statutes as above stated.

It will be seen from the provisions of this section that the Forest Preserve is made up of all lands in the counties named, outside of the exceptions, owned by the State or to be acquired by it.

Then followed the constitutional amendment, adopted in 1894, section 7, article 7, of which provides that "the lands of the State now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the Forest Preserve as now fixed by law, shall be ever kept as wild forest lands. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed."

This constitutional provision is very sweeping, and it was thought by many who had given considerable attention to the subject that it would be wise to give authority to some representative of the State government to dispose of the outlying and almost useless lands (for preserve purposes), and buy, or exchange for, lands more centrally located in the heart of the Adirondacks, with a view of consolidating the State lands, as much as possible, into a great natural forest park. In conformity with this idea, an amendment was prepared to article 7, which provided, among other things, the following:

"The Legislature may also authorize the exchange of lands owned by the State, situate outside the Forest Preserve, for lands not owned by the State situate within the Forest Preserve. The Legislature may also authorize the sale of lands belonging to the State, situate outside the Forest Preserve, but the moneys so obtained shall not be used except for the purchase of lands situate within the Forest Preserve, and which, when so purchased, shall become part of the Forest Preserve."

If this amendment had been adopted by the people, it would have been entirely inoperative, so far as this provision is concerned, because it is meaningless. It will be observed from the above that the Revised Statutes provide that the Forest Preserve shall include all the lands owned or hereafter acquired by the State, within the counties named. The State owns very little land outside of these counties, and that in very small parcels; hence it was impossible for the Legislature either to authorize the exchange or the sale of lands outside of the Forest Preserve, so as to secure lands within the Preserve for the reason that the State already owned all the land in the Preserve and none outside of it. The phraseology was meaningless, and was due, undoubtedly, to a lack of information as to the laws bearing upon the subject.

Chapter 332, article 8, section 120, of the Laws of 1893, has the following provision: "All lands now owned or hereafter acquired by the State, within the county of Hamilton, the towns of Newcomb, Minerva, Schroon, North Hudson, Keene, North Elba, St. Almond and Wilmington, in the county of Essex; the towns of Harrietstown, Santa Clara, Altamont, Waverly and Brighton, in the county of Franklin; the town of Wilmurt, in the county of Herkimer; the towns of Hopkinton, Colton, Clifton and Fine, in the county of St. Lawrence, and in the towns of Johnsburg, Stoney Creek and Thurman, and the islands in Lake George, in the county of Warren, except such lands as may be sold as private, provided in this article, shall constitute the Adirondack Park. Such park shall be forever reserved, maintained and cared for as ground open for the free use of all the people for their health and pleasure, and as forest lands, necessary to the preservation of the head waters of the chief rivers of the State, and the future timber supply, and shall remain part of the Forest Preserve."

It is manifest that the intention of the Legislature in submitting the amendment to the Constitution given above, was to increase the holdings of the State within this Adirondack Park, and to increase it by sales or exchanges of less desirable lands outside of the Adirondack Park, but within the Forest Preserve.

Within the Adirondack Park proper there are, in round numbers, 2,887,000 acres of land. Of this amount, the State owns less than 700,000 acres, or about one-quarter of the entire territory set apart as an Adirondack Park. The idea of acquiring lands now owned by private parties within the park is certainly to be commended, and it should be adopted as the settled policy of the State to purchase such lands as can be obtained at reasonable prices at as early a day as possible.

These lands are continually increasing in value, and the longer the purchase of them by the State is delayed the more money will have to be paid for them.

In this connection I desire to repeat the recommendation made in my report to the Legislature last year: "Too much importance can not be attached to the extension of the State holdings of land in the Preserve. To-day the State has not one-third the land it should own for the protection of climate and water supply. From expressions of the people and the press, it can fairly be presumed that an appropriation of a moderate sum, year by year, for the purchase of lands in the Preserve, will meet with popular favor."

At the end of the fiscal year 1895, the State owned in the Forest Preserve 768,102 acres of land. During the year ending September 30, 1896, it acquired title, by purchase, to 94,896 acres, and lost by cancellation 1,255 acres, leaving the aggregate on October 1, 1896, 861,743 acres.

At the 1895 tax sale there was bid in for the State, and now remains unredeemed from said sale, lands, to which it had no prior title, amounting in the aggregate to 70,276 acres. The total acreage now owned by the State in the Forest Preserve is 932,019, of which 877,456 acres are contained in what is known as the Adirondack Preserve and 54,563 in what is known as the Catskill Preserve. Of the State lands in the Adirondack Preserve about 690,000 acres are contained in the Adirondack Park, out of a total of about 2,887,000 acres within the territory set apart by law as the Adirondack Park.

Of the lands bid in at the 1895 tax sale, it is presumed that about 33 1-3 per cent. will be redeemed prior to the expiration of the period allowed for redemption, leaving 46,851 acres to which the State will acquire title from said tax sale.

In this connection I desire to call the attention of the Legislature to the condition of the books and records of the Land Bureau in this Department. The same books are now in use that were opened at the time this office was instituted, one hundred years ago. There are tax books, sales books, tax diaries and redemption diaries. They contain the records of the lands of a large portion of this State. They have been handled incessantly, and a large number of the old ones are almost useless at the present time, and are in danger of falling into decay entirely, the paper itself being quite tender and rotten. The preservation of these records in good shape is a matter of great importance, and it is my intention to have the books generally rebound, and to have a copy made of all those dating back farther than, say, 1850, and hereafter to use the copies for business purposes and place the originals carefully away for reference and verification purposes.

I shall be obliged to ask the Legislature for a special appropriation for this purpose.

THE RACING TAX.

The collection of the tax on racing associations is being attended this year with much more difficulty and expense than usual. This is due to an ambiguity in the law. The race track people contend that the words "A tax of five per centum of the gross receipts of every corporation * * * shall be paid," etc., does not include the entry fees paid upon horses to be raced, while this Department holds that moneys received from the entry of horses are as much a part of the gross receipts as any other moneys received.

A review of the race track legislation for the past three years, in my opinion, will sustain the contention of this office. Chapter 197 of the Laws of 1894, levied a tax of five per centum upon the gross receipts of racing associations, but receipts "for entries of horses entered to compete for prizes or purses," were specially exempted from the provisions of the law.

Chapter 570, Laws of 1895, materially changed the race track legislation of the previous year, and levied a tax of five per centum upon the gross earnings instead of gross receipts, and omitted all exceptions as to taxing entry fees. It was maintained by the race track people last year that notwithstanding the omission of a specific provision exempting entry fees they were exempted by the changing of the word "receipts" to earnings. This Department reluctantly yielded to this contention with the result that only a paltry sum (about thirty-four thousand dollars) was collected from the race tracks for the season of 1895. The Legislature of 1896 again revised the race track laws and by chapter 380, section 12, provided as follows: "A tax of five per centum upon the gross receipts of every corporation exercising the privileges conferred by section 3 of this act, shall annually be paid by such corporation or association to the Comptroller of the State of New York, within fifteen days after the 1st day of December in each year," etc. There are no exceptions or exemptions and this Department has held that gross receipts include all moneys going into the associations' treasury; the managers say no, that entry fees should be omitted and they have thus far, December 31st, refused to pay the tax. If this Department's contention is upheld, the tax for the year 1896 will reach about $60,000; if it is not, it will fall short of that sum from $20,000 to $25,000.

Be the result what it may, it is respectfully suggested that the passage of an act explaining just what is meant by "gross receipts" would very much relieve the situation.

PRINTING.

A new contract for department printing was let during the past year. In this contract an effort was made to obviate some of the objections that had been raised to the contracts for the department printing heretofore made. Separate bids were received for blanks of different sizes, and for the various items of work, as nearly as they could be separated. It is confidently believed that a considerable saving will thus be made to the State, and the contract is regarded as a fair one.

It seems proper that the attention of the Legislature should be called to the growing expenses of legislative printing. The following table shows the amounts paid for that purpose during the past ten years:

It is thus seen that the expenditures for that purpose have increased from $95,029.51 in 1887 to $313,585.81 in 1896. It is true that nearly all of this last named amount was expended in the payment of the deficits of previous years, the amount paid for 1895 being already nearly $300,000; but it is also true that this amount was not sufficient to meet these deficits and to pay the expenses of printing for the present year as the bills were rendered. The State is still indebted to Mr. Lyon more than $25,000, and from bills already rendered this Department it would seem to be indebted to the present legislative printers in the amount of $162,347.50.

It is almost certain that the cost of legislative printing under the present comparatively low contract, unless some curtailment of the amount of printing be made, will reach annually at least $250,000 — a larger amount than has ever been expended in the history of the State, if we except the few years when the high prices and the extravagant ideas of the war time prevailed, and the year 1895. The ordering of large quantities of documents very materially increases this expense. A substantial saving can well be effected in this matter.

COURT AND TRUST FUNDS.

Although the reports of examiners of court and trust funds for the past year show a more careful observation of the rules of the court and of the Department in the administration of these funds by the county treasurers, there has been much laxity on their part in demanding the proper decrees and orders.

In many instances there has been a disposition on the part of the financial officer of the several counties to accept advice from attorneys as to the propriety of receiving and paying these moneys, instead of following the formulated rules of the Comptroller's Department; and in this connection it might be proper to state that many attorneys, although knowing the requirements of court rules, and having been paid for their service, absolutely neglect to furnish the necessary decrees and orders. For the purpose of correcting these abuses, it has been the policy of the Department to insist upon a refusal by the county treasurer to receive or pay any moneys without these necessary orders.

By chapter 269, Laws of 1896, authority was given the Comptroller to require such copies of records, documents, or papers officially certified, as he deemed proper for the completion of the treasurer's records. Much has been accomplished by the examiners in the past year in the way of perfecting these records; but there is still a great deal to be done. However, after once completing them, the labor and expense of making examinations will be largely reduced, as a reference to the records in the surrogate's and county clerk's offices will be unnecessary, except to consult the registers.

Several instances have been brought to the attention of the Department, in which reports of sales have not been attached to, and made a part of, the judgment rolls, thereby leaving the records incomplete. Many of these reports have been found by the examiners in the office of the attorney having the matter in charge, and placed on file.

I can find no provision of law which requires the referee to obtain an order of confirmation. This is a serious defect in the law, as a failure to confirm the referee's action might leave a cloud on the title to the property. I respectfully recommend that the necessary legislation be enacted to correct this defect.

The register required to be kept by chapter 330 of the Laws of 1889, as amended by chapter 544 of the Laws of 1895, has, in a great measure, been neglected by surrogates and county clerks. But it is only fair to state, that when the importance of maintaining this register has been explained by the examiners there has been a general disposition on the part of the clerks to obey the law.

I believe that a strict compliance with the law as to the keeping of this register would prevent the withholding from the county treasurer of large amounts of moneys. In many instances persons have either made the distribution themselves to avoid the payment of treasurer's fees, or kept the fund invested (retaining the interest on same for themselves), until a demand was about to be made for the fund, when it would be tendered the county treasurer.

The numerous defalcations of the county treasurers by which these court and trust funds are largely depleted, and sometimes obliterated entirely, have given rise to the question whether the county to which the defaulting treasurer belonged should not be made responsible by law to the beneficiaries of the funds. It certainly does not seem right that, after the court has taken possession of funds and placed them in the keeping of the county treasurers, the beneficiaries (who, in most instances, are widows, orphans and unfortunate litigants) should be made to suffer in consequence of the dishonest acts of an official in whose selection as custodian they had no voice. This matter is respectively submitted to the Legislature for its consideration.

In this connection, I have to say, that the number of defalcations of county treasurers brought to my attention induced me to inquire of every county clerk in the State as to whether there had been any defaulting treasurer in his county of late years. The replies received, show defalcations or shortages in thirty-three counties. In some cases there was one; in some two, and in one several. It will be borne in mind that county treasurers, besides being the legal depositories and managers of these funds, also have in their custody for a time, all the taxes collected under the transfer and collateral inheritance laws in the county; the State's portion of all moneys collected under the excise laws, and also the State tax. In view of these facts, in connection with defalcations, it has occurred to me that it would be wise to institute a system of thorough examinations of county treasurers' accounts under the direction of some State Department. The court and trust funds, the collateral inheritance and excise accounts are now subject to examination by State authority, and the addition suggested would involve very little more labor and I am satisfied that great good would result from such work.

It is true that in most of the counties examinations are supposed to be made at present by the local authorities, but the fact that in several instances deficits have been carried along for years without discovery, in some, as many as twelve years, shows the necessity of a more thorough system than prevails at present. An examination of the court and trust fund accounts just completed in Livingston county disclosed a defalcation in the treasurer's office, which was unknown to the local authorities, and it was only by prompt action on the part of this Department that about $4,000 collateral inheritance taxes, and a considerable amount of trust funds, were saved. A deficit of about $10,000 has also recently been discovered in another county. This is an important matter, and I respectfully submit it to the Legislature.

Before leaving this subject, I desire to express my warm appreciation of the cordial manner in which the judges have assisted me in systematizing and perfecting the court and trust funds records.

NEW YORK (COLONY AND STATE) IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

The generous response of the Legislature to my request for funds to carry on the most interesting work of arranging and indexing the newly-found Revolutionary War Records has enabled great progress to be made.

New York was heretofore credited with furnishing for that struggle only about 18,000 men, but the records, above spoken of, have brought to light more than 26,000 names with many organizations still most incomplete.

Cases exist in which records of a full quota of field, staff and line officers for a regiment have been found, but no enlisted men.

Colonel James Livingston's regiment, for instance, showed only two privates while other regiments varied in numbers from 20 to 900. This state of things was proof positive, to one with knowledge of military affairs, that a deplorable deficiency in the records existed. I learned that there were in the "Record and Pension" office of the War Department a mass of about 18,000 names of

New York men who served in the revolution and I corresponded with the Secretary of War upon the subject. The result was an exchange of all the records that each of us possessed, and it is now certain that the aggregation will give nearly, if not quite, 40,000, or more than twice the number of names heretofore credited to New York.

I have caused a complete index to be made in which each soldier has a card to himself, and if he appears in a dozen different places in the records, those dozen places are referred to on the card.

I found that records existed in the archives of the New York Historical Society, and, through the courtesy of its officers, I have added new names from this source. Capt. Alexander Hamilton's Artillery Company rolls are among the acquisitions in that direction.

Mrs. Abraham Lansing, of Albany, a granddaughter of General Peter Gansevoort, has placed her private papers at my disposal, and I have gleaned not a few names from these records.

The State library archives have been searched and from the Clinton papers and the Henry Stevens papers I have added many new names.

Many curious and interesting documents came to light, and I am having prepared, for incorporation into the volume to be published, about twenty-five or thirty reproductions in half tone.

The "Council of Safety" of 1776 is shown to have been human by a refreshing "reckoning," in which a marked and interesting discrepancy appears as between the sum expended for food and that expended for liquids. It appears that during the nine days in which the "Council" was considering ways and means for the safety of the colony, a bill of £21. 9. 9. was incurred, of which £12. 5. 1. went for "wine, cyder and toddy." The bill is so unique, methodical and interesting as to justify its reproduction here:

A testimonial to General Peter Gansevoort, signed by the officers of the "3d Line" is reproduced.

Another is a paper signed by nearly all the officers of the "2d Line."

Mrs. Lansing has loaned a letter from Benedict Arnold to Colonel Gansevoort, and that will appear in fac-simile.

From this same source is a letter from Colonel Gansevoort to Colonel Goose Van Schaick, and also a letter from General Nicholas Herckheimer to Colonel Gansevoort, when he (Gansevoort) commanded at Fort Schuyler.

A discharge from General Washington will be shown and an autograph letter from Washington, sent as a voucher to a faithful scout's claim for four years' pay.

The reproduction of a "certificate," or promise to pay, the currency in which a grateful but impecunious country settled with its defenders of that period, is among the reproductions.

But I will not enumerate further. Suffice it to say that the volume when completed will be found to give a great return for a small outlay.

The work of weeding out the duplicate names as between the records in this office and the Washington records is finished and everything is now ready for the printer.

A pleasing surprise came in the finding of a number of pensioners' rolls, and, as the records would be incomplete without these names, I delayed until the data from this source were culled out and added.

In my report of last year, reference was made to "Land Bounty Rights" and other miscellaneous papers of great interest and value. In one case the land "Bounty Rights" were gathered until the purchaser of these "Rights" from the soldiers was entitled to and did locate 21,000 acres in the "Chemung District."

There are lists and accounts of estates confiscated on account of disloyalty and treasonable practices, and claims in detail for property destroyed by the enemy's raids into the Mohawk and Schoharie valleys. These latter are not arranged, but are still in their original packages.

Experts in such records assure me that not only are they of great value, but also declare that the information contained in them is quite new, and, in some instances, antedates anything previously found, and a strong desire has been expressed for their publication, or at least for the publication of the most interesting portion of them.

I shall ask for a small appropriation to complete this most interesting work.

In conclusion, I would respectfully suggest that when legislation pertaining to finance and taxation are under consideration, it would be well for the committees having it in charge to freely consult with this Department. The fact that this office has direct and detailed control of financial and tax matters, renders it absolutely certain that it should have more intimate knowledge of them than any other branch of government, particularly members of the Legislature, whose duties are so varied and multitudinous, and whose time is limited for the consideration of such matters. If such a course were pursued, I am confident the Legislature could proceed with its work on these important bills more intelligently than it has in the past, for the simple reason that men whose entire time and attention are devoted to any particular subject must know more about it than men who only occasionally give thought to it. This suggestion is thrown out, not from any pride of position, but with a sincere desire to promote wise legislation.

Very respectfully,

JAMES A. ROBERTS,

Comptroller.

ONONDAGA SALT SPRINGS.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF THE ONONDAGA SALT SPRINGS.

Hon. JAMES A. ROBERTS, Comptroller of the State of New York,
Albany, N. Y.:

Sir.—Pursuant to chapter 684 of the Laws of 1892, I have the honor to report to you, as therein provided, that the amount of salt inspected on the Onondaga Salt Springs Reservation during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, was 3,023,910 $\frac{3}{4}$ bushels, and the duties received thereon, \$30,239.15.

The amount expended during the same period was $56,925.57, showing an excess of expenditures over receipts of $26,686.42.

In compliance with the same law, I estimate the expenses for all purposes for the ensuing year at the sum of $50,000, as shown by the detailed statement annexed. The vouchers showing the expenditures for the year are already on file in your office.

Respectfully yours,

CHARLES HISCOCK,

Superintendent Onondaga Salt Springs.

Dated, SYRACUSE, October 8, 1896.

The amount of salt inspected on the Onondaga Salt Springs Reservation for the fiscal year ending the 30th day of September, 1896, and the amount of duties collected thereon, as heretofore reported monthly to the Comptroller, as follows:

The following statement of the total cost of the State canals now in operation is found by adding to the amount stated in the report of the auditor of the canal department (Assembly Doc. No. 4, of 1876), very carefully compiled, the amounts paid for lengthening 40 locks, and building vertical and slope walls on the Erie canal; the amounts paid for widening, deepening and improving the Champlain canal; for reservoirs on the Black river canal; and for lengthening 11 locks on the Oswego canal:

Erie and Champlain.....	$55,020,000 00
Oswego.....	4,525,000 00
Cayuga and Seneca.....	1,838,000 00
Black river.....	3,964,000 00
Total.....	$65,347,000 00

In addition to the above schedule covering the expenditures by the State for building and furnishing normal schools, the following amounts were authorized to be raised by bonding the various localities, viz.:

Brockport, by chapter 21, Laws of 1867.....	$50,000 00
Cortland, by chapter 199, Laws of 1867.....	50,000 00
Fredonia, by chapter 223, Laws of 1867.....	100,000 00
Geneseo, by chapter 195, Laws of 1867, and chapter 601, Laws of 1868.....	115,000 00
Potsdam, by chapter 6, Laws of 1867, and chapter 68, Laws of 1868.....	78,000 00

By chapter 170, Laws of 1867, the common council of the city of Oswego was empowered to convey to the State the normal school buildings, with the ground, apparatus, books, furniture and appurtenances, so that the original cost of this school is not included in the foregoing schedule. The same might be said of the Oneonta, New Paltz and Jamaica normal schools.

It is a difficult matter to obtain the exact cost of the various arsenals and armories in the State, in view of the fact that in many instances expenditures were made by the various localities. This is particularly true of the arsenals in New York, Brooklyn and Buffalo.

STATEMENT showing the amount of State, school, State care of insane, stenographer and court expense, towns and county taxes, taken from the reports of the Board of Supervisors for 1896, and the aggregate equalized valuation as fixed by the State Board of Equalization.

NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY.

Report of the Board of Managers to the Legislature for the Year Ending September 30, 1896.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

ELMIRA, N. Y., January 7, 1897.

Hon. J. M. E. O'GRADY, Speaker of the Assembly, Albany, N. Y.:

Dear Sir.—The managers of the New York State Reformatory at Elmira, hereby submit, as required by law, their annual report for 1896.

Respectfully,

C. T. WILLIS,

Secretary.

REPORT.

NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY,

ELMIRA, N. Y., September 30, 1896.

To the Honorable the Legislature:

The daily average of prisoners for the year is 1,354; it is 135 more than for the year 1895.

The per diem per capita gross cost for maintenance is .428 cents and the net cost, or cost to the State over inherent earnings and income, is .363 cents.

The gross outlay for maintenance the whole year is $212,556.12; the income is $32,281.38, so that the net cost to the State for the year is $180,274.74.

As compared with the cost for 1895, the gross annual outlay is $4,126.06 less. The incidental and other income is less by $7,352.20, leaving the net cost to the State for 1896 only $3,126.14 more than for 1895, with an increase of the daily average number of inmates of 135.

It should be noted that the daily outlay for each inmate for maintenance is .078 cents less and the net cost .039 cents less this year than it was last year.

The earnings of the Reformatory (applied for support) aggregate to date $862,390.64. No further earnings can be expected. The Reformatory in common with other prisons in the State must the 1st of January next, by reason of the Constitution and the act of the last Legislature, discontinue all productive industries. It is required that the prisoners shall be kept constantly employed. The Managers expect to carry out the requirements of this law, keeping the prisoners employed with prison duties and various improving exercises, for which facilities are already in hand. Increased attention will now be given to the processes by which the inmates may be trained up to reasonably safe citizenship, renovation of the physical man by baths and the gymnasium; training in manliness by military drill and organization; manual training for the more ostensibly defective of them for initial mental quickening and adjustment; trades training for skill in wage-earning occupations; education proper in the school of letters; not forgetting, of course, the importance of moral development, which is to some extent an expected result of this training.

The usual $200,000 of annual maintenance appropriation of the Legislature will not be sufficient to carry on the reformatory, but there should be appropriated instead $250,000, to be used, so much thereof as may be necessary, for maintenance for the year ending September 30, 1898.

The improvements and facilities authorized to be made and provided for by the last Legislature are in progress, but will not be completed until the close of the present fiscal year, ending September 30, 1897.

Further and full information of the inmates and work of the Reformatory for the year will be found in the reports of the General Superintendent and heads of departments submitted herewith.

Respectfully submitted,

W. C. WEY,
M. H. ARNOT,
J. B. RATHBONE,
W. H. PETERS,
C. T. WILLIS,

Board of Managers.

General Superintendent's Report.

NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY,

ELMIRA, N. Y., September 30, 1896.

To the Board of Managers:

The usual financial and statistical tables, together with reports of heads of departments is herewith submitted.

The people of the State are year by year becoming better informed about the Reformatory, but there still remains so much of misapprehension as to the inmates and the system of management here, that at the risk of somewhat of repetition, it is thought to be necessary or at least useful to include in this report some items of further explanation.

This Reformatory should not be classed as one of the juvenile reformatories. Such a conception of it is erroneous. The prisoners here are not children, nor are they, properly speaking, "boys," a term so often inappropriately applied to them. The Reformatory is a prison, a reformatory prison certainly, but nevertheless a prison for adult prisoners. The prisoners are males, having been convicted and sentenced for offenses punishable by imprisonment in a State prison, and are therefore felons. The committing age is between 16 and 30 years. The average age is closely approximating 21 years. Some are less than 21 years old, but many are voters. Some of them are married, with families dependent upon them for support. The prisoners here are thus of substantially the same age as are the prisoners in the State prisons, and are convicted and committed for similar crimes.

It is stated that more than 60 per cent. of the prisoners in the State prisons—those remaining there after the practical withdrawal from the State prisons of the 1,400 or more prisoners in this Reformatory—are not over 30 years of age.

It should be noted also in this connection that while this Reformatory is intended for first offenders in high crimes, fully 40 per cent. of them have had previous experience of arrest or confinement in institutions or prisons. The prisoners in this Reformatory, as are prisoners generally, constitute a degenerate and anti-social class. They have been tested under restraints and motives sufficient to hold most men to social rectitude in free society, and have been found wanting. They are, therefore, dangerous to the property or persons of ordinary inhabitants, and it is for that reason that they are imprisoned; they are secluded for the protection of that portion of the inhabitants of our State who, while pursuing their own profit and pleasure, do nevertheless keep themselves within the law.

In the founding of this Reformatory by the State twenty years or so ago, and by the statutory limitations as to prisoners intended to be confined and treated here, there is recognized the principle of classification of prisoners for reformatory treatment, but it is a rude recognition. The principle and the application of it is in the administration of this Reformatory very greatly extended, and the principle of classification is believed to be a fundamental requisite for any useful effort at the reformation of criminals. The following are items of classification in administration:

First. There are three character grades with two sub-grades, one for incorrigibles, and the other for some who are believed to be completely cured of their criminality, but for one reason or another are detained in service, often with pay. There is a very small number of this latter sub-grade. The privileges of each grade differ, and the object of this classification is to intensify the motive of the indeterminate sentence for self-support at improvement.

Second. There are three intellectual grades, subdivided into 28 classes, for mental development and increase of common knowledge.

Third. The whole population is again classified into trades classes based on individual adaptation and opportunities for wage-earning occupations, the intention being to fit the pupils for easily earning in legitimate pursuits the means of living and of legitimate gratifications.

Fourth. The whole population is also divided into 16 military companies, constituting four battalions and a regiment, for the benefits of military drill and the training in manliness of bearing and movement and feeling incident to good military training.

Fifth. Yet another classification comprising all the prisoners is made upon the basis of a religious persuasion of themselves or the families from which they come. They are divided into Roman Catholic, Protestant and Hebrew denominations. The object of this classification of religions is not at all to promote sectarianism, but for the better impression of the men themselves as to religious feeling, and incidentally to create or cultivate a tendency in them to seek on their release the best religious associations according to their faith and training.

Sixth. Another classification is composed of those specially defective. These are divided into three groups, each representing prisoners of similar deficiency. Group No. 1 is composed of those exceptionally incompetent in the mathematical faculty of the mind; No. 2 of those grossly deficient in ordinary moral control in common conduct; and Group No. 3 is composed of dullards. These several groups are again subdivided into various sections for assignment of specially adapted manual exercises intended to aid in overcoming their defects respectively. The whole classification constitutes A MANUAL TRAINING CLASS whose exercises occupy the time of every day which is not devoted to the more general reformatory departments.

Seventh. The physical training or renovation group, or classification is composed (a) of anaemic and undeveloped, (b) of semi-invalids, (c) of feeble-minded, (d) of those of more or less aberrated intellects, (e) of sexual perverts, (f) of moral imbeciles, (g) of prisoners newly arrived, who for the first month are subjected to the treatment of baths and skillfully directed physical exercises in a well-appointed gymnasium. The purpose is to repair and fit the organism for its normal and healthful functions, increasing the amount of nervous energy, and by this means to strengthen character.

One of the advantages of such a complete classification and treatment of prisoners for their reformation is the necessity it involves to possess full and accurate knowledge of each individual inmate. Of itself, the duty of assigning the prisoner to his proper grade, group, class and exercises assists the study of him as an individual, while constant observation and record of his performance and progress or want of progress when assigned and active, gives additional opportunities to know him—indeed supplies, without further careful effort, all needed information about him.

After such a classifying and organizing of the inmates, it becomes quite necessary to obtain and maintain complete control of every one of them to the end that they may be, in the best way, directed for their reformation. The whole life of the prisoner must come under the governing authority, and be completely regulated thereby. It is intended that the early morning call shall awaken from slumber all the inmates, and from that moment until at evening, when, with natural and healthful fatigue, they do, at the retiring signal, quickly fall asleep again, their minds and powers shall be fully taxed and their energies directed in new and healthful channels. The discipline of prisoners in a reformatory is, therefore, different from that of other prisons, where only safe-custody and orderly behavior is required. In a reformatory, where the purpose is to train up the inmates to new habits of self-reliance and self-control, to good moral behavior and successful citizenship, a more strict and effective disciplinary regime is necessary. It is a common error to suppose that all prisoners need only an opportunity, together with sympathizing persuasion, to at once earnestly engage themselves for their own welfare and reformation. The truth is that a large proportion of the prisoners, even in the best of reformatories, are not thus motivated and capable; many will not voluntarily take the prescribed training; they must, at least at first, be compelled. Speaking generally it may be said that the extent of prisoners' co-operation for their own benefit by the prison training will not reach beyond the limit of leniency by their governors. The more of indulgence, the less of useful effort by the prisoner. Sentimentalism in a reformatory is to its strong supports, its means of training, what the dry rot is to the beams of a building. The outward appearance is attractive, but there is no strength; it must fall. Our interest in and sympathy for young criminals should not exceed our sympathy for their innocent victims. The State's purpose is public protection from crimes by the reformation of the criminal, a purpose not to be forgotten by those who administer the prisons.

TRADES INSTRUCTION.

The industrial status of the inmates on their admission to the Reformatory shows the need of their industrial training while imprisoned, and of good adjustment or readjustment of their economic life when they are released.

Of the 1,400 odd of men here, only 24 (or less than 2 per cent.) had trades on their admission, and these were among the least remunerative of trades; 57 per cent. were, previous to their arrest, capable of earning less than $5 per week, and 20 per cent. from $8 to $10 per week. All these tradesmen, and others, were incapable of close and continuous application in labor, and so were but fugitively engaged or occupied, by which fault their legitimate income was still further reduced.

The Reformatory gives good instruction in 34 different trades, covering six mechanical groups, as follows: Wood working and finishing, Metal Working, Constructive and Fitting, Domestic, Decorative and Liberal, Typographical and Bibliopegic. Eleven hundred and six of the 1,400 inmates are now regular pupils in these classes, the remainder having graduated, being physically incompetent for trades work or had trades on admission. One hundred and twenty thousand feet of floor space is devoted to these classes. Of the 329 men paroled during the year, 324 went to trades acquired here, 4 had trades when received and but 1 received no trades instruction.

The Manual Training Experiment instituted at the beginning of the year, mentioned in the report for 1895, has progressed well, having regard to the embarrassments of it and the novelty of it for the purpose intended. It seems not impossible that the success of the experiment the coming year, when it is to be conducted better and on a larger scale, may greatly aid in solving the problem presented to the prison managers of New York by the new Constitution and the Laws to keep the prisoners constantly employed without producing commodities of value. It is probably destined also to reveal another useful agency for the reformation of very defective and incorrigible young criminals. The summary of results stated below will not appear to be unimportant when it is noted that the pupils, all of them, were irresponsive and incorrigible under the quite unusual array of operating agencies of the Reformatory regime; that the expert instructor at first selected, while well qualified technically, was insufficiently aggressive for the class of pupils sought to be trained; that the teachers selected from among the better inmates, as assistants, were untrained, and, so, scarcely competent; and that the coercive measures necessary to interest the uninterested of the pupils had then been temporarily suspended.

There were during the year assigned to this class 141 men of all the groups and subdivisions of groups for the completest possible adaptation of exercises to the end in view. Of the 141, improvement is shown by the severest test of improvement in the general ledger of records of every inmate as to 28 of them; improvement is observed and reported by the instructor of 17; and partial improvement (of matroids) is made in school work, but not in trade, of 6; 13 were withdrawn for invalidism, incorrigibility, etc.; 38 are to date still irresponsive; and 39 were too recently assigned to warrant expectations of improvement now.

The Manual Training Experiment Class will now at once be increased to 225, and during the year to 500 pupils.

Nothing worthy of note has been done, during the year, with the plan to better utilize food for reformation, mainly because the facilities—kitchen and dining-rooms—have not been constructed. The improvements which must needs be first made are progressing, and at the opening of next spring time the buildings and facilities necessary for the diet experiment will be promptly provided, and the experiment will be made.

There is every probability that the usefulness of the Reformatory to the State will remain unimpaired during the year before us. The staff of assistants to the General Superintendent is greatly strengthened, there is to be more time for the inmates to receive the training here provided, which will enable still closer classification and further organization, while past experience must give increased skill in administration.

Z. R. BROCKWAY,
General Superintendent.

Income and Expenditure.

Herewith is presented a statement of the receipts and disbursements for the year ending September 30, 1896. In the consideration of the various items no account has been taken of the value of the labor performed by inmates on construction or in special duties.

THE SCHOOL OF LETTERS.

PROF. A. D. CALL, DIRECTOR.

THE SPECIAL LECTURE COURSE.

The instruction given in the lecture department of the school of letters is a part of the general scheme of reformation for which the institution is maintained.

The specific aim co-ordinate of this general aim may be considered in the men taught, and the work undertaken.

The Men.—Ranging in age from 16 to 30, with an average age about that of men in college, there are observable the same differences in capacity and training as appear among college men. They are on the whole intellectually more mature than men of the same age found in the schools. Looking to the school training of the latter class, the men here have received a peculiar and in many ways valuable training in the school of the world, which has sharpened them and given a certain practical turn to their thinking.

In egotism, they equal, if they do not exceed, college upper class men.

They possess a certain intellectual alertness that is quick to discern truth or error.

With this alertness is a certain skeptical spirit, which habitually questions the correctness of statements made.

The membership of the classes in the lecture department is made up of those who have passed through the intermediate grades of the Reformatory School of Letters, and those whose training in public or private schools before their incarceration, has fitted them for doing the advanced work of this department. This latter class includes graduates from academies and high schools, and occasionally under classmen in college. What at first seems a very marked and undesirable disparity in age and preliminary training, disappears in the practical work of the classes, where the peculiar maturity of intellect of the men deficient in early school training, enables them to do quite as satisfactory work as those whose preliminary training might be counted more fortunate. These statements apply only to a portion of the population which, of course, includes many men of low mental quality, men who can never reach the lecture department of the school of letters.

The Work.—The aim of all the lecture work is practical. The narrow limits of institutional life which allow on an average, less than two years for the training of a man for free life in society, make it imperative that certain facts of immediate and constant use to the men, shall be presented. That which shall be useful and helpful is the thing which it is desirable to teach.

Two main purposes are kept constantly in view, intellectual and moral quickening. It is believed that the best results in character development are to be obtained by the symmetrical training of these powers together, rather than of each in isolation. The men are trained to think, to feel, and to act.

The Lecture.—Four lectures are delivered each week, one each in Practical Ethics, Nature Studies, History, English and American Literature. The lectures are attended in the Chapel, which is splendidly adapted to the purpose, and fitted up with stereopticon, blackboards, maps, charts, etc.

Each member of the class on entering the lecture receives a printed outline (usually four pages) of the lecture to be delivered.

The members of the class have the privilege of addressing notes to the lecturer asking for additional information on any one of the subjects treated.

The class in Practical Ethics is made up of the brightest men in the institution, including the inmate teachers of the school of letters. The average number is about 300. Any member forfeits his class privileges when reduced to the second grade. As membership in the class is counted a distinction, men in lower classes are ambitious for promotion, and men who have been reduced are anxious to be restored. That this should be so, is easily understood when it is known that every man is on an equal footing with every other member of the class, and with the instructor. There is the greatest possible freedom of debate and discussion, in which any man who wishes takes part. Questions are asked of any member of the class or of the instructor. The class is a check upon any abuse of these privileges, for where there are so many keen, alert minds ready to challenge any statement of fact, or of theory, it is dangerous for a man to make rash statements, as some member of the class is sure to call him to account. Though the sessions of the class are an hour and a half in length, it is very seldom that the bugle for dismissal does not sound in the midst of a very spirited and interested discussion, which the class reluctantly leaves. The work of the class is usually introduced by a brief lecture by the instructor. The purpose of this is to clear the way of difficulties, and to indicate the methods of approach by which the truth may be reached. The instructor does not give the class the truth. The class and the instructor are discoverers. It is believed that a truth which a man discovers for himself is of greater importance to him than that given to him without any effort of his own. This is especially true in morals, and it may be doubted whether moral truth gained at second or third hand has much practical value.

The work of the class during the past year has covered the general field of morals. In addition many social questions have been studied with great interest and it is believed with profit. During the progress of the Housesmiths' strike in New York city, the class was divided into two sections, one impersonating the employers, the other the employes. Citizens were invited in to sit as a committee of arbitration, and heard the statement of facts and arguments made by both parties to the dispute. Other questions discussed have been "Ethics of the Venezuelan dispute," "Ethics of the Raines Liquor Law," "What attitude should the United States maintain toward Cuba?" "The relation of the State to the Liquor Traffic," "The Ethics of Gambling," "The Ethics of the Money Question."

The class has been honored during the year by the presence of distinguished teachers and thinkers, who have added greatly to the interest and value of the session which they attended. Among these visitors were Mr. F. H. Wines, of Illinois; the Hon. Frank B. Sanborn, of Concord, Mass.; the Hon. Mr. McMullen, of Indiana; the Rev. Dr. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Professor Janes (president of the Brooklyn Ethical Society); Professor J. W. Jenks, of Cornell University, and Professor Faulkner, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The class in Nature Studies numbers on an average about 400 men. These men are of lower attainments than the members of the Ethics Class and in many instances, though not always, of lower intellectual and moral quality. Some will be promoted to the Ethics Class during their stay in the institution.

The aim of the work is to awaken in the men an interest in nature and to stimulate the imaginative faculty, which, in many, is very inactive, and in some instances seems almost, or quite, wanting. It is believed that the awakening of the imaginative faculty and the development of an interest in natural objects may lead up to an appreciation of the creative thought which has fashioned all these marvels, and so make possible the growth of the man's moral and spiritual nature, and a better conception of moral and religious duties.

As to form, the aim is to make these Nature Lectures simple and entertaining. The story of Nature has to be put in a language the men can easily understand and in a popular way that will interest. By the use of objects, charts, blackboards, drawings and stereopticon slides the attention of the men is attracted through the eye as well as the ear.

The field traversed with the class has been an extensive one, beginning with the studies about the stars, then passing to the studies of the earth, including the sea, the land, rivers, lakes, etc. Several months have been spent with studies in natural history, which has been perhaps the most interesting field traversed.

While the instructor does the most of the work members of the class are encouraged to describe objects seen, or places visited. Occasionally members of the class display close powers of observation. The interest of the class is evidenced by the large number of rocks, plants and insects collected by the men on the farm and brought to the class for identification. By questions on natural objects, or pictures of objects, the class is led to observe closely and to mark resemblances and contrasts.

The class in History numbers about 200 men. One-half of the year was spent in the study of American Politics, the rest of the year in the study of general history. The purpose of the study is to put the men in possession of the facts necessary to an intelligent appreciation of the privileges and duties of American citizenship. Popular measures are occasionally discussed by members of the class, and during the Presidential Campaign, one-third of each lecture period was used for the study of current political events.

The Class in Literature.— Number of men, 425. It is the conviction of the instructor that work in English and American Literature is particularly calculated to produce a refinement of thought and feeling in the class of men whose birth and training has left them deficient, especially in sensitiveness.

While a general survey of English and American Literature is made with reference to its historical development, it seems best that with the men in the Reformatory this should not be the sole end nor the highest end. While every work of literary art is the product of certain influences, it is better that our men should appreciate a masterpiece in itself and feel its power, than that they should know all about the forces that united to produce it, and yet not get the spirit of the work itself. The aim is to get the men immersed in the poem, or play, so that they shall be moved by its passion and touched by its power. That this is in some measure possible is evidenced by the almost breathless interest during the reading of literary masterpieces. I have been surprised at their appreciation of the beautiful in literary art.

The Result of the Work.— What are the results of your work? is a question frequently heard. In an institution like this, where there are a great number of helpful formative influences all the time in operation, it is not easy, indeed it is not possible, to say to just what influences a certain result is due. In his contact with the men the instructor observes with pleasure the development that is in progress. Intellectual development is very marked. How much of this comes from the school of letters and how much comes from other institutional sources, can not be known; it seems fair, however, to attribute some of it at least to the former source.

The work of the classes as measured by the monthly examinations is very satisfactory. The standard required for passing is 75 per cent. The work of the four classes for the month of October as shown by examination results, is as follows:

Class.	Number examined.	Passed.	Failed.
History	201	188	13
Literature	412	388	24
Nature Studies	392	350	42
Ethics (September)	278	246	22

Of the papers marked "passed" the percentages of the greater number were 85 or more, and quite a number deserved and were marked 100.

The mechanical execution of the examination papers in many instances is of an unusually high order. The penmanship and spelling compares more than favorably with that one sees in similar work done in academies and colleges.

SCHOOL DIRECTOR'S REPORT.

No where in the world of educational labor are there greater difficulties to be overcome, should there be such pedagogical skill employed, and, it should be added, are there broader fields for peculiar reward, than is realized in an honest effort to evolve from a criminous being a better semblance of a moral and intellectual man.

The school of letters does not aim to take young fellows from the lowest walks of life, some of whom can not read or write at all, many of whom know little of multiplication or division, most of whom know positively nothing of the simplest processes in factoring and decimals, and, in one year, to return them to the world educated and intellectually developed men. Rather, with proper consideration for the conditions peculiar to the environment here, the aim is to grade and systematize the school work in such a way that our inmates, of whatever mental or moral condition, can be taught, really, substantially, thoroughly taught, not in subjects covering a wide range of thought and investigation — as will be seen by studying the outline given below — but in an intense and vivid application of mind to practical business mathematics and to proper expression in language. It is aimed to make up in concentration what is necessarily sacrificed in the breadth of the instruction given.

A complete and accurate summary of the nature of the work done by the School Department during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1896, is given in the outline below.

A summary of the work covered by the men leaving the institution during the fiscal year is interesting.

Out of the 431 men leaving the institution 17 were foreigners, entering unable to speak the English Language, 14 of whom became able to pass their work satisfactorily in the English classes, 5 of whom reached the Intermediate, 3 the Academic Grade, and 1 became a teacher. Eighty-eight could read and write no language at all upon entrance, all of whom could read and write before leaving with the exception of two, who became insane. Twenty of these men reached the Intermediate Grade and 10 the Academic Class. Two hundred and fifty-five entered the Primary Grade, 204 of whom were advanced to the Intermediate and Academic Grades, whereas there were only 59 who entered the Intermediate standing, there were 157 graduated from it; and, while only 12 came to us of the Academic Class, there were 147 men who were of this class upon departure, 17 of whom were teachers in the School of Letters.

NATURE OF STUDIES.

Lecture Division and Subjects Taught.

"A" class, 195 pupils. History.

First term. Ancient.

Second term. Mediaeval.

Third term. Modern (European).

Fourth term. United States (American politics).

"A" and "B" classes, 405 pupils. Literature.

Study of popular authors, English and American prose and poetry.

"A" and "B" classes, 405 pupils. Ethics (Sunday).

Lectures covering general field of Ethics, followed by discussions upon practical problems of the day, particular attention being given to latter-day social problems.

Intermediate, 1 and 2; primary, 1 and 2, 397 pupils. Nature Studies (Sunday).

Beetles, Bugs, Flowers and the like. Familiar lectures on the Stars, the Earth, including Land and Sea, Physiology and the Laws of the Health.

Primary, 3, 4, 5, 6; evening kindergarten and foreign classes.

Third division (Sunday).

Lantern Lectures and the like.

Normal class, Tuesday and Friday evenings.

Instruction before inmate teachers in the science and practice of teaching.

LANGUAGE DIVISION.

Intermediate 1—90 pupils. Term, four months.

All marks of Punctuation, Composition, Prefix, Suffix, etc.; Business forms, Practical completed Language work; long memory gems each lesson.

Intermediate 2—94 pupils. Term, four months.

Compound Sentences, Complex Sentences, Difficult Spelling, Composition and Imagination exercises each lesson.

Primary 1—111 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Plurals, Possessives, Sex words, Business letters, Spelling and Composition; Imagination exercise and Memory gem each lesson.

Primary 2—102 Pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Modifiers, Quality words, Plurals, regularly and irregularly formed; Use of Apostrophe; Memory gem and Composition each lesson; Imagination exercises.

Primary 3—80 Pupils. (Three sections.) Term, four months.

Quotation marks, Quality words, Comparison, Punctuation, Letters of Friendship and Business, Memory gem and Spelling lesson; Imagination lessons.

Primary 4—77 pupils. (Three sections.) Term, four months.

Name words, Common and Proper; uses of Capital letters, Abbreviations, Use of Comma; easy Letter-writing; Oral exercises, Spelling, etc.

Primary 5—110 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Difficult word building; new words and their uses each lesson; changing declarative sentences to interrogative sentences, etc.; devices used in each lesson; transposition.

Primary 6—55 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Simple word-building; language taught by use of chart; pictures and other devices, new each lesson; simple word-building—to simple sentences.

Evening kindergarten—33 pupils. Special work.

Foreign classes.—French, 3 pupils; German, 7 pupils; Russian, 7 pupils; Hungarian, 3 pupils; Italian, 8 pupils; instruction in the English language, taught by translation; object lessons and the like.

ARITHMETIC DIVISION.

Set 1—70 pupils. Term, four months.

Percentage, profit and loss, partial payments, review, trade discounts.

Set 2—68 pupils. Term, four months.

Linear measurements; square measure, concrete application; Cubic measure, practical application; Miscellaneous problems in measurements.

Set 3—80 pupils. Term, four months.

Fractions, continued; difficult multiplication of Fractions; division of fractions; complex forms; general review; price, quantity and bills.

Set 4—86 pupils. Term, four months.

Fractions, fundamental work; Addition, application; Subtraction, application; General Review; Simple Multiplication.

Set 5—102 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Review of Decimals, Factors, Cancellation, Least Common Multiple, Greatest Common Divisor and Application, Practical concrete work.

Set 6—159 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Decimals, fundamental rules; Subtraction, Addition of Decimals; Multiplication, Simple Division; General application.

Set 7—131 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

Denominate numbers, Tables; Difficult Multiplication, Tables; Difficult division, Tables; General application in practical work involving tables learned.

Set 8—111 pupils. (Three sections.) Term, four months.

Notation and Numeration to 1,000,000; The four rules continued; Numbers to 10,000, addition, subtraction, multiplication and division; Practical application in concrete work; Review.

Set 9—104 pupils. (Three sections.) Term, four months.

Numbers to 10,000, addition and subtraction; Multiplication tables and reversals; Simple concrete work; U. S. money introduced.

Set 10—70 pupils. (Two sections.) Term, four months.

First month.—Mental Arithmetic, one-half hour; Slate work in Addition, Subtraction, Multiplication and Division of numbers up to and including 30, all possible combinations; attention lessons.

Second month.—Attention lessons; Mental Arithmetic, all possible combinations up to and including 50; Slate work; Drill on preceding combinations.

Third month.—Attention lessons; Mental Arithmetic continued; all possible combinations up to and including 100.

Fourth month.—Review, Drill and Clinch the work of the preceding three months.

Evening kindergarten—33 pupils. Term, four months.

First month.—Mental Arithmetic, Half-hour slate work; Addition, Subtraction, Multiplication and Division of numbers resulting to and including 10; Object lessons and pictures; Exercise on the "Clock Dial" and revolving blackboard; Attention lessons.

Second month.—Work of the first month continued up to and including 19; Attention lessons (R. B. B.); Mental Arithmetic; Slate work; Object and picture lessons.

Third month.—Attention lessons and Mental Arithmetic continued; All possible combinations up to and including 30; Slate work; Object and picture lessons.

Fourth month.—Review, Drill, Clinch the work of the three preceding months.

This report would not be complete without reference to the work being started in connection with the Manual Training Classes, having for its aim the development of mental quickening and self-control.

Since the beginning of the Intellectual branch of the Manual Training Class, mental power among some of the members has been manifestly improved, slowly but steadily.

The following summary of records, compiled after careful comparisons of markings in the evening classes, speaks well for the men who have partaken of this method of instruction.

Thirty-three per cent. have shown more or less improvement in their evening classes. Thirty-one per cent. have passed their Arithmetic examinations in the evening classes the last month (October) with high percentages, something they have been unable to do heretofore.

Thirty-six per cent. have shown no improvement, the necessity for disciplinary treatment causing their occasional absence and militating against progress.

The work, though in its infancy and largely experimental, promises much reward toward the development of the men whom it aims to assist. This so-called Intellectual branch of the work, so auspiciously begun under the Manual Training Department, is founded in the general principle that wholesome ideas properly associated lead to habits of right thinking which in turn make more easily possible a higher condition for living. The work, necessarily slow, aims to be thorough and interesting.

In conclusion: It is hoped, that in the year to come a more thorough and practical work will be accomplished in the School of letters even than in years past. A building devoted wholly to school work, with the new apparatus so essential to real progress, together with the possibility for more hours of instruction under the new law relating to Convict Labor, certainly make the prospects in this department brighter than ever before.

Respectfully submitted,

A. D. CALL.

Report of the Director of Trades School.

The Technological Department assumes the responsibility of providing with a trade every prisoner received into the institution not so equipped on admission. In the extended variety of trades offered it presents admirable facilities for accomplishing this purpose. Has the inmate the privilege of selecting his trade? No question is oftener asked by the visitor and inquirer about trade instruction than this. In so far as his choice may harmonize with the course to be pursued as revealed by the diagnosis of his case, he has, but no further. The visitor thinks the naming of his trade by the prisoner a gracious and humane privilege; the comptrollers of the Reformatory have found it to be an unreliable and dangerous criterion. All sorts of trifling and whimsical influences prompt a newcomer to his selection. An ignorant comrade may have told him while he was awaiting in jail his transference from the county in which he was convicted that plumbing was the only trade taught here worth having, while another acquaintance, who possibly was once an inmate himself, may have advised him to take bricklaying for the supposed reason that at that he would be able to earn his parole more quickly. Within a day or two after his arrival, the recruit is given an audience with the General Superintendent. At this conference the prisoner undergoes an exhaustive and catechetical interrogation, which, as a rule, discloses his species of criminality, and plans are there formulated for the treatment to be applied. The nature of the employment of his ancestors and his relatives, as well as the tendencies of the subject himself, are influential in fixing upon a trade for the novice. The majority do not express a choice. In certain other individual cases, when the granting of employment is vouched for by a manufacturer or business man friendly to the family, the particular vocation to be thus prepared for may determine the trade to which the subject is assigned. Once placed at a trade, he is held rigidly to its pursuit. Changes are rarely made, and never until the learner has shown unmistakably by indefatigable application his inability to make progress.

In this compulsory educational establishment there are certain peculiar conditions touching the relation of the prisoner to his trade learning which serve as potent incentives to action. The neophyte arriving at a classroom and beholding about him one or two hundred fellow-beings thoroughly aroused and intent on plying the details of their tasks, at once catches the prevailing spirit of animation and unconsciously follows example. It is a rare exception that the inmate does not take kindly to the work. Selfishness acts as a powerful stimulus. Even the crudest and most ignorant subject is impressed by the monetary value of the knowledge of a trade. The population of the institution, numbering about 1,500, with officials, is such a large consuming agent, that its needs call forth a quantity of raw material, which in its preparation for the maintenance of one department by another necessitates the practical application of the mechanic arts. In each trade division, work thus a certain number of men employed on what is locally termed state-mechanical construction and repairs. They are chosen from among the most advanced pupils, and as the character of the work offers greater variety and liberty of movement, it constitutes an extra incentive to progress in the regular school routine. But incomparably the most effective cause tending to concentrate the interest and energies of the prisoner upon his trade work takes a hold deeper down near the vitals of the reformatory principle, and lies in the fact that the subject is a prisoner and that his release from restraint depends in part upon such advancement. The showing made at his trade forms a component item in the monthly recapitulation of the inmate's record by which his progress in the Reformatory is judged, thereby directly lessening or prolonging the period of his detention here. To reach the upper grade and gain his parole, is an ambition ever present in his mind inspiring him to action.

Beyond the scope encompassed by the casual observer lie hidden in this industrial institute various processes conducive to the prisoner's progression, which are revealed only by a closer scrutiny of the training here established. One of these worthy of notice is the nicety with which the inmate's labor assignment, or the daily work he is given to perform, is correlated to his trade teaching. It is the practice to place him as far as possible at labor having a connection with or supplementing his trade instruction, this rule being enforced by the administration with an unswerving invariableness. No foreman nor officer about the institution has authority to change the work or duties of a prisoner, however humble such duties may be, without the sanction of the General Superintendent. And this is never granted by the General Superintendent until the prison registers, which show minutely every act — school, trade, labor and conduct mark — have been carefully examined, and the possible consequences of the change upon the training and treatment of the subject considered. The welfare of the inmate is held uppermost in mind, and is not made secondary to the sordid regard of how his services can be made to bring the greatest pecuniary return to the State.

Not the least of the means employed for leading the pupil along the pathway of his prescribed trade is the supplying for his perusal of technical literature. Trade journals form a considerable portion of the mail matter received at the prison and in various instances to meet the wants of large classes several copies of a periodical are taken. Their distribution is in the care of the librarian. The bindery first places a manilla board covering upon them after which they are ready for delivery. This latter is effected systematically so that a tradesman receives a journal devoted to his individual craft. The library contains a small collection of scientific and technical treatises and trade manuals which are furnished to the inmates upon application.

The inmate as a rule passes through the graded exercises of his trade course acquiring moderately fair skill as he progresses. But I would not be understood as conveying the idea that all the students advance regularly along the prescribed routine and become with no difficulty nor interruption finished mechanics. Side by side with the advantageous conditions for trade instruction, there exist also formidable hindrances which impede healthful progress. These are due to peculiarities in the material supplied. In the majority of inmates received there is an entire absence of any kind of wholesome training, not only of mechanical skill but of anything which has called for application, fixedness of purpose or concentration of thought. Observation and discriminating powers are lamentably deficient in them. They exhibit an astonishing ignorance of common things; the terms straight, square, vertical and perpendicular convey no well-defined meaning to their minds. Many such upon their arrival here if taken on a tour of observation through the different trade class-rooms would doubtless be unable to give the names of more than a dozen tools seen during the test. In this group mental powers and natural mechanical capabilities may not be wanting; they may be present as in the child undeveloped, and only a greater time may be needed to remedy the defects. Some few cases arise wherein the inmate fritters away his time hesitating to apply himself diligently to the acquisition of a trade upon the ground that it will never be of use to him as he does not intend to follow it. Fanciful notions of easier means of support may possess his mind, or false hereditary pride concerning the respectability and dignity of labor exist among his feelings. The latter is an actually observed circumstance and in the convict appears pitifully ludicrous: This class of obstacles is usually righted by a firm enforcement of the established discipline compelling trade learning.

The aggregate enrollment of pupils in the trades-school from October 1, 1895, to September 30, 1896, was 2,111. The excess of this over 1,810, which is given elsewhere in the Reformatory statistics as the number of men confined within this institution for the same period, is accounted for by the fact that some inmates received instruction in two trades. The subjoined tabulation shows the distribution of the pupils among the various classes, and also other particulars:

Of the 329 men paroled during the year past 177, or 54 per cent., went directly to employment at trades acquired at the Reformatory. These figures show correctly the ratio of the number of paroled men securing upon their departure positions as craftsmen, to the whole number paroled. But a just estimation of this most practical test of trades teaching should include the further consideration that 64 men were discharged from the Reformatory at the expiration of their maximum terms, and that these men having been detained here longer and thereby having received more trade instruction, were most invariably better equipped in this respect than the average prisoner who earned a parole. Men absolutely released do not thereafter report their circumstances to the General Superintendent, so that no data is at hand concerning the vocations adopted by them, but it is fair to suppose that a large percentage of them, by reason of their superior training, found employment at their respective trades.

Conjunctive with their trade lessons, the learners toiling in those branches to which a knowledge of draughting is helpful received instruction in mechanical drawing. This class assembled one evening a week, and was attended by 938 men, of whom 230 completed the course of study. Scientific workmanship is not sought in this department, the time allotted being inadequate. The aim is to impart to the students such useful principles as will enable them to read and interpret shop drawings. A synopsis of the work shows—geometrical definitions and problems, copying easy sketches, with special attention to learning scale drawing, orthographic projections of geometric models, detail drawing of machine parts, and the studying and explaining of finished drawings. Tradesmen in artistic lines, as wood-carvers and frescoers, omit the machine drawing and substitute therefor free-hand drawing. The length of the course is 14 months. It is divided into graded sections, each under the guidance of an inmate instructor, carefully chosen for the purpose. A normal drawing class for the coaching of inmate teachers holds sessions at stated times.

From October to May, inclusive, there met weekly a class in electricity numbering 26 pupils, which was instructed in the theory of the science as far as such is essential to the education of a practical workman. The subjects taken up included electrostatics, voltaic cells, electro-magnetism, simple electrical measurements, electro-plating, call bells and annunciators, telephones, dynamos, arc and incandescent lighting, motors and electric railways. The information was imparted by lectures illustrated experimentally with suitable apparatus which the class possesses. Supplemental to the lecture room lessons a thorough inspection and study of our own lighting plant was made. Written examinations were held every month. Eight pupils had the further opportunity afforded by the actual work of caring for the dynamos and motors about the institution. Two men were paroled to positions in electrical stations, for which their training here fitted them.

Every one of the earlier years of the past decade witnessed the addition of some new trade to the list of those already taught in the Reformatory, but the limit in the variety of manual arts that could be introduced into our school, as rendered possible by the available means to conduct classes in them and by the situations for their followers obtainable in the localities to which paroled men are sent, was attained a few years since. During every subsequent year, however, a few classes were, one by one, disunited from industries carried on here for profit or for the institutional maintenance, and were fitted out and reorganized as distinct undertakings, the increased benefit redounding to the pupils from such separation always warranting the change. Two examples of the foregoing occurred within the period covered by this report. A baking class for instruction purely, began its sessions on January 30, 1896. Equipments for its use were provided for 12 men in apartments discontinuous with the bake-shop wherein the baking for home consumption is done. The novitiates under the guidance of a citizen preceptor pursue, five afternoons a week, a series of graded lessons devised to afford practice in all parts of the trade. Graduates from the school of cooking are assigned to learn baking and vice versa. On September 7, 1896, a class in tailoring commenced operations. Prior to the formation of this class, the tuition in tailoring was that which was apportioned to a pupil's lot, who served as a workman in our domestic tailor shop, where production and not instruction held the ascendancy. With this arrangement it not infrequently happened that a man was kept at one process long after he had mastered the details of it, while he possibly remained ignorant of other operations that constitute equally as important divisions of his technism. Proficient pupils were advanced and intrusted with the more skilled parts of the work, to the exclusion of duller ones, upon whom there was not time for bestowing the care and patience essential to their making progress. The tailor was called upon not only to manufacture garments falling strictly within the province of the tailoring trade, but to do all sorts of miscellaneous sewing and mending exacted by the entire prison population. The quantity of this latter kind of work was considerable, and the men selected for its execution were thus diverted from any profitable instruction. The class was organized to insure more speedily practical training in tailoring to those inmates appointed to take up that branch, and who would be dependent upon their knowledge of the craft in earning a livelihood when liberated. Accommodations were provided for 12 pupils. They met forenoons five days in the week. It is intended to enlarge the membership to 28. The scheme is eventually to alternate this work with that of clothing cutting, the pupils to take up the former days and the latter evenings.

The extensions and improvements to the Reformatory buildings made within the year have offered to the industrial art workers nurtured in the trades-school, unusually valuable opportunities. Under the supervision of a small number of citizen foremen, corps of inmate artisans — chiefly masons, carpenters and painters — have erected several structures located here and there about the grounds, besides making alterations on the interior of one or two older buildings. Enumerating the principal additions begun and now in process of construction, there are, a bath-house, 35 by 194 feet, one story in height, and adjoining on the west the late Novelty Works; a two-storied edifice, 26 by 50 feet, superimposed upon the central section of No. 1 shop, and designed for the needs of the Photographic and Engraving Department; an enlargement, 41 by 75 feet, to the Boiler-house, for use as a coal depository, comprising a substory overlayed at the ground level by a floor of steel I-beams, having the intervals arched with brick work, an inclosure above ground covered by a steel trussed roof; and, lastly, a wing extending northward from the Administration Building, a portion, 19 by 24 feet, of which annex will be utilized for office purposes, while the remainder, a pavilion, 30 by 45 feet, will serve as an anteroom for visitors. These improvements, begun in June, furnished up to September 30 employment to an average of 6 stonecutters for 100 days, 17 bricklayers for 54 days, 19 carpenters for 66 days, and 6 painters for 53 days. None of them are completed and the work is continuing. Out of a legislative appropriation of $75,000 granted for carrying on these building operations, there is yet available for finishing constructions started and for making further changes, approximately $60,000, which fact holds out favorable prospects that in the succeeding year an abundance of trade practice will be supplied from this source.

There have been constructed by the technological classes for the use of the wood-turning sections 11 lathes similar to the one portrayed herewith. The design was wrought out by the force in the trades school office; the patterns were made by the pattern-making class; the castings were molded by the pupils learning molding; while the machinists' class did the necessary machine-tooling and fitting to produce the finished lathes. Projects of this character, embodying essentially practical exercises, evoke the best skill developed among the pupils, and are executed by the "state mechanical" divisions of the trade classes. These lathes have a swing-over bed of 13 inches, and a length of bed of 5 feet. The beds, legs and other stationary parts are made heavy to afford rigidity. A unique feature of the machine is the clamping device. By a movement of the lever through one-quarter of a revolution the carriage is simultaneously gripped to both the hand rest and the V-ways upon the bed. This mechanism permits the placing of a cross piece between the two side girders of the bed, and midway from the ends, which brace aids in maintaining the alignment of the centers. Eleven new lathes were completed and put into operation, with results so satisfactory that the building of 15 others were immediately commenced.

The main bulk of the efforts exerted for the advancement of the interests of the trade classes have been expended upon minute details of an importance not deserving a mention singly, but of a decided significance in the totality. Easy it is to comprehend how a revision of the course of study made in this class, a correction of an error or strengthening of a weak part accomplished in that, and an addition of a new machine supplied to some other, can be extended throughout 35 separate classes without effecting signal or apparently noticeable alterations in any individual instance. The year's work in the trades-school department has been fruitful of such gradually enacted betterments. No class has retrograded; not a few have materially improved alike in facilities possessed, curricula followed and results achieved. A half dozen itemized particulars will suffice to illustrate. In cabinet-making there was prepared a new and carefully planned gradation of practice tests set forth by drawings suitably adapted to bench use. For the wood-carvers considerable labor was devoted to the execution of design that, following in an orderly sequence, would furnish technically useful discipline and typify different styles of ornament. The appurtenances of the steamfitting class were augmented by an outfit which enabled the carrying on of the work quite as in actual business performances. Four booths, 8 by 8 feet, on a platform raised somewhat above the floor were partitioned off and each provided with radiators. These, and also a boiler, steam pump, injector, steam trap, and other fittings disposed conveniently about the room are connected and afterward rearranged to give instruction in their usage and application conformably to the different systems of steam heating. To the paraphernalia in the machine shop came the acquisition of a twist drill grinder and a revolving pyramidal case, both for use in the tool-room, and of a power hacksaw for general shop purposes. An increase to the appliances belonging to the machine wood-working class was made by the transfer from the cabinet manufacturing industry of a Fay's No. 5 universal woodworker—a complicated machine affording excellent training in its adjustment and manipulation. The outlined pursuits of the carpentry class were amended to good account by the insertion of more house-construction exercises. A regrouping of the benches gave the necessary space to accommodate two buildings 14 feet in height, one with floor surface 14 by 14 feet, and the other 15 by 24 feet. Five lessons, requiring 186 hours to complete them, are spent upon such constructive practice. The house-building divisions engage, on an average, 18 carpenters. To facilitate the classification of the work and aid in confining the pupils to their respective lessons, one house is undergoing the rough processes, as placing joists and setting studding, while the other is receiving the finishing touches, the workmen being accordingly divided into two squads.

Most telling of the results deriving origin from trades-teaching are those to be found in the industrial and technical pursuits embarked in by the Reformatory graduates when returned to free citizenship. To exemplify, some cases are hereunto appended:

Consecutive No. 6889 was admitted March 5, 1895. Had been previously a cabinet-maker's apprentice. Received instruction in same trade here. Paroled July 6, 1896, finding employment at cabinet work; wages, $28 per month.

Consecutive No. 7111 arrived July 13, 1895. Formerly employed as a bookkeeper; salary not stated. Learned stenography and typewriting in our trades school. Paroled August 7, 1896, and secured work at his trade, receiving $32 per month.

Consecutive No. 7089 was brought to the Reformatory July 2, 1895. Prior to his commitment had followed the vocation of a professional jockey, his pecuniary returns therefrom netting him at one time $8,500 per year. Was taught frescoing here. Paroled August 11, 1896, entering painter's employ in the capacity of frescoer; wages, $1.50 per day.

Consecutive No. 6624 was received September 22, 1894. Had before worked in a stable, and as a delivery boy. Was assigned to learn printing at this institution. Paroled April 9, 1896, to a position at his trade, earning $12 per week.

Consecutive No. 6685 reached here October 27, 1894. Had been for some time back a race track bookmaker's clerk. Pursued in our trades school the courses of moulding and clothing cutting. Paroled February 10, 1896, and obtained a situation as a cutter; salary, $52 per month.

Consecutive No. 7144 came to the Reformatory August 21, 1895. Had been in the past a bookkeeper and salesman at $23 per week. While here took up bricklaying and plastering as trades. Paroled August 26, 1896. Went to work as a bricklayer; wages, $60 per month.

Consecutive No. 7087 made his entrance into this institution July 27, 1895. For some time back had been engaged in the occupations of advertising solicitor, clerk, bartender, proprietor of saloon, lastly stockkeeper, with income of $12 per week. Acquired the machinists' trade here. Paroled August 26, 1896, getting employment as a machinist, earning $2.25 per day.

Consecutive No. 6267 was admitted December 11, 1893. Formerly had filled a place as bookkeeper. Was taught stenography and typewriting in our trade class. Paroled May 9, 1895, to a clerkship at the Reformatory while seeking a position elsewhere. Left here January 1, 1896, engaging as a stenographer and bookkeeper, receiving $75 per month.

The higher and nobler intellectual and moral effects of trades-teaching upon the convict are likewise directly traceable. The learner becomes awakened to a realization that accuracy and neatness have not only a marketable value but a charm and beauty peculiar to themselves. Just to the extent that taste is developed will a desire for a higher existence be enkindled. It is a constantly-recurring and pleasing gratification to note the new hopes aroused in the minds of the pupils as they first experience the consciousness of an ability actually to shape and produce a useful article of skill. Habits of thrift are inculcated. The possession of the means of gaining an honest living materially strengthens the power to resist the impulse to secure a dishonest one. A note that came to the writer's desk a few days since from a pupil making a request about the details of his trade most clearly elucidates this. We quote the subjoined extract: "If you will grant me the opportunity of learning job composing in connection with my knowledge of type-setting I can assure you of my leading an honest life. Such knowledge would be the means of a thorough reformation in me than all the coercive power that could be brought to bear." It is simply impossible that a man should pass through a course of trade school lessons without the exercise of considerable thinking, and it is equally impossible that he should use such thinking power without important mental and moral improvement. It may not be unfitting to point out that training of the nature here mentioned is diametrically antagonistic to the idea given expression in an occasionally advanced criticism that the Reformatory treatment serves only as a temporary check to criminal motives. A man can not use his brain for a year and then suddenly stop thinking, at least, only through the instrumentality of surgery, excessive and unnatural actions or malignant diseases.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MEMORANDA OF RESULTS, ETC.

Unfavorable general conditions should be noted as follows:

1. During the first stages of the experiment, the class was in charge of a technically competent, but insufficiently aggressive instructor for the class of pupils sought to be trained.

2. The teachers selected from among the inmates to assist the Director of the class have so far been untrained and scarcely competent.

3. The coercive measures necessary to interest the uninterested of them have been temporarily suspended.

4. Most of the earlier assignments were of men who had already served the greater part of their maximum terms, and were, consequently, not influenced by the incentive of premature release.

White, 8; colored, 5.

The deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis were, according to color, white, 1; colored, 3. Of the 24 cases of tuberculous disease in Hospital, 15 were white and 9 colored. It appears from the above that plus 30 per cent. of the year's mortality was due to tuberculous disease; and of those dying in consequence of tuberculosis, 25 per cent. were white and 75 per cent. colored.

The number of transfers to the Matteawan State Hospital is in excess of former years, classified as follows:

Dementia	5
Mania	8
Melancholia	10
Total	23

Of the above, two had previously been insane and treated in State hospitals. Two men were returned to the Reformatory from Matteawan.

In Witthaus and Becker's "Medical Jurisprudence, Forensic Medicine and Toxicology," Dr. E.sher, notes: "Among those confined in institutions, mentalase is not uncommon. Here it is also that the different forms of insanity are often feigned in order to avoid work or to procure hospital treatment." Kirn also states that imprisonment frequently operates as an individual predisposing cause of insanity. The age of the majority of reformatory inmates and consequent tendencies to the neural disorders of adolescence, the nervous instability and mattoid tendencies of many that formerly found expression in roving lives characterized by an absence of application and effort along legitimate lines of livlihood, under the routine and methodical living incident to imprisonment and the withdrawal of the stimulus of change and excitement, the concomitants of former living, operate to bring into the foreground and greater prominence latent or suppressed mental defects. Then, too, there has been a more liberal interpretation of mental alienation than in the past and "insanity of conduct" has in certain instances been referred to lesions of the mind. Of those committed to Matteawan as insane, and prior to being so adjudged, nine were instances of crankism, "borderland dwellers," and might properly be termed mattoids; eight were psychopaths deficient in inhibitory power and subject to recurring nervous explosions; and seven gave a faulty family history of alcoholism in the case of the father and epilepsy and insanity of brother or sister. The element of auto-sexual perversity entered into all the cases, and in certain ones was the immediate factor in the production of insanity. Dr. E. C. Spitzka declares: "The prognosis of the psychoses associated with masturbation in males is bad." A few, not a majority, however, of the class of cases last named are returned to the Reformatory as cured or improved, but they are nevertheless either weakened in body or warped in mind. The sojourn of the balance in the hospital for the insane is prolonged till the expiration of their time, when they are transferred to other hospitals or given over to the care of friends. Two questions present themselves. Shall such be asexualized, their mental and physical power conserved or an asylum existence and a life of helplessness and dependence ensue? There is an interest attaching from an ethical and economic point of view to extreme cases of this class. What are the rights of the individual; and how far can the State or its agents, after he has placed himself in custody by operation of law for his mal-conduct, proceed in protecting him from himself and preserving him to the commonwealth as a capable and efficient wage earner, preventing him from becoming a public charge? There is no question but what he has the right to give expression to his morbid inclinations without other penalty than the contempt of his fellows, so long as he does so in private, does not offend public decency, makes no attempt upon his own life, nor commits an assault as the direct outcome of the nervous and mental condition in which he has placed himself. But is this right to remain unquestioned and unchallenged when excessive indulgence tends to mental hebetation and subversion of intent and ability for self-support? In this connection three propositions suggest themselves. 1. Have prison officials, without liability of rendering themselves open for damages, the right to asexualize, or sterilize against his will, a sexually morbid prisoner, when indications for such surgical procedure are manifest; and is there the same justification for recourse to surgery as in the amputation of a crushed limb, the operation for the relief of a strangulated hernia, and the elevation of depressed bone in the fracture of the skull, performed upon the person of a dissenting convict? 2. Is a convict serving his sentence competent to execute an instrument declaring his wish to be asexualized and granting immunity from damages for abrogation of sexual capacity? If he be a minor can he so consent without the concurrence of parents or guardians, and could the latter, without his consent, authorize his asexualization? 3. Or such consent having been voluntarily given and subscribed to in the presence of witnesses in due form, can he at the termination of his imprisonment maintain a suit for damages? If as above stated, can the factor of imprisonment in the case be construed as coercion, operating to obtain the consent above named, and become the basis for litigation? The presence of female visitors in a male correctional or penal institution is stimulating and disturbing to the class of men under consideration, and in every way detrimental.

As a corollary of the year's experience in mental diseases more instances of feigned insanity have occurred (16) than the aggregate of the three or more preceding years. The subtle means of communication obtaining in penal institutions whereby a knowledge of the occurrences in one department is transmitted to another, and throughout the prison, has carried to the inmates a cognizance of the transfers to Matteawan. The knowledge of current events in this particular, reacted upon other inmates. To the neuropath it suggested a means of rendering himself conspicuous, receiving hospital care, escaping from task and routine uncongenial and distasteful, and the possibility of effecting a transfer to a hospital for the insane, where, according to prevailing ideas, eating, relaxation and sleep—but no work, round out the day. Simulation of insanity is undertaken by the crafty in the hope of deceiving the authorities of the Reformatory to the extent of accomplishing a transfer to Matteawan, where it is not supposed detention will be prolonged beyond a time necessary for the alienist to recognize the part being played. Another feature of the scheme is the hope indulged that being returned to the Reformatory as a malingerer, and after the fraud practiced, there will be a re-transfer elsewhere and where tobacco and exemption from school work are desiderata. A few of the cases of feigned insanity were directly traceable to the system prevailing in a majority of county jails where tramps, vagrants, misdemeanants, ex-convicts, those accused of crime and awaiting trial, detained witnesses, etc., young and old, in promiscuity associate in the bear pit, comparing experiences and giving pointers regarding various institutions.

July 1st a law became operative materially changing the manner of commitment to Matteawan of insane prisoners. Prior to this, time transfer was had upon the certification of insanity by the physician of the Reformatory, indorsed by the General Superintendent. Under the provisions of the new law the physician certifies to the Superintendent that A. is of unsound mind, stating his reasons for such opinion. Application is thereupon made to the County Judge for the appointment of a commission in lunacy. The judge appoints as such commission two physicians who are qualified examiners in lunacy. They thereupon examine the alleged lunatic and report their finding to the judge, who, in the event of the case being declared upon oath to be one of insanity, issues an order of transfer to Matteawan. The expense of a commission in lunacy is a charge upon the Reformatory.

In 1895, between July 26th and September 1st, occurred 8 cases of typhoid fever; and 12 cases in 1896, between February 7th and March 5th, or about 20 cases included in two outbreaks of the disease, with an interval of five months, during which time not a case presented itself. At the time of the appearance of the disease in 1895, the Reformatory was obtaining its water supply from the West Hill reservoir of the city system. Suspicion attaching to this water, its use was limited to bathing and steam purposes, and resort was had to a nest of wells at the base of the hill for water for cooking and drinking. This arrangement, which continued till January 28, 1896, was followed by an immediate subsidence of the disease. The rains and thaws occurring in the early part of January had renewed the depleted supply and filled the State reservoir, so that it was deemed advisable to make use of the water system of the Reformatory. In ten days from the time of turning on the water of the State reservoir there was a case of typhoid fever, and 12 cases within a period of 27 days, two of which terminated fatally. Recourse was again had to the wells, and, as before, there was a prompt subsidence of the epidemic. In the meantime the water of the State reservoir was examined and pronounced nonpotable. Throughout the spring and summer and up to the present time the Reformatory has had a dual water supply. The State reservoir and city system (to which it was necessary to again return) have furnished water for power and bathing, while that required for drinking and domestic use has been obtained from the wells. A pure and abundant water supply is one of the most urgent needs of the Reformatory and should receive the consideration of the managers, that the responsibility for increased sickness, and perhaps mortality, shall not be theirs in the event of failure to correct this most vital error in the Reformatory economy. The capacity of the wells is limited and not equal to all demands of the Institution. It is a question if they would not altogether fail in a season of prolonged drought. The Reformatory has outgrown its original water supply. There are physical conditions in connection with the impounding reservoir system that cause it to be a constant menace to health. A run, dry during the greater portion of the year, empties into the reservoir, and is the only source of supply, carrying water thence during the storms of fall and spring, at the breaking up of winter, and after an unusual downfall of rain, in excess of the immediate absorbing power of the earth. It drains an area of about eight square miles. Scattered over this territory are four farm-houses, with usual complement of outbuildings, barns, etc., the drainage of which is naturally into the run, and eventually, by wash, into the reservoir. The conditions somewhat resemble those that prevailed at Plymouth, Pa., in 1895, when polluted water caused an epidemic of typhoid fever with a mortality of 114, 10.3 per cent. of the total number of cases. The reservoir in summer is practically a stagnant pool, and its water offensive to smell and taste, from decomposition of vegetable matter and insufficient aeration.

In accordance with legislative enactment, the Bertillon system of measurements for identification has been adopted. All men are now measured accordingly on admission, and as rapidly as possible the system is being applied to those committed prior to its adoption. The plan of measurement is based upon "the almost absolute immutability of the human frame after the twentieth year of age," and comprises measurements of the head, including length and width of skull and length and width of right ear, length of left foot, left middle and little finger, and left forearm, height standing and sitting, and reach of outstretched arms, 11 measurements in all. The history of the Reformatory in the past has been that 57 per cent. of those admitted were between the twentieth and twenty-fifth year; or, 57 per cent. were adolescents, and 33 per cent. had but just entered upon manhood. The opinion of those having the greatest experience in anthropometry whom the writer has been able to consult is that, in this country, the maximum of bony growth is not attained much before the twenty-fifth year. The value of the measurements of Reformatory inmates taken at admission under the Bertillon system, and for purposes of future identification, remains to be determined, since 90 per cent. of men in the past were under the age-growth limit as stated. A reference to the anthropometrical tables of the report for 1895 gives 20 years and 8 months as the average age upon admission, 87 per cent. being under 25 years of age. Corresponding tables for 1896 do not materially differ.

The work of the gymnasium has been in excess of that of any previous year since its completion in 1889, as follows:

Carried over from 1895.....	34,	4.40 per cent.
Assigned in 1896 for special morbid physical conditions	81,	10.60 per cent.

Special assignment, account of cessation of certain industries	110,	14.50 per cent.

New men upon admission	538,	70.50 per cent.
Total	763,	100.00 per cent.

The 115 treated for special morbid conditions included convalescents from acute diseases, instances of chronic disease susceptible of improvement through systematized exercise, and others suffering from impaired function of one or more systems of the body not sufficiently pronounced to reveal actual lesion of the same. The office of the gymnasium in treatment of these cases was supplementary to the hospital. The specific conditions, reasons for selection, hope of accomplishment, and results obtained in similar cases have been set forth and in detail repeatedly in former reports, and to narrate the same at this time would be repetitious. The cessation of certain industries in anticipation of the suspension of all productive labor on or before December 31st next, in accordance with Constitutional provision, except along a few narrow and restricted lines, has caused the assignment of a number of men for the conservation of their health. This fact is suggestive of thought as to the future. The plan adopted last year of placing all newcomers in the gymnasium for a season was so satisfactory that it has been continued, and 538 indefinites, plus the small number of definite men, have received the benefit of supervised gymnasium work. Gymnasium work is especially indicated in the case of new arrivals who reach the Reformatory in a condition to a greater or less degree of physical inertia and depreciation. The causes are many and varied, and are to be sought for in the excesses, dissipation and privation, severally and collectively, that a large number have indulged in and been subjected to. The excessive use of tobacco by a majority, tending during the growth period to a stunting of the body, enfeeblement of mind, and disorders of the nervous system; undue sexual activity, naturally and abnormally, indulged in with the inevitable sequellae of disease and nervous disturbance; poverty and insufficient nourishment; confinement while awaiting trial in unsanitary jails — often prolonged many months, with inadequate exercise, may be named as a few of the factors of physical depreciation.

It is now eight years since the military system was introduced into the Reformatory. This feature survived the cause of its introduction (the Yates bill prohibiting prison industry, subsequently repealed), and has to the present time included in its operation all not physically incapacitated. In 1889, with the facilities afforded by the completion of the gymnasium, physical education on a rational and liberal plan was entered upon for the benefit of those markedly in arrears corporally. The synchronous operation of the two for a period of seven years has furnished opportunities for a comparative study of the relative merits of each in the physical rehabilitation of the average inmate and his establishment upon such a basis of health as confers the greatest susceptibility and responsiveness to efforts put forth in his behalf along lines of handcraft, intellectual quickening, and moral awakening.

The military system, while being of value in its relation to health and deserving of consideration for reasons not within the province of this report to discuss, is not, in the opinion of the writer, as comprehensive and far-reaching from a hygienic standpoint as systematized and progressive gymnastics. An authority (Dr. E. M. Hartwell) well known through his writings and teaching, thus epitomizes physical education and the four conditions it must meet in order to be successful: 1. It must have a direct and large effect upon the health of the pupils. It must build up vitality. The large muscular groups of the body, the muscles of the back, the waist, the chest, the thighs, must be made to contract with vigor a large number of times. It is through such vigorous contraction of these large groups that the heart is strengthened, the lungs are brought to their best condition of development, and the digestive system is stimulated to more perfect action. Upon the satisfactory working of these three systems health and vigor largely depend. 2. There should be that training which will confer skill in handling the body. The hands, arms and body should be trained to act with skill and activity. A high degree of co-ordination should be rendered easily possible. The muscles of the trunk and the nerve centers governing them must be brought into that condition of discipline which will enable them to act with the greatest readiness and freedom. The lack of development of the nerve centers is intimately connected with many nervous diseases. 3. There should be secured that control of the body which we call good carriage, graceful, vigorous action, not merely in walking, but in all other of the positions and exercises which are required of men. 4. The psychological elements, courage, coolness, self-control and self-reliance should be prominently brought out.

Military training does not sufficiently meet the above four conditions, and especially in an aggregation of young men such as met with here whose unwholesome past is not far removed, and who, while yet in the plastic age, exhibit the effects of gross dissipation and intemperate participation in all that appeals to their sensuousness. The exercises and tactics are not sufficiently far reaching to develop the great group of muscles and then react with adequacy upon the nervous, circulatory, respiratory, digestive and eliminative systems. The movements of the manual of arms are restrictive, and tend to a unilateral, rather than a bilateral, development of muscles, and fail to yield the same results as obtained in the gymnasium by light gymnastics, and the use of the wand, bar, bell, Indian clubs and striking bag. Even with the full tactics of the United States army it is impossible to obtain such muscular development and control as is possible with gymnastics; and, unless the writer be in error, light gymnastics are in vogue and obligatory in the United States military and naval academies, are prescribed for enlisted men at the various posts and employed by the military nations of Europe as the result of experience, and the conclusion of physiologists that sound health is not obtained through use and development of special muscles in the performance of specific acts, but in the synchronous and harmonious development of all muscles of the body. Concerning the second feature, skill in handling the body. The movements of the manual of arms, limited in number as they are, require comparatively little skill in their execution when once acquired, and are performed automatically to a greater or less degree. The experience here has been that the lowest class of men learn these movements and acquire a degree of precision comparing favorably with those more highly endowed, and with practically no beneficial physical results. It can not be said that graceful carriage, one of the essentials of a correct physical training, is found to result from military training. The prisoner acquires an accuracy of step and correct alignment in marching, but round shoulders and an improper pose of the body remain unremedied. Or there may result from teaching the men to march an unnatural rigidity of the arms and stilted carriage. In quick step and double time the gait is shuffling, the foot striking upon the heel instead of the toe, and knee action is imperfect. Individual and not collective training is indicated. Allowance for these defects must, in part, be made for the crudeness of the men, and the fact that the advantages they enjoyed in early life for the training of the body and the mind were limited or ignored. From a psychological point of view the military system is of decided advantage in some particulars. A large number of inmates, prior to incarceration, rarely, if ever, came in contact with any form of discipline or government to which they yielded without hesitation or argument, and where, should they prove recalcitrant, such methods were adopted as to soon bring them to a recognition and acceptance of constituted authority. For such recalcitrants a military system has no attractions, and not infrequently operates to cure them of their contumacy. Again, the elevation of an inmate to a minor office, with restricted authority over his fellows, increases self-respect, confers self-reliance, and compels a certain amount of coolness and courage, besides giving expression to justifiable pride in his elevation over his fellows as a result of the confidence imposed in him. And not least, such elevation to power and responsibility, something entirely new to many, is an excellent test of character. The enforced attention to personal appearance, cleanliness and order, the blacked boots, clean belt, polished buckle, and buttoned coat mark an introduction to polite amenities and conscious wants. There is no advantage derived from the military that can not be obtained in other ways. From time to time the military organization has participated in light gymnastics. The benefits accruing therefrom have been such as to suggest their more frequent employment with profit, and particularly during the coming year, with cessation of productive industries for all save a few engaged in the manufacture of necessities for local use. Facilities for such training already exist.

With the introduction of the manual training department, a description of which appears elsewhere, light gymnastics and calisthenics have been employed therewith for pedagogic purposes, founded upon the experience of others and our own in past years in the treatment of mental, moral and physical defectives. These have comprised a series of systematized out-door gymnastics and athletic exercises under the immediate supervision of the director of the physical education department, and with the approval of the physician. Three classes have been organized to meet the individual requirements of as many groups comprising the manual training class, viz.: 1. Mathematical dullards. 2. Those lacking in self-control. 3. And the stupids or mattoids.

Group 1. The mathematical dullards.— These were incapable of solving the most elementary problems in mental arithmetic, or else did so with hesitation and difficulty. They were instances of sluggish and dragging walk, and presented a sleepy and dreamy appearance at work or in repose. They suggested arrested mental growth. From a careful study of these men, by observation and immediate contact, exercises were selected that would tend to react upon their defects. In addition, the exercises prescribed necessitate the direct employment of their mathematical faculties. The following schedule was adopted, although subject to constant change as occasion for change presented itself. The exercises of this group, as with the others, are confined to one hour's practical work five days per week. The men receive a daily rain bath and rubbing down immediately after their exercises. With this group the hour is divided into sessions of half hour each, subdivided into periods of fifteen minutes. The first fifteen minutes are devoted to light calisthenics executed by command, with loud counting and simultaneous movements. This is followed by fifteen minutes of marching and facing movements, with step counting. The first fifteen minutes of the second half hour are occupied in the laying out of geometrical fields for athletic events, employing the 50-foot tape and the 2-foot rule with divisions of an inch. After being instructed as to dimensions they are required to lay out the following: (a) baseball diamond; (b) basket ball field; (c) track for 30 and 50-yard running races; (d) placing of hurdles at intervals, in harmony with established athletic field rules. The closing fifteen minutes embraced practical work, viz.: High and broad jump, hop, skip and jump, high kicking, target throwing, etc. Each feat was measured and recorded by the performer, allowing him an opportunity to ascertain for himself, his daily decline, progress or fluctuation.

Group 2. Those deficient in self-control.—The members of group 2, compared with those of groups 1 and 3, are physically of better quality. In general appearance they show a better all-around physical development; and if, in some instances, the deteriorating effects of sexual abnormality were not so apparent, this class would, in the performance of athletics, compare favorably with the scholar outside the prison walls. In the general performance of their work they have shown more interest than either group 1 or 3, and in some instances have acquired skill in some of their athletic branches. The tendency of the athletics selected for this group by the gymnasium director was of a nature conducive to the cultivation and encouragement of self-control and self-reliance among the members, as shown by the spirit of good fellowship displayed by the successful toward the unsuccessful player, and in a measure subduing the ebullition of passion and the spirit of jealousy that formerly pervaded their every action in competitive contests. Still, there has always been maintained a healthy rivalry between the opposing factions in their different games and tests. It can be safely asserted that one essential feature in athletics, viz., will power, which was conspicuous at the start by its absence, has been strengthened and inculcated, especially in this group. "Who follows all things, forfeiteth his will." So it was with these men at the inauguration of athletics as a supplementary feature of the manual training class. It was observed by the director, perhaps by their exuberance of animal spirit, that the men were prone to make frequent excuses for changes from one game to another, instead of striving to excel in one branch. Another observable feature was their attempts to shirk the exercises that required any exertion on their part. These defects have been remedied, not entirely, but sufficiently to justify the efficiency of athletics as a factor in the production of self-control; and instances can be cited of complete subordination of will to the controlling powers.

Group 3. The stupids or mattoids.—The members of this group are not far above the standard of feeble-minded boys. They are what might be termed all-around defectives. The object of the athletics selected for this group has been to arouse and awaken them from the lethargic state into which they periodically relapse. This has been in a measure accomplished, a great aid to which has been the daily rain bath. The following physical defects (some of which have been remedied wholly or in part) came under my observation: General weakness, weak chest (respiratory organs), bent carriage of the body, stiffness of wrist joints and clumsy movements of fingers, spinal curvature, extreme (comparative) development of right arm. To overcome these defects systematic exercise was necessary, including free-hand exercise, club swinging, dumb-bell exercise, etc., meted out according to the respective deficiencies and requirements of the men. This group also spent one-half hour in practical out-door gymnastics and athletic work. After a general resume of the work accomplished, it can be safely asserted that out-door athletics and gymnastics have proven to be, in a measure, a prophylactic for a number of ills these three groups of defectives are subject to.

There were received during the year 538 men with indeterminate sentences, as follows:

White	492, 91.45 per cent.
Black	35, 6.50 per cent.
Mulatto	11, 2.05 per cent.
Total	538

The tables of measurements and strength tests published in 1895 were so favorably received by those interested in anthropometry that similar tables of those committed in 1896 are herewith appended. The two years' tables combined represent the measurements of 1,067 men. The similarity of the two sets of tables is noteworthy.

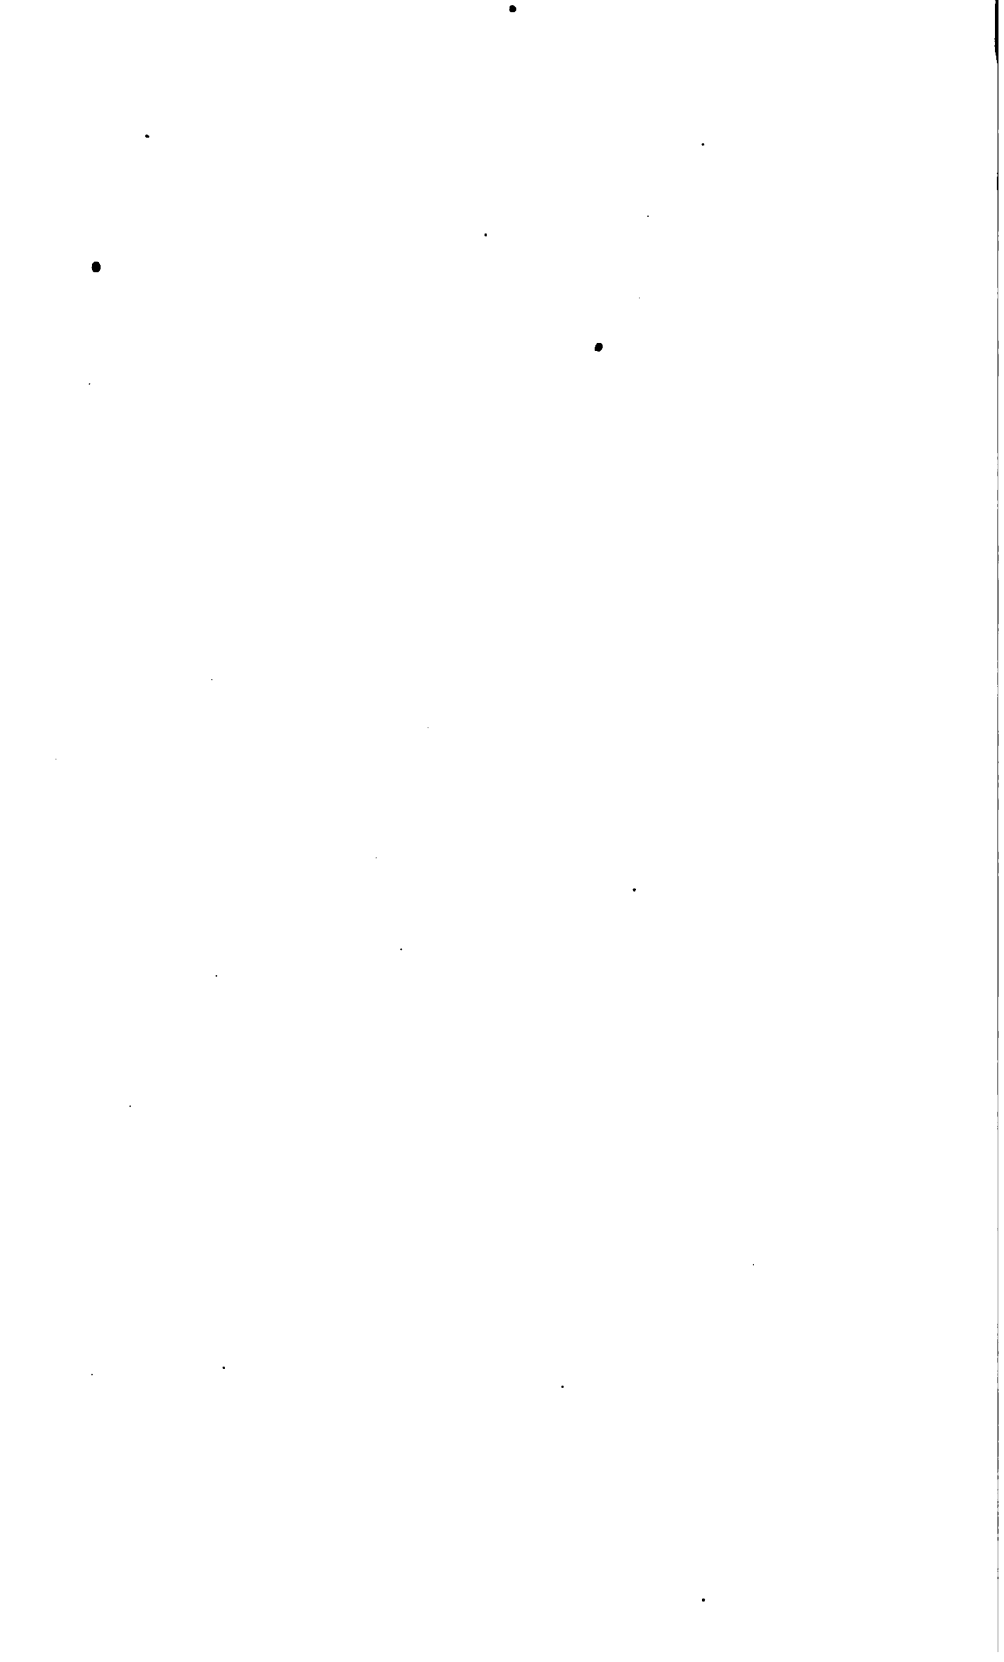

After an acceptable service of one and a half years as assistant physician, Dr. George A. Rogan, resigned his position to enter private practice.

All of which is submitted.

ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

Superintendent of the Onondaga Salt Springs.

SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE,

SYRACUSE, January 9, 1897. }

To the Hon. JAMES M. E. O'GRADY,

Speaker of the Assembly:

DEAR SIR.—I have the honor herewith to transmit to the Legislature my annual report as Superintendent of the Onondaga Salt Springs, exhibiting the state of the manufacture of salt and the condition of the works.

CHAS. HISCOCK,

Superintendent.

REPORT.

Pursuant to the requirements of the statute respecting the salt springs and the manufacture of salt, the undersigned, Superintendent of the Onondaga Salt Springs, submits to the Legislature the following report:

INSPECTION OF SALT.

The whole amount of salt inspected on the Onondaga Salt Springs Reservation, in and near the city of Syracuse, during the year 1896, is 2,806,601 $\frac{2}{3}$ bushels, of 56 pounds each.

Of this quantity 342,178 $\frac{1}{4}$ bushels have been produced in the fine salt works by artificial heat, and 2,464,422 $\frac{3}{4}$ bushels in the coarse salt works by solar evaporation.

The inspection in the several districts into which the reservation has been partitioned has been as follows:

	Bushels.
Fine salt	151,012 $\frac{2}{3}$
Solar salt.....	706,849 $\frac{2}{3}$
Total	857,861 $\frac{2}{3}$

Fine salt	48,414 $\frac{1}{2}$
Solar salt.....	104,280 $\frac{1}{2}$

	Bushels.
Fine salt
Solar salt.....	772,735 $\frac{1}{4}$

Fine salt	142,752 $\frac{1}{4}$
Solar salt.....	880,556 $\frac{1}{4}$
Total.....	1,023,309 $\frac{1}{4}$

The revenues collected by the Superintendent during the year are as follows :

Duties on 2,806,601 $\frac{2}{3}$ bushels.....	\$28,066 04
Total	$28,066 04

Agreeably with instructions, the revenues collected have been deposited to the credit of the State Treasurer, as follows :]

Commercial Bank.....	$11,818 43
State Bank of Syracuse.....	16,247 61
Total	$28,066 04

There has been drawn from the treasury, during the same period for the support of the salt springs the sum of.....	$44,295 50
Received of P. J. Brumelkamp balance of appropriations to pay expenses for 1895, including cash on hand January 1, of $49.13.....	$246 57
Total	$44,542 07

Which was disbursed as follows :

For salaries of officers.....	$18,710 14
For repairing structures, machinery, labor, material, etc.....	24,780 09
Total.....	$43,490 23

The following statement in detail approximates, as near as may be, to the different objects of expenditures, the original vouchers for which have, from time to time, been forwarded to the Comptroller, and copies of the same filed for reference, in the office of the Superintendent at Syracuse.

CONDITION OF THE ONONDAGA SALT SPRINGS.

As the statutes require the Superintendent to embrace in the yearly report such information in regard to the manufacture of salt, and the condition of the public works, and such recommendations as he may deem necessary and proper, I submit the following :

MANUFACTURE OF SALT.

The past season has apparently been fairly remunerative to the manufacturers, as has been evidenced by their anxiety to obtain a full supply of brine, and their continuous expression of a desire to have the works kept in a state of proper repair. The salt inspected doubtless compares favorably with that of preceding years, as comparatively little fault has been found with the quality of the brine furnished. The quantity of salt produced is somewhat less, however, owing to the condition of the works at the opening of the season and to high water, which carried away the conduit leading to an important part of the works and otherwise made other portions inoperative. Just how much the deficit in production is I am unable to state, as no adequate means have ever been employed to ascertain the amount in the hands of the manufacturers at the close of a year. It must be assumed, however, that with only one boiler out of nine in a proper condition, and two of them to be replaced with new ones after the first of February, when I took charge, and the pumps absolutely out of condition at that time, that some deficit was unavoidable.

In my report to the Comptroller, at the close of the fiscal year, I presented, in detail, the needs of this department for the ensuing year, amounting to the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000).

CHARLES HISCOCK,

January 9, 1897.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS, }
OXFORD, N. Y., January 7, 1897. }

To the Legislature of the State of New York:

By the direction of the Board, I transmit to the Legislature herewith the third annual report of the Board of Managers of the New York State Home for the Aged Dependent Veteran and his Wife, Veterans' Mothers, Widows and Army Nurses, residents of New York.

Very respectfully,

ELLEN M. PUTNAM,

President.

REPORT.

To the Honorable the Legislature:

The Board of Managers of the New York State Home for the Aged Dependent Veteran and his Wife, Veterans' Mothers, Widows and Army Nurses, residents of New York, in accordance with the requirements of law, respectfully submits this its third annual report:

GENERAL OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

The Board of Managers during the past year have discharged the first trust committed to their care, to wit: The completion of the buildings provided for in the appropriation bills of 1895 and 1896. And it affords them great pleasure to report that the first cottage is completed and ready for occupancy; that the powerhouse, of sufficient size for the entire system of cottages, is likewise substantially completed; that a boiler sufficient for present needs is set; that an engine and dynamo and electric light plant of proper capacity is also established; a storage reservoir filled by springs and a complete water-pipe system has been constructed; a trunk sewer and a proper sewerage system for the first cottage has likewise been built; the cottage is piped for steam heating and connected with the boilerhouse, is wired for electric lighting and connected with the dynamo; that at the powerhouse a heavy force pump has been established which supplies water from the river for fire protection and to feed the boilers at the powerhouse. All of these have been constructed pursuant to the plans and under the supervision of the State architect, as provided by law, and within the limit of the moneys heretofore appropriated by your honorable body.

We desire further to report that the water supply system is adequate to the needs of the entire system of cottages; the trunk sewer is likewise adequate to all future demands; and the powerhouse is of sufficient dimensions to admit of the future establishment of additional boilers, dynamos and engines as the same may be required.

The cottage now completed will accommodate sixty-five (65) people. The applications now on file, with the Home still unopened, number between one and two hundred. It is needless to urge upon your attention that the fixed charges in the running of the Home must be relatively a constant sum, whether the inmates number sixty (60) or two hundred and sixty (260), the item of board in the maintenance fund alone being increased. The Board, therefore, earnestly request that additional accommodations be provided during the coming summer months to the end that the full object of this institution may be attained and that the cost of maintaining its inmates may compare favorably with similar institutions.

Of the appropriation made by the last Legislature of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, there has been expended up to January 1, 1897, forty-six thousand four hundred and ninety-six ($46,496.67) dollars and sixty-seven cents; and of the balance a portion will be required for the completion of the lighting system.

DONATIONS.

The Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, to whose efforts is due the establishing of this Home, have a deep and abiding interest in the speedy completion of the Home and its early use. As an evidence of their genuine interest, they have furnished this first cottage complete at a cost of nearly four thousand ($4,000) dollars, so that to-day there stands completed and furnished throughout with every convenience the first building to be devoted to the worthy end for which the Woman's Relief Corps has struggled, labored and saved for these many years.

In view of this generous donation, the Board of Managers urge with all reasonable insistence that the deficiency supply bill to be passed early in the session should contain an item sufficiently large to open and maintain the institution to September 30, 1897; and that the annual supply bill should also carry an item for the salaries and maintenance for the fiscal year.

REQUIREMENTS.

The Board of Managers would respectfully submit the following as their estimates for the need of the institution for the coming year. The estimates are here inserted in gross, but the Board will submit during the session the detailed statement of the various items herein contained:

Amount for salaries and maintenance to September 30,
1897	$7,500
Amount for salaries and maintenance from September 30,
1897, to September 30, 1898	15,000
Amount for new cottage, laundry, diningroom and kitchen, barn and grading grounds	86,000

In conclusion we desire to request that the present title, while it is expressive of the objects for which the Home was established, be changed; and we suggest that it be known in the future as the "New York State Woman's Relief Corps Home."

We desire to acknowledge the receipt of donations from the treasury of the Woman's Relief Corps of furnishings to the amount of about four thousand ($4,000) dollars; and also of other numerous donations from various corps and individuals.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

ELLEN M. PUTNAM,

President.

FORTY-FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

To the Legislature:

Forty-four years ago the Children's Aid Society established the first of its industrial schools for needy and vagrant children. It was felt by the Society that an effort must be made to reach the thousands of children who attended no school and were growing up in vicious ignorance. This has been our chief effort ever since the Society was founded.

To add to the problem, the public schools in the poorer districts have for years been overcrowded, so that many thousands of children can not be admitted. The evil has grown to such proportions that at last the community is awakened to it, and during the last year there has been an earnest movement toward better conditions. New school buildings have been constructed by the board of education and more are proposed. These will afford school room for many children, but the construction of these buildings is necessarily slow, while the increase in the ranks of the neglected children by immigration, as well as by the natural birth rate, will more than keep pace with these efforts. For the present, and no doubt for years to come, our Society must put forth its utmost efforts to cope with this menacing condition. Our twenty industrial schools are crowded with children who, but for our organization, would grow up without training of any kind, and during the year, 13,302 children were there taught. This is an enormous work, and has been managed with the utmost economy consistent with the advanced methods of primary education and manual training. We again appeal to our public-spirited citizens to visit our schools, to examine into our methods of work, and to consider the great importance of these efforts both to the children who attend, and to the city which has been relieved of pauperism and crime to so great an extent.

It has been said that at some future time, when the board of education has built schools sufficient for all children, our industrial schools will no longer be required, but those who make this statement do not recognize the conditions of life among the very poor. So long as the enormous immigration of helpless and ignorant people of southern and eastern Europe continues, the present grave evils will continue—evils of overcrowding, of labor competing to the starving point. The children of these people must be sought for in the vile dens in which they live. Many of them are not fit to attend the public schools, and must first be cleaned, their clothes repaired or renewed. Often shoes are necessary, that they may come through cold and snow, and school lunches and often meals must be provided. They must be taught our language and customs. They must be trained in honesty, morality and patriotism with the utmost patience and tact, by trained teachers who are themselves true missionaries. In a crowded population there are and always will be children of helpless widows and invalids, of drunken or brutal parents that naturally fall to our care.

It is sometimes said such families should be broken up and the children sent to institutions. God forbid! Let us do our utmost to keep the family intact. Let us through the children influence the parent. It was intended in the divine scheme that the family be the uplifting influence. Let us make use of this best of all reformatories whenever possible.

Our industrial schools, beginning with little ones in the kindergartens, take the children through the primary grades under faithful teachers, supervised by our superintendent, who is a man of large experience and high ideals in educational and manual training methods. Under his care our schools have become the equal of any. Special classes to influence confirmed truants, working in co-operation with the truant agents of the board of education, have been established with most interesting results; and during the year nearly two thousand children have been prepared for and transferred to the public schools, and their places in our schools taken by other children who were idling in the streets. The report of Mr. Dupuy, our superintendent, and of our principals, will describe fully the details of this work. The schools are under the supervision, also, of the assistant superintendents of the board of education, who by law are required to and do make personal examinations. Their suggestions are always of value and are carried out, and their praise of our work confirms our own belief in its great beneficence.

Evening Schools.

Of the utmost importance also to the community are our evening schools, where older boys and girls who work during the day are attracted to spend the evening. These schools differ from the regular evening schools of the public school board in that they are designed to get hold of and influence a more irresponsible and unrestrained class of young people. A certain amount of entertainment is combined with the regular educational work, together with most useful classes in cooking, sewing and dressmaking. Who can grasp the importance of this work? Think of the wild girls not only kept off the streets, but gradually influenced by good women toward higher ideals, and at the same time acquiring a training and skill in practical things which will give them a vastly better hold upon life. How many future homes will be the better, to the advantage of society and the detriment of the saloon. Every worker in these schools knows from the experience of years that the most successful method of attack upon the saloon is to train the girls, first in self-respect, and secondly in the knowledge of housekeeping. It is the shiftless wives and slovenly homes which drive the men to the saloon.

These evening schools are supported by the voluntary aid of benevolent people of means, who recognize how much may be done in these lines. Notably the Brearley School League, which for several years has supported and managed one of these schools. The young ladies have given their time and utmost efforts to make their work successful, and with the very best results. The Children's Aid Society congratulates the league most heartily.

To those who support and visit our schools—to Mrs. White and Miss Bruce, to Mrs. Sloané, to Miss Rhinelander, to Miss Mason, to Mrs. Morris, and to Miss Morris, to Mr. Jones, to Mrs. Haxtun, to Mrs. Derby, to Mrs. Robinson and Miss Seward, to Mrs. Berry, to Mrs. Steward, to Miss Barney, Mrs. Ward, Miss Billings and Miss Isham, to Mrs. Davenport, to Mrs. Watson and Miss Whitman, to Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Fabbri, to Mrs. Lord, to Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Sands, Miss Sands and Miss Cole, to the late Mrs. Hamilton, to Miss Delatfield, Mrs. Scriven and Mrs. Winters, to Mrs. Thaw, to Mrs. Wilson, and especially to Miss Travers, Mrs. James and Mrs. Tod, as well as to many others, we desire to express our appreciation of their unfailing help and sympathy. But for these ladies and their friends this vast work of usefulness to the poor would lose its best character. Here the well-to-do and the unfortunate meet on a basis of mutual helpfulness. The needs of these poor children are definite and appeal to all. We ask the younger generation among us who wish to help in these benevolent labors to come forward and join us.

Kindergartens.

The kindergartens connected with the twenty industrial schools of the Children's Aid Society have proved themselves of the utmost value in attracting little children from the streets and interesting them in school work. There are in our kindergartens 1,600 children, with 43 trained teachers. The pressure for admittance to these classes is so great that they are necessarily overcrowded; but even under these conditions we consider this work as important as any we are doing, not so much by reason of the childish accomplishments acquired in the advanced methods of kindergarten science, but because of the training which the little children receive in punctuality, in neatness, in observation, in habits of regular attendance at school, and most valuable of all is the pleasant impression the little ones receive of school life due to the attractive work and cheerful games. It is this pleasant impression of school and habit of attending which it is so important to foster among the children of five and six years. But in our opinion it is of equal importance that they should be promptly promoted to the primary sixth grade where elementary reading, writing and arithmetic may be combined with kindergarten methods, for if the kindergarten work without the primary school work be continued too long, time is wasted and the children acquire a spirit of restlessness and lose the ability to do hard work which is necessary in the work of the higher grades.

We urge upon this community the importance of establishing kindergartens and primary grade glasses for children between four and eight years of age. The census returns show that there are in this city 65,000 children of that age who can not be received in school for want of room. It is of the utmost importance that these children be cared for; they are at the age when habits of industry or of idleness are acquired, and these habits once acquired tend to remain with the child through life. The Children's Aid Society is doing its utmost to meet this need and to cope with this problem. With more funds this Society would be enabled to open more kindergartens and schools, but the work as a whole can best be done by the public school system, supported by taxation.

Emigration.

Of all the efforts of philanthropy to relieve juvenile misery incident to a homeless life in a great city, the most successful, the most inspiring to us who know the results, is in connection with our method of placing homeless children in permanent homes in the west. In the small towns and among the farmers of the Western States we find a spirit of humanity and kindness to these homeless children. They are welcomed with true western generosity and hospitality; they are taken into the homes as members of the families and treated with the utmost patience and care; they are given the same education and the same opportunity to get on in life as the children of those communities. As a result we find our children who are now grown to manhood and womanhood in all walks of life. They are farmers, bankers, merchants, lawyers, ministers and professional men. A few of our children have to be brought back by our agents for restlessness or bad behavior, but eight out of ten of those placed in homes do well. When we consider what these children are, and but for these efforts the hopelessness of their future, we are able to a limited degree to understand the extent of this divinely inspired work.

Our success in these labors is due to the painstaking care in which the work is done. Our agents are men of experience and of a nobility of character which is in sympathy with the responsibilities they have assumed. Every home is visited and the character and standing of the proposed foster parents is looked into before the agreement with the person who takes the child is signed. The right to remove a child at any time is reserved by the Society and when the visiting agent comes he sometimes finds it necessary to make a change. Every child is visited a few months after it is placed and then annually or oftener if necessary by our agents and supervision is also had by local committees.

Six agents are now engaged in this work besides several who reside in the west and are called upon only as occasion arises. Every third week a party of children is brought together at our central office from which departure for the west is made. These children are nearly all orphans, all of them homeless, and come from many sources. Some are from the asylums, orphanages and alms-houses of the vicinity; some are brought to the office by relatives who are unable or refuse to take care of them. Others are from our boys' and girls' lodging-houses brought by our superintendents who have found them to be homeless and fit to be placed in family life, and others are from our Kensico Farm School. These together with poor families with children whom we assist to the west where work or friends await them, make a party of twenty or thirty homeless little ones who, with hopeful faces, start upon a new life, where they will find real homes of their own and some one they may call "papa" and "mamma."

We are sometimes asked, why go so far? Why not place them nearer New York? We have tried it, but find a near residence of former haunts revives the old Bohemian tastes and they are apt to run away to get back to the city. We place children in New York and in neighboring States, in Virginia and Florida. But always we return to the far west. There we find the warm hearts, the enthusiasm, the openhandedness which co-operate with us so successfully.

The following schedule shows the number of persons sent to each State by the Children's Aid Society since its formation in 1853. Homes were found for the younger of these children ; employment for the older and poor families with children were assisted to points in the west where employment had been obtained for them by friends :

Kensico Farm School.

Our effort to redeem the vagrant street boys by inducing them to go to the Kensico Farm School and there be trained to fit them for a home on a farm has achieved most interesting results. We have become more intimately associated with these boys than ever before. Their irrational, irresponsible and restless characteristics require an individual treatment which only a man who understands them can give. Mr. Robert N. Brace, formerly connected with the House of Refuge, a son of the founder of the Society, was appointed agent for placing these boys in homes. Under his wise care and the able management of the Farm School by its superintendent, Mr. Goff, this department of our labors has met with great success, and many boys have availed themselves of what, in most cases, was their last opportunity for redemption from vagrancy. Out of 373 who were tried only 126 have failed, while 213 have been trained and placed in homes in the country. This work, so valuable to the community in saving it the cost of vagrants, so important to these lads who are saved to honorable careers, is dependent in large part on voluntary contributions. We are sorely in need of help for its support, and appeal most earnestly for funds for the running expenses.

To our readers who are interested in this problem we refer the careful report of the agent connected with the Farm School.

The Five Boys' and Two Girls' Lodging-Houses.

During the year 5,830 boys and girls have passed through the doors of these homes for the homeless. Some of these have been influenced by the superintendents to return to their homes, from which they were runaways; employment has been found for many, and when able to pay for lodgings in private families they have been urged to do so; some have been found to be youthful criminals and have been sent away from fear that they would corrupt the others; many have been sent to homes in the country and to the Farm School; others are looking for work and need shelter, food and clothing; and others again seem to drift about from city to city without aim or reason. All, however, while in our lodging-houses, must attend school in the evening classes and services of a simple character on Sunday evening. They must pay their way and be clean and decent and well behaved. These regulations, together with the constant influence of the superintendents and visitors, have important results. All are influenced for the better and many are started on the road to success. The reports of our superintendents will be found to be full of interest.

Summer Charities.

Our heartfelt gratitude is due our friends for their support of our summer work. The intense heat of August caused much sickness and suffering. To alleviate this misery so far as our means allowed was a duty and pleasure to us. No one who has not visited our beautiful summer home at Bath Beach can realize the happiness it affords to these thousands of poor children during the week of their stay.

The Health Home at Coney Island for mothers with sick or ailing children was thronged during the summer. The sea air and good food, the pretty gardens and wide ocean beach, give increase in health and strength and courage to face another year of the struggle, which life is to these poor women.

The fifteen physicians employed in our Sick Children's Mission have done their work of benevolence. They go from house to house seeking out the sick children of those who are too helpless and ignorant to obtain other advice.

We refer our readers for the details of the useful work of the summer charities to the reports of the superintendents.

It is an important fact, as shown in the death-rate of children under five years of age from diarrhoeal diseases during the past twenty-five years, that there has been a decrease in this mortality, notwithstanding the great increase of population. This is clearly the result of these and similar humane efforts by the Board of Health and private instrumentality.

Economy of the Work.

Owing to careful organization, the work, though on so large a scale, shows an economy of management which has never been surpassed in such enterprises.

The total annual expense of our twenty-one industrial schools and twelve night schools, for salaries, rents, food, clothing, books, fuel, etc., was $140,873.25; which sum, divided by 6,406, the average number in daily attendance, would make $21.99 the annual cost of each child.

In our lodging-houses 5,830 boys and girls were fed, sheltered and taught during the past year at a total expense of $60,530.47. Deducting $34,672.81, being the receipts of the lodging-houses, together with the cost of construction, the net running expense was $25,857.66; dividing this by the average nightly lodgings, 493, we have the average cost to the public of each child for the year, $52.45. At the Farm School 213 boys were trained and placed in homes; the net running expense for the year was $8,483.35, or $39.86 the cost of training each boy.

The total number for whom homes and employment have been found by the Society during last year was 2,256; the total cost for railroad fares, clothing, food, salaries, etc., was $30,358.70; the average cost to the public accordingly, for each person sent, was $13.50.* Yet any child placed in an asylum or poor-house costs nearly $140 a year.

These statistics need no comment. Again, the number who enjoyed the benefit of our "Summer Home" was 6,254; the net expense, deducting cost of construction, was $8,403.75. The number of mothers and babies at the Health Home, Coney Island, during the summer was 6,132; the expenses, less cost of construction, were $7,804.60. Surely this is economical charity.

Work of the Year.

There were during the past year in our six lodging houses, 5,830 different boys and girls; 256,839 meals and 179,930 lodgings were supplied. In the twenty-one day and twelve evening schools were 13,302 children, who were taught and partly fed and partly clothed, 759,704 meals being supplied; 2,256 were sent to homes and employment, and restored to friends in both the east and the west; 2,927 were aided with food, medicine, etc., through the "Sick Children's Mission;" 6,254 children enjoyed the benefits of the "Summer Home" at Bath, L. I. (averaging about 625 per week); 6,132 mothers and sick infants were sent to the "Health Home" at Coney Island; 62 girls have been instructed in the use of the sewing-maching in the Girls' Temporary Home and the Industrial Schools; 19 were taught typewriting, and 373 boys attended the Farm School; $3,791.40 have been deposited in the penny savings banks. Total number under charge of the Society during the year, 37,155.

The Brace Farm School.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

The Farm School for homeless boys from the streets of New York, situated two miles east of Kensico, on the Harlem railroad, is open to boys of all ages. Here they are trained until fitted to be placed in homes. By careful division of time between school and the diversity of work, each boy is assisted to develop his best resources in a healthful and practical manner. They assist in the household duties and show a great interest about the farm. Usually the horses, stock and poultry receive their first attention.

Their ignorance of country ways is surprising. For instance, a boy, on arrival, seeing a man cutting grass with a scythe, exclaimed, "Oh, what a big knife!" But they soon learn the names and uses of things about the farm, and delight in their knowledge, and in being allowed to care for the lawn and work among the flowers and vegetables. Promotion to the barn is among the things sought, and they feel manly when that position is reached.

The work of grading, ditching, picking stone and clearing up continues to be carried on, when the regular farm work does not need attention. Shade-trees and shrubs have been planted, also three acres currants, strawberries, black and red raspberries, the gift of one of our trustees. A herd of twenty-five cows (one being a fine registered Holstein, presented by Mrs. Wm. E. Dodge), supplies the family with an average of thirty-eight quarts daily, the remaining amount, 40,286 quarts, being sold at $1,208.58.

Besides this the farm produced hay, grain and food products to the value of $2,400, which was used by us.

Through the kindness of Mrs. J. M. White, the much-needed laundry, containing all modern improvements, with basement fitted with shower baths, is nearly completed. Also a three-seated wagon, for carrying boys to and from the depot, and a piano, which gives much pleasure. To Mrs. White, to Mr. Evert J. Wendell, to Mr. Wm. Church Osborn and to all who have so generously helped in so many ways the great work of rescuing the boys, we extend our gratitude.

F. W. GOFF,

Superintendent.

One of the most serious and difficult problems to be dealt with in our work is the final disposition of the hundreds of homeless boys without regular employment, who drift about the streets of New York. They are temporarily cared for in the boys' lodging-houses of this Society, and when too old to be accommodated are forced to seek shelter in the cheap lodging-houses of the Bowery and other resorts of a like character. Here they are thrown in contact with men of bad morals and antecedents. The effect of this contact is evident to any one who watches their development. It is one of the saddest sights in the world, this gradual but steady deterioration reflected in their faces. The change from the bright, open expression of a promising boy of fourteen to the hard, unprepossessing appearance of the "tough" of twenty is too apparent to be overlooked by the most casual observer.

When, on the contrary, these same boys are placed in comfortable homes in the country, where they lead an open-air, healthy, self-supporting life, the change for the better is even more striking. To bring about this change is the object of the Farm School. Experience has shown us that to take boys older than fourteen years directly from the streets and place them, untried, in good homes is too great a risk. For this reason the boys are given a thorough trial at the Farm School, where they may acquire habits of industry and cleanliness, and become accustomed to outdoor work. At the same time the most unpromising cases are weeded out. The boys who have become habitual tramps, the vicious ones and those too lazy to work are either kept until they show marked improvement or else allowed to return to New York, while those who prove themselves worthy are soon placed in homes. Even those who return to the city must not all be considered failures. The habits formed and the friendships made at the Farm School often exert a powerful influence on their lives. In repeated instances we have been gratified by hearing of the change for the better shown by boys who had returned to the city, after a stay of a few weeks. Frequently, after knocking about for a while, they see that they had made a great mistake, and have asked to be taken back.

The supply of boys who are ready to try anything that gives promise of bettering their condition is almost inexhaustible. On the other hand, the demand in the country for boys of all ages is equally great. This demand is principally from childless families or from those whose children have grown up, leaving the old folks to do the little chores around a farm, that could be done as well by younger hands. To boys who can do this work, farmers all over the country are glad to give comfortable homes, with plenty of good food, besides schooling for the younger ones, and more than mere living wages for those capable of earning them.

We have placed boys in most of the States, from Maine to Florida, and as far west as Kansas and Nebraska. Of course the expense of sending them to these Western States is greater, but the results are far more encouraging. The conditions of life in the newer communities are particularly favorable. There is a certain largeness and generosity in the West that opens the hearts of the people to these homeless orphans and gives the boys a better standing than they would have elsewhere. The freedom of the life, the excitement of riding horseback and the interest of raising stock of their own, combine to overcome their longing for the old life in the great city. To these influences must be added the difficulty of returning to New York, which prevents many from leaving their places on account of mere restlessness or homesickness.

The table given above shows that the majority of those placed from the Farm School during the year were sent west. Of these, only seventeen came back or were brought back to New York, the others being still in homes, and likely to remain and grow to honest manhood. Considering that most of them were over fourteen, and many over sixteen years of age, accustomed only to the vagrant life of the city, this is a very gratifying result. By removing them from their former associates and surroundings, and by giving them new and healthy interests, we have weaned them from the old and started them on a new and better life.

The Lodging-Houses.

The Brace Memorial Lodging-House for Boys, corner Duane and New Chambers Streets.

(Founded in 1874 by CHARLES LORING BRACE.)

Much that has been accomplished during the year among these homeless lads may never be fully realized. Hundreds of cases have come under our observation this year, where kind words and a little assistance cheerfully given have been the means of saving boys from becoming vagrants. Our daily experience shows us that the influences received at this Home have wrought a marked improvement in the characters of the boys. They are no longer hopeless and reckless. More than 2,000 boys have lodged here during the past year, and there is great cause for thankfulness that neither serious illness nor death nor any other misfortune has befallen us.

We are sincerely grateful to Mr. Clement March for his earnest sympathy and unselfish devotion to the interest of the boys.

Mr. Evert J. Wendell's kindly interest in the welfare of the boys is also greatly appreciated. He has spent many a night with them, advising and entertaining them.

Over 300 boys have been provided with homes and employment. This part of our work we consider the most important. Another gratifying feature is the large proportion we have sent to the Farm School, to be transferred to the west or south. Those for whom employment could not be secured have been assisted by means of the Business Fund, so kindly maintained by our friend, Mr. Percy R. King.

The first annual exhibition of the New York Florists' Club and New York Gardeners' Society, given under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society, in this building, on the 20th of June, was a grand success. Mr. Jeroloman, President of the Board of Aldermen, in the absence of Mayor Strong, opened the proceedings with a brief speech. Fully 15,000 children attended. Never before, perhaps, had they seen so many plants and flowers. Forty thousand plants, 50,000 cut flowers, 60,000 packages of seeds and as many bulbs were distributed among the children.

The Thanksgiving dinner, so generously provided by the will of the late Mrs. W. W. Astor, and the Christmas dinner, by Mr. Wm. M. Fliess, were celebrated as usual.

We are indebted to Mr. J. Kennedy Tod for a complete set of Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia; Mr. James J. Higginson for thirty-two volumes of Henty's works, and Mrs. E. A. Thorn and Mrs. G. E. Kissel for a lot of bound books.

We thank the Friendly Aid Society, Mr. Tello D'apery and other friends for books, magazines, games, clothing, etc. Also the Flower Mission, for flowers and fruit.

An average of sixty-eight boys have enjoyed the benefits of the night school. Mr. J. Hooker Hammersley gave the prizes, as usual. The attendance at our Sunday evening meetings has been very good. We thank Mr. Kissel, Mr. Perry, Mr. Brace and Mr. Sedgwick for their kindly presence.

The West Side Lodging-House, No. 400 Seventh Avenue,

(Erected in 1884 by JOHN JACOB ASTOR, Esq.)

Nine hundred boys have lodged at the West Side during the past year. Visitors sometimes ask, "Where do all these boys come from?" We reply; "From all over the world, but chiefly from the great city of New York, and from almost all stations and conditions of life." They are largely the offspring of dissipated parents and have either been driven from home on that account or have been left at the death of parents without any home. There are many poor street lads who, but for the privileges offered by our various homes, would be cold, hungry and in rags upon the street. We are pleased to state that large numbers of such have gone from the lodging-houses to the Farm School, where they were trained for situations and are now proving themselves worthy of the confidence of their employers.

Only three weeks since a boy came to us who had received no solid food for several days and was weak from lack of proper nourishment. Both parents were dead and a kind neighbor who had taken the little fellow in was so poor that coffee was the only food in the house. To-day the boy is well clothed, has food enough and to spare in his western home.

About two and a half years ago a poor German lad left his home to seek his fortune in the New World. Arriving in New York he was soon out of money and for three whole days did not taste food. In his half-famished condition he sought one of the Society's homes, was temporarily cared for, sent to the Farm School and later placed in a home on a farm in Kansas. A wealthy uncle learned of the struggles of the poor boy, his sympathy was excited, and under its impulse $5,000 was sent to him. The boy wisely invested $3,600 of this amount in a farm, and most of the balance in a new house which he has just completed. The uncle has since died and left the boy $38,000 on interest in a bank in Germany.

Another boy, abandoned by his improvident father in England, came to New York and was employed in the night office of the Sun. He caught a severe cold, which settled in his eyes and he lost his position. Out of work and in poor health he sought the ever open doors of the Society. He was placed in an eye and ear hospital where his sight improved and for a whole year he was kept in the West Side Lodging-House. In June last an uncle, who owns twenty-six trading ships and controls the commerce of some of the islands in India, sent for the homeless boy and will train him to manage the business, with the prospect of its inheritance. The abandoned boy may become a millionaire. Another interesting boy we have recently cared for, though only sixteen years of age, has a limited knowledge of French, German, Latin and Dutch, in addition to his well spoken English. His father, an American consul to Southern Africa, died, and the boy shipped to New York with the expectation of joining the navy.

Out of 900 different boys received about 90 per cent. were born here. Of the remaining 10 per cent., twenty-six boys were from Ireland, twenty-four from Germany, twenty-two from England, the remainder from all the countries of Europe.

The home is in good sanitary condition, and several improvements have been made by us.

Mr. James K. Gracie always remembers our boys by a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner. F. Delano Weekes, Esq., assisted by Messrs. Percy R. Pyne, W. H. Goudby and Archibald D. Russell, furnished a fine Christmas dinner and presented each boy with a new flannel shirt. Mr. Weekes also gave a barrel of candy. The spring dinner was provided, as ever, by Mr. Douglas Robinson.

The evening school, taught by Miss Barguet, was well attended and the usual interest manifested.

We are greatly indebted to Dr. Beverley Robinson for the interest taken both in the evening school and Sunday evening services. The generous doctor gave prizes to the boys making greatest improvement during the term, and he was usually present and talked to the boys or furnished a substitute when not able to attend. Mr. Holmes, Mr. W. D. Brown, Mr. Herrick, Mr. Norton and others gave interesting talks.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Committee of the Elizabeth Home has carried on for another year the classes organized by them for the welfare of the girls.

The cooking class was reopened in November, under the care of a teacher from the New York Cooking School. Lessons in simple cooking were given regularly every week to a class of ten girls, for about six months. These lessons, as well as the practice cooking lessons, which were given weekly by some member of the committee were greatly enjoyed by the girls, who entered with such zeal and hearty enthusiasm into the work that it may be hoped that some among them may, in the future, help to fill the constantly increasing demand for "good plain cooks."

The embroidery lessons, under the care of Miss White, were begun on November 5th, and given regularly every Tuesday until the middle of May. There can be no doubt that this class exerts an elevating and softening influence on the character of the girls, and the work done by them is most creditable.

Miss Dodge provided a lady to give singing lessons on Saturday evening. These lessons were of great practical value as well as a great pleasure to the girls. About the usual number of evening entertainments were given through the efforts of the committee or their friends. Miss Dodge gave two practical talk-evenings, and Miss Dean gave an evening of stereopticon views. Through the kindness of Mrs. Stimson the girls enjoyed a very merry evening as an Easter treat, and Miss Wheeler arranged for the usual festivities on Decoration Day.

The members of the committee are anxious to enlarge their work and to improve upon it and hope that they may be able to accomplish more during the coming season than they have in the past.

HARRIET B. DWIGHT,

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE MATRON.

It is thirty-four years since this institution, under the name of the Girls' Lodging-house, was established by the Children's Aid Society, as a temporary shelter for young girls under 18, and to aid them in their struggles to earn an honest living, but, although its work has been annually reported, there is still much misunderstanding as to the class of inmates taken, and it seems necessary again to state that this is not a reformatory. It would be considered unwise, unjust and dangerous to mingle the two classes, and knowingly we do not admit any who have gone astray, but send them to the homes provided for them.

Our inmates find their way here through our standing advertisements, by direction of the police, or through societies, missionaries and friends. They are lodged or boarded for one night or as many as their necessities require. Those having no money give their services till some work opens for them. Many remain and are trained in housework, dressmaking, laundrywork, hand and machine sewing, and in most cases are both boarded and clothed free of compensation, having no one to provide for them. Hundreds of these during the years have been placed in useful positions, and many comforting letters are received, also visits from bright interesting girls, and those older who have settled in life, who bring their children (grandchildren we call them) to give an added pleasure. One heard from recently was brought in by a poor drunken mother on a winter's night several years ago, a shawl over her head, cold, hungry and tired. They had been dispossessed that day and were homeless. The mother was directed to a suitable place, called afterwards several times, then disappeared and has never been heard from since. The girl remained, was trained to general work, placed in service for a time out of town, then sent west, from where she now writes of her good home and husband, of their business prosperity, of her pleasant social life, and expressed sincere gratitude for all the care that had been taken of her, and the change it had made in her life.

The dressmaking department has been very successful in giving a means of livelihood, and a debt of thanks is due to Mrs. Notman, who for many years has taken our graduates into her establishment. Last season seven of them found work with her, varying in their earnings from $4 to $8 a week, according to their ability. That they should be able to take hold of first class work speaks well for their training and teacher. They are taught to make small model dresses before doing anything on custom work, and are kept in training from six months to a year, or longer if necessary. One hundred and ten dresses have been made.

The laundry has had its usual good success. The new ironing-room has all the requisites for accomplishing work with comfort. Abundance of light, plenty of air, tables of the latest device with shirt boards attached, ironing stoves enclosed, and the heat carried off through the roof. Our head laundress has come to her majority with us. Twenty-one years has she toiled and trained a host of unformed girls to be self-supporting women, and has also kept up a good moral tone, allowing no rude language and inculcating faithfulness to duty in all around her. Seventy-three thousand pieces have been laundered for customers besides the house washing.

The evening school was in session six months and gave excellent results in the studies taken up, namely, reading, writing and arithmetic. The class being made up of those whose early education had been neglected, these branches were the most necessary.

"The Ladies' Auxiliary Committee" has been of great help to us during the year. As the secretary makes a report, I need only express our gratitude for their interest.

We have to mourn the death of our kind patron, Mrs. Mary B. Wheeler, who with her two daughters, Mrs. Ceccarini and Miss Emily M. Wheeler, so generously donated the money to build this home. Many besides us will miss her open hand, which was ever freely giving. She has gone to her reward, "And her works do follow her."

We have to thank Mr. W. Bayard Cutting for his never failing kindness in providing Thanksgiving dinners so many years, which always gives the household a happy day. Christmas was also, as it ought to be, a day of joy.

The Home has provided 62,211 meals and 19,074 lodgings to 533 girls. Only 10,752 meals and lodgings have been paid for; 228 girls have been sent to situations and employment; 65 to friends; 36 to other institutions; 23 have been trained in dressmaking; 25 in laundrywork; 36 in general work; 6 in kitchen; 7 in dining-room.

We are glad to say that our kind physician, Dr. Crampton, has had no report of sickness to make even through the heated term of the summer, showing the excellent sanitary condition of the Home.

The Sunday morning services have been conducted by Mr. Sigafos, and great interest manifested in serious subjects by many of the girls.

(Erected in 1880 by MISS CATHERINE L. WOLFE.)

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Since this house was built for us by Miss Wolfe, sixteen years ago, nearly 18,000 different homeless boys have enjoyed its beneficent privileges. In the fiscal year just closed 819 boys came to us for shelter and food, and of that number 708 were orphans without homes or friends. But while orphanage was the principal cause of homelessness, our records show that a considerable number of boys had been rendered homeless because of the cruelty of drunken parents or because parents were in prison, in hospitals and other institutions or because the mother "lived out." In all these cases the poor boys would be in a pitiable plight, but for such a refuge as they found with us. During the year the average nightly attendance was 105. The fact that our boys are in 56 different occupations is an interesting commentary on the ways and means by which they endeavor to earn a living. Of the whole number 11 per cent. are peddlers, 8 per cent. bootblacks, 8 per cent. messenger boys, 6 per cent. newsboys, 20 per cent. unemployed and the remaining 47 per cent. are scattered throughout all the trades. With very few exceptions the boys of this house are workers, and many of them have to work hard to earn even the small amount that we charge them for lodging and meals. To show that our boys make an earnest effort to support themselves it is only necessary to state that in the past year 90 per cent. of them have fully paid their way in the house. The prevailing business depression has made it difficult for many of the boys to find employment and but for the helping hand that we extend to them their lot would be hard indeed.

We regret to say that we have not been able to do quite as much as usual in the way of helping unemployed boys, from the fact that our old friends, Messrs. W. L. and A. L. Smith have by reason of ill-health and advancing age, been obliged, much to their regret, to discontinue their support of the boys' "Business Fund." These devoted friends of the poor have co-operated with us in ministering to the necessities of widows and orphans for more than twenty years, and we shall greatly miss their cheerful presence and intelligent helpfulness. We hope the mantle of their charity will fall upon the shoulders of some one ready to "spend and be spent" like them in the service of suffering humanity.

In the brief space allotted to this report we can not refer in detail, as we should like, to all the agencies employed in this house to improve the condition of the homeless boys of the East Side. The night school, the Sunday meetings, the library and reading-room, the penny savings bank, the free baths, the spacious play-room and the sweet and silent ministry of the beautiful plants and flowers all contribute to the moral, mental and physical improvement of the boys.

Through the generosity of Mr. Henry E. Hawley, the boys enjoyed a splendid Thanksgiving dinner. Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan kindly furnished the Christmas dinner, and also clothing and shoes to be given as rewards for good conduct and regular attendance at night school.

We are glad to be able to report that there has been no serious sickness in the house during the year.

GEORGE CALDER,

Forty-fourth Street Boys' Lodging-House, No. 247 East

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Much has been done for the homeless boys who have filled this house through the past year. We have tried to encourage the industrious, rouse the indolent to activity and prepare the way toward a self-supporting future for many who would otherwise remain a charge upon society.

The Brace Farm School has greatly assisted us, having received fifty-nine boys for trial, some of whom are now living in carefully selected homes in the south and west.

Mr. William Church Osborn, our trustee, has encouraged us in many ways. We wish to express also our deepest gratitude to Mr.

and Mrs. William E. Dodge and Mr. Cleveland H. Dodge for their interest in the welfare of this Home and their generosity toward the poor boys in our charge. Mr. Dodge, as usual, provided for the devotional exercises. Under the able direction of Rev. Starr Cadwallader, an earnest teacher and warm friend of the boys, the meetings were very successful and well attended. Valuable assistance was received from Mr. Edwards, Mr. Herrick and his friends. Dr. Beverley Robinson was frequently with us and devoted much time and attention to our various needs.

Thanksgiving and Christmas were made especially enjoyable by bountiful dinners, the gift of Mrs. William E. Dodge. On the latter occasion the boys received additional presents of clothing, shoes, etc., that were purchased with funds furnished by Mr. Morris K. Jesup. The Monday sewing class gave 100 nice flannel shirts, and Mr. S. Stewart sent a check to provide other needed articles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hibbard, Mrs. A. W. Spaulding and Mrs. A. Pickett have added many books to the "Memorial Library." Mrs. Beverley Robinson, Miss Pope, Mr. R. J. Jones, the Friendly Aid Society and others have supplied the reading table with periodicals. Boys of this class must have proper diversion provided them or they may drift into questionable places and take up dangerous amusements. In addition to the good derived from the "Memorial Library" and reading-room, we believe that a well-conducted gymnasium would be a practical means of keeping the boys from the streets and overcome many of the evils to which they are exposed.

In conclusion, we wish to thankfully acknowledge the kindness of all who have in any way aided us in making this Home a practical benefit to our poor boys.

The Industrial Schools.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

In justice to our entire corps of teachers in our twenty industrial schools it is proper that I should say the year just coming to a close has been characterized by a display of sincere earnestness and activity on their part. As a result of this earnestness and their realization of what is expected from an alert, thoughtful teacher, more careful and intelligent labor has been given to the classes under their control than in previous years. With a view of encouraging a sense of responsibility and securing uniformity of effort, meetings of the principals, with the superintendent and his assistant, have been held at frequent intervals throughout the year, and will doubtless be resumed during the present school year. Besides these conferences there were meetings, at which the entire body of teachers was convened. At one of these gatherings we had the pleasure of welcoming Professor A. S. Downing, representing the State Department of Education. His address was received with marked favor, and many of his thoughtful suggestions have been adopted by those who were among his audience.

I take pleasure, at this point, in referring to the meetings held by the kindergartners during the year. Nearly two years have elapsed since an organization was effected, composed of kindergarten teachers embraced within our schools and such other teachers of the primary grade as desired to unite with them. Meetings are held monthly in one or another of our school buildings, and upon these occasions the members of the Association have been addressed by persons of distinction in this branch of education. It gives me satisfaction to express my approval of the aims held in view by the Association, and I should be glad to know that every teacher in this department has become enrolled as an active member.

A fact that I ought not to pass unnoticed in connection with our schoolwork is the closing of the Henrietta or Twenty-first Street School in June last. The teachers, with the exception of Miss Strathern and Miss Stansbury, were transferred to the new school building in Sixty-third street, where the accommodations are ample to meet the demands that are likely to be made by the thickly populated quarter in which it is situated. Miss Strathern is about to open her afternoon and evening classes in the Avenue B school. In the new building there will be sufficient room for the prosecution of our plans concerning the day and evening work that will be carried on under this roof.

Miss Crego, supervisor of form drawing and the elementary processes of manual training in our schools, has rendered her report, in which she speaks of the great advancement of the children in the use of drawing as a means of "free thought expression." Last spring the little tots, just from the kindergarten, were delighted to hold a little clover leaf or a dandelion bud in one hand, and with a pencil transfer his or her thought of what it looked like on paper. The clay modeling is also a source of great enjoyment to the children. The pupils in all the grades participate in the drawing. Several of the teachers have said that the worst punishment they could devise was to debar a child from the drawing exercise. During the past year twenty-four teachers' meetings were held for instruction in drawing, four for each grade. In addition, there will be two courses—in the cutting of thin wood, or "slipwork," and in bent-wirework for the younger boys. During the last week in May an exhibit of the work done was given in two large rooms in the United Charities building.

A Class for Truants.

With a view to attract and influence the irregular scholars and truants, both of our own schools and those who may be brought to us by "attendance officers," we are organizing special classes in manual training. In the West Side, or Thirty-second Street School, a class of this character is already at work, and will be of incalculable benefit for those whom it is designed to reach. By a suitable division of time we introduce, under one teacher, such a variety of work as will preclude thoughts of weariness and keep brain and fingers constantly active. The curriculum embraces slip, or thin woodwork, clay modeling, free-hand drawing, reading, writing, spelling and numbers, as well as sewing and cooking, taught after plans similar to those of the Teachers' College.

The visitors connected with the various schools are furnishing regular monthly reports of the number of visits made, the names and addresses of the children called upon, and all information that may be of interest concerning their homes. These reports, after their receipt by the superintendent, are forwarded to the secretary.

The annual inspections or examinations of classes by the assistant superintendents of the public schools were made, as usual, during the month of October last. These official visits are productive of good results, and the criticisms and suggestions offered by the examiners are heartily appreciated by principals and assistant teachers alike.

In order to correct any misapprehension that may exist in the minds of some it is proper for me to state in this connection that, while we desire to be of benefit to as large a number of the poor children of New York as we are able to reach, our principals are instructed not to enroll any child as a pupil whose parents it is believed are able to send them to the public schools. It is also further understood that if, at any time, it be discovered that there are children in the schools who no longer need the assistance they may have at one period required, they are to be transferred to the public school nearest their homes; and it is gratifying to be able to state that, in obedience to this rule, 1,854 children have, during the year past, been sent from ours to the public schools of the city, and it is suggestive that their places were taken by other children who were attending no school. It is also, I think, in keeping with the tenor of this report that reference be made to the excellent rules issued by the Board of Health relating to the disuse of slates and slate pencils, the covering of school books, etc. The Children's Aid Society, recognizing the importance of such regulations, has endeavored to comply with the demands therein set forth.

In bringing this report to a close, permit me to say that I am fully convinced that without the assistance schools such as ours afford, hundreds and thousands of the offspring of the ignorant and poorest classes in this community would be deprived of all school privileges.

Instrumentalities, such as this Society has set in motion, are certainly required before these children can be brought within the sphere of moral and educational influence.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The managers gratefully report another year of successful work at the West Side School. Hot dinners have been given to the scholars every day, and teachers have been provided for the kindergarten, the sewing, cooking and dressmaking classes. Appropriations have also been made for the Christmas and Thanksgiving festivals, for the summer excursion to Bath Beach, L. I., and for relief for the poor when required. The managers have held their monthly meetings as usual, and have endeavored at these meetings to study the needs of the school and of the children individually. The past winter, with its sickness and its lack of work for the poorer classes, has been a hard one for many of the families of the scholars. The managers are deeply grateful for the assistance which has been so freely given them to carry on their work and for the interest which has been shown, not only in many welcome donations, but in the efficient work of the teachers and the personal influence and sympathy of those who, from time to time, have visited the school.

Special mention should be made of the large and valuable gifts of new garments from the Monday sewing class.

It has been gratifying to note the increasing intelligence with which the children sing and recite at their occasional entertainments. An appreciation of the spirit of the selections and a desire to render them creditably is becoming every year more apparent. The refining result of association with the high moral standing constantly kept before the school is perhaps shown as acceptably in these little festivals as in the more intellectual work of the class-rooms, and more than a passing word of thanks is due to the teachers who arrange the programmes which give so much pleasure to the children, their parents and the board of managers.

The managers trust that health and strength may be given them to carry on the work during the coming year.

The third year of the Brearley League Industrial School was most successfully brought to a close on April 10, 1896, the teachers and members of the league feeling that a decided step in the general welfare of the school had been taken during the winter.

Probably the most encouraging feature was the cooking classes, held twice a week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings, each class having an average attendance of fifteen girls. The pleasure, faithfulness and practical results of these classes so appealed to the members of the league that it was voted to continue two extra classes after the school closed, during April, May and June. The girls were taught the simple methods of making a fire, washing dishes, cleanliness in the kitchen, etc., as well as the practical cooking of cereals, good coffee and the boiling of vegetables. The desire not to miss a lesson, even on holidays, and the happy reports of what "father thought" of some trial dish, showed the sincere wish of each girl to profit by the opportunity offered her.

The dressmaking class is always popular. Our two teachers are most faithful in their attendance, but we have more applications for this class than we are able to accommodate. The members furnish their own material, and the exhibition of dresses, underwear, etc., given to show their handiwork was worthy of the careful inspection given. These classes were continued during the summer, and the evenings were never too warm to prevent a full attendance.

As usual, the school classes, conducted by three competent and interested teachers, have been well attended, and the amusements given Friday evenings by members of the league were greatly enjoyed and appreciated by these girls, into whose lives so little pleasure is woven. The average attendance of the school is seventy-three, exclusive of the extra classes, and of this number most of the girls work in factories, while others are cash girls, etc. Their lives are very limited, and the only opportunity to fit them for future usefulness is given them in this school. We seek, through efficient and thoughtful teachers, to instil a practical benefit, and through the amusements offered their lives are brightened and they know that an interest for their welfare is working. The results have been so gratifying that we but aim to broaden our efforts in their behalf.

Sixty-two girls were given an outing of from one to four weeks during the heated months, in many cases a rest most urgently needed.

FLORENCE S. SULLIVAN,

President.

Avenue B School, 533 East Sixteenth Street.

The children of our school, for various reasons, are not in condition to attend the public school. Many come without breakfast, many must mind the younger child while the widowed mother goes to a day's washing, and quite a number are absent while the mother washes their one dress. They are too poor and too irregular in attendance to go to the public school, and need just the sympathy which we are able to give. All have been visited, and we know their sorrowful tales of hunger and want. Three hundred visits have been made to these destitute families since January, and words of encouragement and kindly cheer have been spoken to them. The children came to us in large numbers and are doing excellent work. The truants whom we attracted to the school last year are still with us, and we expect soon to send some of them to the grammar school. It is a pleasure to do this work, and as the years go by we love it more and more.

Mr. Waldorf Astor is still our friend and benefactor, and through his generous kindness we expect very soon to have a new building, where we will have room to improve our work and establish manual training classes. The new building will be a memorial to our devoted friend, the late Mrs. Astor.

Mr. D. Willis James and Mr. F. Delano Weekes made Christmas a glad day for our children, providing games, books and candies. To them, and to the churches and circles of King's Daughters and kind friends at Hackensack, we extend our hearty thanks.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

We have under our care an unusual number of especially neglected girls during the past year. At first, with some of the number, the attractions of the street seemed to greatly surpass those of the school-room. But by dint of commendation whenever they come, and words of encouragement at the faintest effort on their part to submit to discipline, their interest was gradually gained, and the way to regular attendance was easy after that. Our sewing and cooking classes, supported by our board of ladies, consist of girls in great need of this instruction.

Mrs. William E. Dodge, Jr., is always interested in the means to better qualify our children for future usefulness, and we are indebted to her for the stoves and culinary utensils necessary to properly equip the cooking class. She also supplies the wherewithal for the Vacation School, and the teacher of manual training, as well as the material for the purpose.

Last Christmas, Mrs. George Cabot Ward provided dresses of outing flannel for the larger girls. The effect of their improved personal appearance upon some of the rudest of the girls was marvelous.

To perpetuate a long time custom of her father, Mr. Robert L. Livingston, Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry sends us a check of $250 about Christmas time, which is used almost exclusively for shoes. The children pay for these shoes fifty or twenty-five cents, according to their circumstances. With these quarters and fifty-cent pieces we start a perpetual shoe fund for the year.

Miss Helen T. Barney is a most generous subscriber, while Miss Laura Billings and Miss Julia Isham not only give freely of their means, but of their time and strength as well. The Thanksgiving dinner furnished by Miss Mary Billings is an event of greater importance to many a poor child than probably the kind donor imagines. To Mrs. Van Boskerck we are indebted for many kind and thoughtful attentions. Mrs. Whitehead is also one of the board of ladies, and a subscriber, as is also Miss Butler.

Mrs. Morris K. Jesup assists us at Christmas. In closing we will add that a story, intended to inculcate kindness to animals, is told before the assembled school once a week, and we are still striving, through the Anti-Rubbish League, to keep the halls and class-rooms neat, as well as the sidewalks and streets.

The work of this committee has been carried on with much interest during the past season and with very satisfactory results.

The hot dinners, which were established during the previous winter, were continued from November until April, and an average of 150 children received them daily. These children were all extremely poor, and were greatly benefited by this nourishing meal.

The first and most important new work of this winter was the establishing of a cooking class. Two lessons a week were given to fifteen girls, ranging from 11 to 13 years of age, and under the direction of Miss Peacock they learned to prepare simple dishes, which they could have at home, and were trained in the management of a coal fire and of a gas stove. They were taught also the necessity of neatness, and the proper care of their cooking utensils.

In February a class in carpentry was started under the care of Miss Garthwaite. Twelve small desks, each with a set of tools, were provided for the boys, and they learned to draw geometrical figures and shape wood accurately. Through the generosity of some of the ladies, these lessons were continued for three months after the work of the committee closed and the boys showed great interest in their work.

Three or four mothers' meetings were held, after Christmas, and there seemed to be sufficient interest among the mothers to continue work in that direction when possible. The committee were glad to lend assistance at the Christmas festival, and did what they could to make it a happy time for the children.

There is a deep sympathy between the committee and the corps of teachers, and together they hope to do much for the welfare of the children.

The German Industrial School, No. 272 Second Street.

(Established in 1859 by Messrs. O. OTTENDORFER, WM. AUFERMANN, JULIUS HESS, LOUIS WINDMULLER and others.

This school has been doing its regular primary grade work, besides giving four hours per week to the sewing class and one hour and a half per week to a class in thin wood cutting — this last through the generosity of Mrs. J. M. White. The evening school conducts a cooking class one evening per week. We have a large kindergarten in the very pleasantest room the children have ever seen. A few children are attending here because the public schools in this vicinity are overcrowded, but most of the families are wretchedly poor and the children would suffer without the aid we give them in food, clothing, shoes and work. One little girl 12 years old earned $11 during the winter sewing for the school. She did her work much better than some of the mothers. Her father was out of work and they needed her earnings. I can only mention a few of the many we have helped. Mr. A. had no employment and his wife was ill all winter. There were seven children. They were supported by the little boys leaving school at 1.30 and selling papers in the streets. It was a meager support. They were sometimes without food and often without fire during the winter. The boys felt the responsibility resting upon them and acted more like little men than like children.

The J. family sent four very degraded children to school. They had no idea of right and wrong, truthfulness, obedience or the rights of others. Our visitor called on them to learn what their home surroundings were. She found them in a filthy rear tenement having a stable in the yard, which gave out unendurable odors. The mother was ill and the father had been out of work five months. The condition of the yard was reported to the board of health and is now very much improved. The children are improving, especially the eldest girl of 12 years, but they still come to school without their breakfast.

- There are so many cases of extreme poverty I can not refer to them all. The B. family, too poor to dress their new-born infant, until I sent it clothing, when it was seven days old. E. family, distressingly poor, they live in the basement of a rear house. The little girl Anna was ill a long time. We sent doctor, food and clothing. And many, many more just as poor have received food, clothing and shoes.

The generosity of our friends made it possible to do this. Mrs. J. M. White gave the children hot dinners through the winter, and when the warm weather came she gave them milk, which they relished greatly, eating it with their bread. She also gave money to buy material and pay the mothers for making it up into clothing for the children. Mr. James Speyer gave a bountiful Christmas dinner and shoes and a box of candy to each child. Mr. W. Bayard Cutting always remembers us at Christmas tide, and, although the Misses Williams were traveling abroad they remembered to send their usual donation to the German children. Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry also sent us a Christmas donation. We thank all these friends most heartily for their sympathy, encouragement and donations and hope they will continue their good work during the year to come.

Italian School, No. 156 Leonard Street.

(Erected in 1874 by the Messrs. FABBRI and others.)

The misery and utter wretchedness of the homes of most of our children beggars description. Only those who have been in their quarters can possibly appreciate the abject poverty and pitiful lack of all that make a place fit to be called "home." In one room live two families, taking boarders. Three beds filled up much of the space, over one hangs a little hammock in which sleeps a tiny baby; yet in this place these people eat, sleep, live and daily sort rags and paper. No fire may be lighted lest the stock be ignited and on the coldest days they huddle together and work for a miserable pittance barely to keep body and soul together. In such a struggle even the little children are made to help as much as possible. The mothers can give little care to their children. Drunkenness and vice surround them and as they live their modesty can have little protection.

From such homes our children come, half fed, half clothed, with brains stupefied with ill treatment and bodies stunted with disease and hunger. To feed, clothe and develop the good that is in them is our work. To the care given them they gratefully respond, and soon a marked improvement is seen in their habits and behavior. It is often impossible to secure anything like regular attendance. The children must help their mothers sew coats, or take care of the babies while the mothers work. So many a day is lost. Slowly with patience and tact all these difficulties are overcome, and in spite of all drawbacks our children develop intelligence and advance in their school work.

Thanks to the continued generosity of Mrs. E. P. Fabbri, we have been able to give to all the needy ones a good meal, in many cases the only warm food they get during the day. A class in cooking, supported by Mr. Osborn, has helped the larger girls to a knowledge of how simple cheap food should be cooked. To Mrs. J. P. Morgan the boys are indebted for again enjoying a week in camp, under the care of Colonel Kenyon, whose influence over the boys can not be too highly estimated.

REPORT OF THE NIGHT SCHOOL.

The children who attend the night school are gathered from the same miserable homes and wretched surroundings as those we have with us during the day. These are, however, the older children, those who for the sake of the little they can earn toward the support of the family, must work daily in the factories at tobacco or candy.

They are often sent there when they are not more than 10 years of age. Girls of 11, 12 and 13 are frequently found among them. They leave school at that age, the next month the mother comes to the teacher asking for a certificate that her child is 14. They are indignant when refused, and will then go before a notary public and swear that the girl is 14, get the desired certificate, and put the child to work. These children generally lose the benefits of the school at once, as they cease to attend in the day, and are not old enough, as the teachers know, to attend at night. What is to be done for them ?

The boys are on the street selling papers or bootblacking all day. They loiter around the saloon door for patronage, and an indelible mark is left upon them as a result of the depravity they must witness and which becomes as common as the air they breathe about them. Our night school takes these poor children in from factory and the street, places them in the care of good teachers, who train them in useful arts and make it possible for them to overcome the effects of their unfortunate surroundings in daily life.

The girls are learning to appreciate the pure and the good. The influence of the school has left its mark upon them. The boys are interested in games and in reading. School is a pleasant place, where there is always something to interest them. One mother said: "When will the night school open? I hope it will be soon. My boy goes to the saloon now because he has nowhere else to go. If school were open he would be happy there." Another boy, being accused of frequenting a saloon, said in explanation: "No, indeed! I and my companions are not in the saloon. We have hired a little room back of the store in which to hold club meetings, for we have no other place to go." "Do you not order drinks?" he was asked. Hanging his head he replied: "Well, sometimes we do." If this boy and his companions could have their little social club at the school building there would be no temptation to "order drinks." Can not something in this line be done for these poor boys? Can not we interest some good and charitable persons in the project, and thus make it possible to fit up for them a room where they may have their simple games, their books and music? And will not some one donate books of suitable reading matter for such boys? The power for good in an undertaking of this kind can not be measured. As for the girls, they are sorely in need of funds to carry on the class in sewing and dressmaking. Materials upon which they can work are needed. The work already in this class is very important, and has been the means of improving the appearance and home surroundings of many of the class members.

We want to reach more of the girls and through them carry this good influence further into their homes.

Owing to the thoughtful generosity of Mr. Osborn the girls were instructed in cooking, and a blessing it proved to them indeed, for the knowledge thus gained in this art enabled them to prepare wholesome food at home and taught them to make the most of the little they had to cook. The sewing and dressmaking class was well attended and was also of great benefit to the girls. The good done by these two classes can not be estimated. My close intimacy with the prevailing condition of things in their homes, gained by years of visiting among them, enables me to speak strongly on this subject. Better conditions have been made possible by the training of the girls in cooking and sewing, and the homes show the result of the good work. Lessons in Italian were given during the year and continued as a special class during April and May, the Italian government generously supplying the funds for the support of this class.

• ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

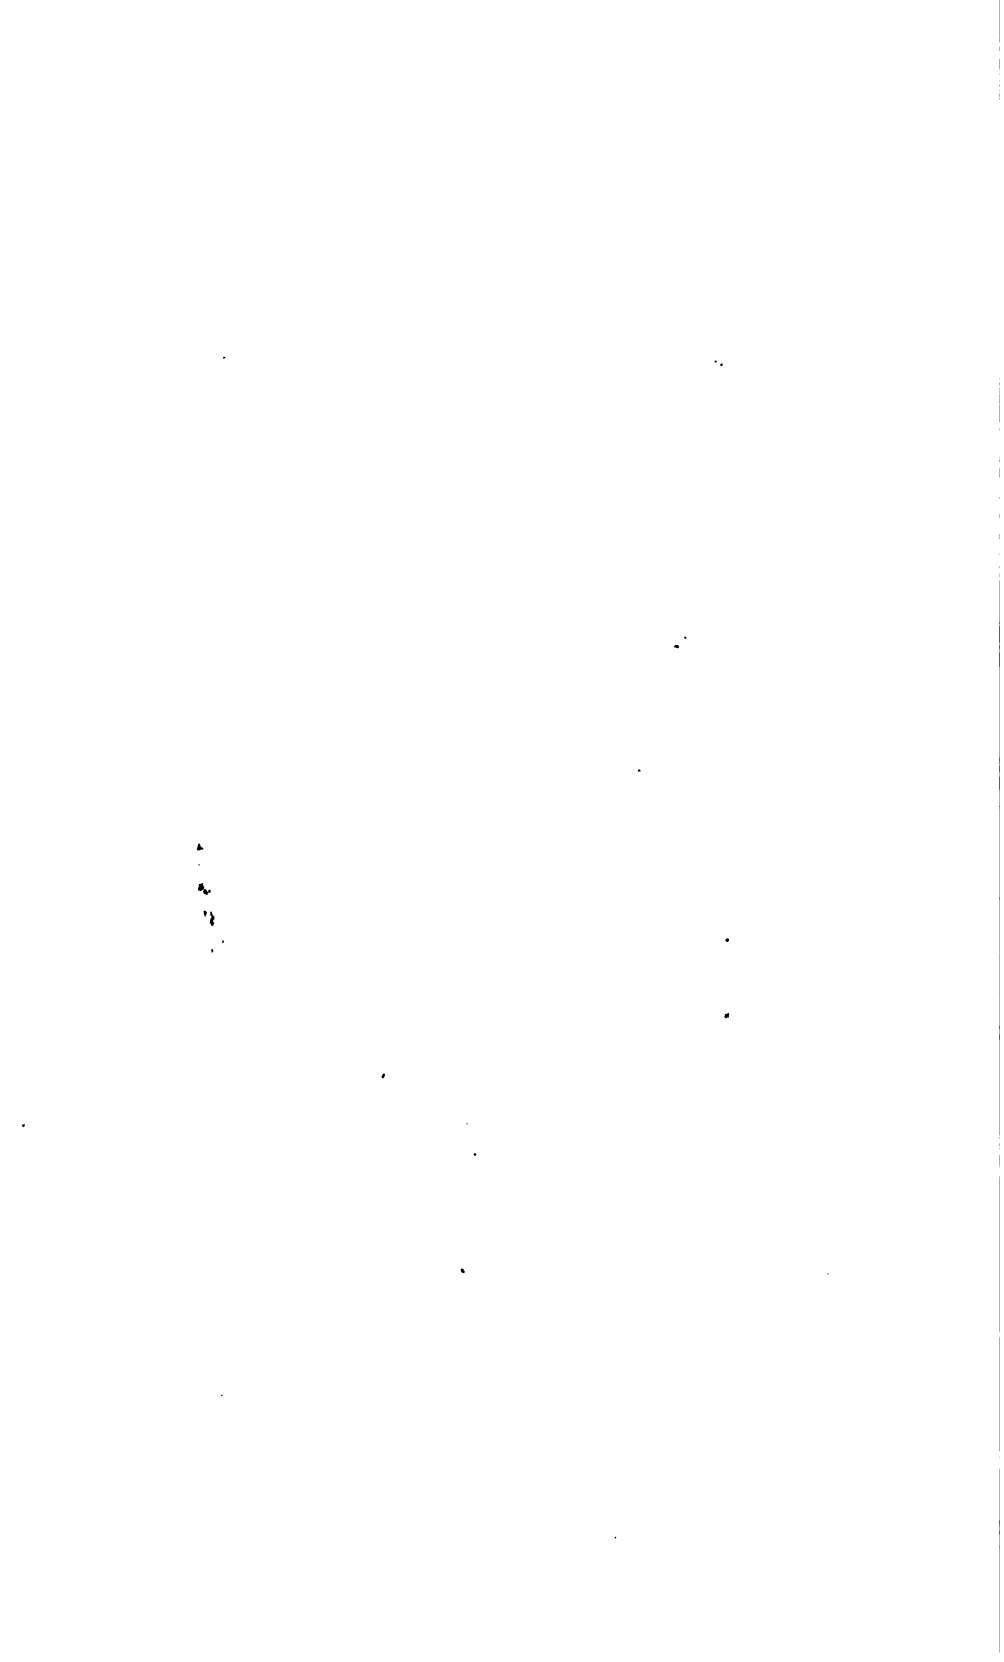

Our school is the center of a district known on the East Side as Bohemia. We have a large attendance of Bohemian children, whose parents are cigarmakers and tailors. Families of six and seven persons live in three or four rooms, for which they pay exorbitant rents, leaving little of their scant earnings for the necessities of life. Between strikes and low wages they are in continual want. When home work is carried on children help by stripping tobacco, while their parents make the cigars. At 12 years of age they adopt the trade of their parents, for they must soon become bread-winners. The fathers are often found at home attending to the household duties, while the mothers are at work in the factory, for often women can secure employment where men fail. Often a child earning $2 or $3 a week is the principal support of a family. We have many children who have lost their places in the public schools, through sickness and absence, caused by the inability of parents to provide necessary clothing and shoes, at a time when they were out of work and scarcely able to provide food. They need the little help we can give, while they are being trained into habits of usefulness. The industrial work is looked upon with much favor by both parent and child.

Frequent visiting makes us personally acquainted with the condition of our poor, and through the thoughtfulness of Mr. James H. Jones, we have been enabled to relieve many deserving families. Work was given, for which they received shoes, clothing or provisions, as the case required. Warm dinners have been kindly provided by Mr. Jones, and the children have greatly benefited by this charity. Through his liberality, a new course of woodwork has been introduced, which is giving entire satisfaction. A children's playground, opened this year and supported by Mr. Jones, was largely attended and greatly appreciated.

Manual training is an important feature of our work, and is attended with good results. Instruction in sewing and freehand drawing is given in every class. Cooking is taught to the older girls. A number of mothers have received instructions in sewing and have made many serviceable garments for themselves and children.

An evening class for girls has been largely patronized by cigar makers and cash girls. Lessons in cooking have been eagerly accepted and repeated in their homes.

In closing we desire to thank most cordially Mrs. A. Newbold Morris, Mrs. Van Rensselaer, Mr. W. Bayard Cutting and all who have contributed in any way to make our work a success.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

The population of this neighborhood is so dense that all the schools combined in this locality are inadequate to accommodate the children who apply for admission; we have been obliged to turn away hundreds the past year. It has been very difficult to find places in the grammar schools for our scholars we promote, and most of those admitted are on half time.

Mrs. Lord very kindly started a school library last winter, which has been a great pleasure as well as profit, to the pupils; the use of it was extended to the public school children, as well as to those whom we had promoted.

A class in woodwork was started last spring which promises to be successful. We begin to see results of the training in drawing which please us. The children are very much interested in drawing from nature.

One important branch of our work is to form special classes for the foreigners. Russians who flock to us, having been refused in the public schools, because they could not speak or understand English. They are children from 10 to 12 years of age, too large and too old for the sixth grade. They have been taught in their own country, and being very ambitious they advance very rapidly, and are soon able to be placed in regular classes, and as soon as possible are forwarded to the public schools. Without our care and attention they would probably be left to roam in the streets and grow up in ignorance.

Mrs. Lord, as usual, generously remembered all the children at Christmas time with gifts of books.

We are in the midst of a floating population of the poorest class of Italians, who come to us in all their squalor and wretchedness. Their children are half starved and ignorant of everything. To keep the older ones in school we have to allow the baby to come too, for the "Little Mothers" must of necessity look after the baby, while mother is working, trying to eke out a scanty existence.

Many of our boys are obliged to leave school at 2 o'clock, to go for evening papers. In many cases they are the only wage-earners, while others come begging us to find work for their parents. We listen and strive to help, never turning one away without a word of sympathy, if no more.

To Miss Travers our thanks are due for her relief fund, which enabled us to help the sick and destitute families through the cold weather, thus bringing new hope into many a despondent heart. Miss Travers also provided warm dinners for one month and sustained the singing and kitchen-garden classes. As usual, at Christmas, she made happy over 400 little ones by her gifts, and made it possible for us to open an evening school for our older boys and girls working in shops and factories.

To Mrs. James, Miss Carll, Mrs. Gerry and Miss Winthrop we are more than grateful for providing warm dinners, clothing and shoes during the winter. I would also mention Miss Nordhoff's Home for Little Ones at Alpine, N. J., where she kindly received four parties of twelve each.

Our thanks are due to Dr. G. H. Mallett, for so faithfully attending our sick, to the Women's Auxiliary of Riverdale, to the societies of Christian Endeavor and King's Daughters and ladies who have

(Erected in 1892 by Mrs. JOSEPH M. WHITE and Miss MATILDA W. BRUCK.)

In looking back over the year that is passed we rejoice that, through the kindness and generosity of a noble band of ladies, we have been able to help the poor and needy; for without that help many of our scholars would have been unable to come to school. Mrs. White has employed two visitors to call upon the families, and a very careful investigation has been made of the condition of the children attending this school. In many cases there was extreme suffering during the winter. Our visitors found the cause was not so much on account of intemperance as in former years, but because parents were either sick or out of work. One family—father mother and four children, occupied one room, at a rent of $7 per month. The father has a push-cart and makes at the most $3 or $4 weekly; sometimes almost nothing; at such times they are obliged to depend on the kindness of a grocer to trust them. This is but one case of hundreds we might give. One little girl, we promoted to the public school, came crying to us one morning, saying that her mother had fallen and hurt herself, and her father was not able to buy her any shoes. She wanted to know if I could let her have a pair for 50 cents as she had been obliged to leave school. She promised to go to school if she had shoes. I gave her sewing for her mother to do, to make up the balance, as she could give only 50 cents. It is repeatedly the case that those we send to public schools go but a short time, for the want of clothing and shoes. Our system for helping the children is through attendance tickets, or, sometimes, if they have not the necessary number of tickets, we give the mother sewing to do to make up the deficiency, if the child is in need of immediate help.

Mrs. White and Miss Bruce have continued the kitchen-garden and cooking classes. Miss Bruce continues to furnish material for, and support, the dressmaking, woodwork, clay-modeling, drawing and printing classes. The singing, conducted by Miss Dunning, through Mrs. White's kindness, has been a great success.

General Kenyon has continued drilling the boys in military tactics once a week during the year; and we know it is a benefit to the boys to have the influence of these exercises. Miss Bruce, Mrs. White and Mrs. Hammersley gave sewing to the mothers last winter, that in some cases prevented families from being turned out of a home.

Not an unimportant feature of our work last year was the nourishing, hot dinners furnished every day by Miss Bruce. The faces of our children show what that meal is to them. To those who, at Christmas, and throughout the year, have assisted us in making lighter the burdens of these poor people, we would at this time express our sincere thanks for their hearty co-operation and generosity.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

It gives me great pleasure to recount the satisfactory work of the School during the past year, especially in the industrial department. The cooking class has been a particularly successful branch; it not only possesses a fascination in itself for the girls, but opens up a new field of practical usefulness from the bread-earning point of view. They become so thoroughly interested in their newly acquired art that we frequently hear them say, "When I leave school I am going out to service." A class in dressmaking was conducted by Miss Bessie Sands and Miss Sarah Cole, which, with the one in embroidery for the older girls, taught and supported by Miss Edith Sands, assisted by Miss L. Schroeder, opens up to these girls still another way of earning a living. Through the generosity of Mrs. Frederic Goodridge and Mrs. P. J. Sands a class in wood-cutting was started last March, and has been remarkably successful. The work done in the regular classes has been very satisfactory and was highly commended by the public school examiners. The kindergarten is especially interesting and the bright little faces and clever little fingers are extremely pleasant to look upon.

It is difficult to realize the poverty and misery in this locality, and whatever be its cause or however hopeless in the case of the older persons, it is a necessary and a noble work to lift the young lives out of it, and give them a chance for better things.

In conclusion I would thank again Mrs. Sands, Mrs. Stokes and all who have lent us their aid and sympathy in our work.

Pike Street Industrial School, No. 28 Pike Street.

Since the last annual report a great sorrow has befallen our school. Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, our dearly loved friend and benefactress, after only a few days' illness, was called, last April, to her heavenly home. The Pike Street School, formerly known as the Fourth Ward School, is the oldest school in the Society, and for thirty years or more Mrs. Hamilton has been deeply interested in it. During the lifetime of Mrs. Joseph Delafield, Mrs. Hamilton's sister and a warm friend of the school, she and Mrs. Hamilton were frequent visitors at the school. But for several years Mrs. Hamilton has lived out of town, and has therefore been unable to visit us, but her interest in nowise abated. She gave most generously for shoes and clothing and toward the hot dinners. It was Mrs. Hamilton who started the "Band of Mercy," now in so flourishing a condition in our school.

We have left to us, we are most thankful to say, kind friends who help and encourage us by their visits and generous contributions, but both teachers and scholars feel that by the death of Mrs. Hamilton they have lost a very dear friend.

Our school is full to overflowing, as is every school in this ward, and we regret that there are many children in the neighborhood who are without a school home. Our children, with very few exceptions, are Hebrews, many of them coming to us almost directly from Russia, Germany and Poland, and not understanding a word of English. It is, however, astonishing how soon they acquire the language and learn to respect the flag.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

In April we took possession of our new school in Sixty-third street. We have a large, beautiful building in which to continue our work, and the neighborhood is one that requires it, as the streets are thronged with children who do not attend school.

We have very many destitute families and many applications for help. The frequent strikes have caused much suffering. Visiting seems a possible necessity, and our visitor is very faithful in her work. Two hundred and twenty calls were made during the year, and many worthy ones were helped.

We feel deeply grateful to Dr. George G. Wheelock, the Busy Bee League, and the West End Collegiate Guild for valuable help. To our kind friends, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Thaw, who supplied the school with warm dinners, we would again tender our most sincere gratitude.

We would gladly introduce into our new building a cooking class for the larger girls and some sort of manual training for the boys. We have plenty of room for such work. It would be a great help to the school.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

The work of the past year has been very encouraging, the children have attended well and have been interested in all branches of the work. Our manual work (cooking, carpentry and kitchen-garden) has been carried on successfully and the children of those classes have gained ideas which they may put into practical use. The sewing class, consisting of ninety-five girls, did very good systematic work. A goodly number of children received warm garments during the winter, which were generously donated by Mrs. Benjamin and daughter, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Rhoades and Miss Gillender. Mrs. Rhoades also kindly remembered the little ones at Easter by sending them comfortable dresses for the spring and summer and beautiful Easter cards.

Through the liberality of Mrs. Sloane warm dinners were provided during the winter and also a Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner. The Christmas entertainment was entered into heartily and the children made merry over the pretty toys, books, games and garments which they received from their kind and generous-hearted Santa Claus, Mrs. W. D. Sloane.

Thanking our friends for past favors and hoping they will remember us during the coming year.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

The girls and boys of the day school have always evinced great interest in their work in the serving, cookery and carpentry classes, and their mental and moral nature has been strengthened and fortified by lessons gleaned from our "Band of Mercy" meetings.

A desire to learn about our patriotic work brought us many distinguished visitors, at different times during the school year, and on June 4th delegations from Lafayette Post, G. A. R., Patria Club, Daughters of the Revolution and Sons of the Revolution enjoyed an exhibition of our work in that line.

The privileges of the evening classes were, as heretofore, thoroughly appreciated. There were more applications for admission than we could accept. Beside the usual classes in cookery, dressmaking and carpentry, we started a class in designing for girls, which proved most successful.

Our kind patron, Miss Rhinelander, contributed, as usual, most generously to the support of our manual training classes; also made it possible for us to send a company of our boys, the "Balch Cadets," for a three-weeks' outing at "Camp Wright," under the care of General A. C. Kenyon.

Mr. Oliver W. Buckingham made the boys happy by providing the means for an additional class in carpentry.

The Christmas donations of our good friends, Mrs. E. T. Gerry, Mr. W. Bayard Cutting and Miss Rhinelander, enabled us to give each child a book as a Christmas gift.

Last year's work was very successful. The teachers of each department have faithfully worked for a higher degree of excellence, and the result has been very satisfactory.

Through the kindness of Mr. D. W. James and a friend, the Sloyd system of wood carving was begun in the school. We would also gratefully acknowledge to Mr. James our sincere thanks for providing for the carrying on of the cooking class.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

Owing to inadequate accommodations we have been unable, during the past year, to extend our work as we had hoped to do. We have most urgent need for a kindergarten for our smallest children, classes in cooking and dressmaking for our large girls, carpentry or some other form of manual training for our older boys. All these branches we have long desired to introduce, and have been hoping each year that we might be enabled, through the generosity of some friend, to commence instructions in these departments.

On "Flag Day" the "Daughters of the Revolution" of the State of New York, Mrs. E. Paulet Steers, Regent, visited us and presented the school with a superb stand of colors. We feel most grateful to these ladies for their earnest co-operation in our efforts to make good American citizens of these little foreigners.

I wish that the space allotted to me would permit of extended and individual thanks to all the friends who have aided and encouraged us during the past year.

Our kind friends have been the same beneficent fairies to our little people as of yore, during the past year. Mr. James A. Roosevelt cares for the children with his usual unfailing kindness. His very name is a prayer with us. Mrs. Alfred Roosevelt gave the school their dinner party on Thanksgiving, as this kind lady has done for years. Mr. W. Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry and Mrs. Howard Potter, with Mrs. J. Kennedy Tod, contributed to give our little ones a royal Christmas celebration.

The kindergarten has been very prosperous during the past year. The poor worn mothers fully appreciate the untiring care, and the missionary-like devotion of the kindergarten teachers. With every trust in the Great Power that has blessed our humble efforts.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRINCIPAL.

Our children are mostly Italians and are from the poorest families, and very often we find among them extreme cases of need, owing to want of employment or sickness. These children require a school of this nature where they can obtain, if necessary, hot dinners and such other help as we are able to give. I have visited all the families and through the kindness of our friends have been able to afford relief in many cases. I have endeavored also to induce truant children to come to school and by following them up and exercising much patience have managed to keep a good many of them in our school. The clay modeling and drawing, the sewing lessons and singing lessons help to retain the interest of these children.

We are deeply grateful to the kind friends who rendered such efficient aid during the hard times of last winter. Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry's fund enabled us to furnish shoes and clothing to many children who otherwise could not have attended school. To Mrs. Van Nest and Mrs. C. Probst we are grateful for an emergency fund to help our poor when most needed. Mrs. Orme Wilson kindly furnished the hot dinners for our poor children. I can not find words to thank her for this most necessary help to our work; many of these children could not do school work but for the strength given them by these dinners.

SUMMER HOME FOR CHILDREN, BATH BEACH.

Report of Medical Work in Connection with the Schools of the Children's Aid Society.

From about October 1, 1895, to the close of our schools July 3, 1896, 1,991 visits were made by Drs. S. C. Jaques and G. H. Mallett, to the homes of children requiring medical advice and treatment. These children were all registered as pupils at our various schools and all of our schools have had a share in this form of relief.

It has been our aim to limit this assistance to those who, upon investigation, were found unable to secure, from other sources, proper medical service. It is extremely difficult, in a few words, to convey to those unfamiliar with the needs of the poor children of our city, the very beneficial effect of such a work as is described in this brief report. Among the whole number of cases treated, there were but two deaths and ten were transferred to the hospitals.

The cost for maintaining this most excellent form of charity during the nine months it was in operation, was $1,226.59, there being included in this sum the cost of medicines and necessary printing.

Summer Home, Bath Beach, L. I.

(Founded by A. B. STONE, Esq.)

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

It is impossible for those moving in the higher walks of life to fully realize what the Summer Home has been to the 6,254 poor little waifs of humanity who came from the squalor of their dingy tenement homes and enjoyed its hospitality during the season just passed. The shady lawns, the trees, the expanse of ever changing blue water, the abundant food, the beautiful dormitories, with their brass-railed, white-enameled beds, delight and astonish them, and very many, if not all, receive here their first lesson in a better way of living. Altogether the Home is doubtless by contrast more beautiful to them than a dream of Heaven; and so we do not wonder at an expressive conversation that took place between two very bright but extremely ragged little boys. As Mr. Stone, the founder of the Home, walked in at the gate, one ragged little urchin said to the other: "Hey! there comes Mr. Stone. He's just like God, ain't he?" "No, he ain't." "I tell you he is, don't he give us everything?" The boy addressed looked up and around, said nothing, but was evidently filled for the time with a new thought expressed in one word, possession, and hearing the bell ring for supper he seemed to fully agree with his companion as they started in a merry race across the lawn.

The Summer Home is indeed everything of pleasure and delight to many of these children. A bright little girl with a calculating turn of mind conducive to good housewifery, exclaimed as she looked in at the dining-room window : " Oh ! peaches for supper, a penny a piece, and we get three, and there's 300 of us, that's 900 pennies. Whew ! they cost a lot." A larger girl standing near said : " Nine dollars ; that keeps our family of eight a whole week."

A little German boy, writing home, says : " I get plenty to eat, but there ain't no beer here, so I dook coffee. I sleep mit gold beds."

Three thousand eight hundred and seventeen girls and boys spent each a week at the Home, and 2,437 boys enjoyed the daily picnics given them during the first week in July, making a total of 6,254 children, a larger number than we have ever entertained during any one season before. Notwithstanding this large number we have returned to the city more than 300 children for lack of accommodation. Our Home has been crowded to its utmost capacity during the entire season of twelve weeks, because it is so hard to resist the pitiful pleading, " Oh, please let us stay and we will sleep on the floor, and won't eat much," or, " We'll sleep three or four in a bed," or, " We won't sleep at all and we won't eat anything, if you'll only just let us stay. Oh ! do please." And, if possible, we let them stay, but we shall hope that God will touch the heart of some benevolent person in behalf of these poor children before the commencement of our next season's work, and awaken in him or her a desire to give us $4,000, the amount necessary to make the greatly needed improvement asked for last year. We heartily thank all the friends of the institution whose names may be found among the donors in another part of the report, and desire to call special attention to an effort being made by the guests of the Hotel Bolingbroke at Bath Beach, with a hope that others may be induced to follow their example. They gave last summer an entertainment and propose to continue these entertainments each succeeding summer until the amount is increased to $520, the sum necessary to permanently endow a bed at the Home. To those who feel that they can not give so large an amount, we will state that a payment of $20 will purchase and furnish a bed in one of our cottages, and a payment of $30 will endow it for the season. In either case an engraved tablet, bearing the name of the donor is placed upon the bed. We are indebted to Mrs. N. Stetson for a beautiful new piano, two stools and a cover. We are greatly pleased to have this piano in our dining-room, as the old one had done service for many years. We are indebted to Mrs. Benjamin Haxtun for many acts of kindness. The cottage for crippled children bearing her name has done its usual good work, and has been a blessing to many weary little cripples from the city hospitals. The pretty little cottage built by the friend of poor children, the late Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, was again devoted exclusively to cash girls from the large stores. No more worthy charity than this can be bestowed, and certainly it is fully appreciated by these children, whose lives are made up mainly of hard work, interspersed with few pleasures.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE MATRON.

One gratifying result of our efforts in behalf of these poor people we have observed is the improved appearance of many who have come to us this summer. They are tidier in dress and habit, more quiet and well-behaved and in every respect seem lifted above the poor degraded ways that marked their first appearance here. There is also better health among the children; the mothers have learned to care for them more intelligently and learned the benefit of sanitary habits. We have been unusually crowded and often at a loss to know where to put them all to ensure comfort and health. There has been the usual number of ailing babies, but fewer very sick ones and but one death; this with the trying heat of the summer proves that a better condition prevails among these people, for which the homes and sanitariums of New York are to be accredited. Our unfailing friend, Mrs. Haxtun, has visited us almost weekly and rarely comes without some kind offering. We wish to thank all who have come to our aid, either in supplies for the needy ones or in kind words of appreciation and sympathy in our labors here. Most grateful mention is due to Mrs. Vanderbilt for the beautiful piano presented to the Home for the entertainment of the women and children.

Said one woman to me: "For one week I forget the cares and troubles of my life; it is like Heaven to me!" It is a little thing, but these simple pleasures give them a small share of the sweeter side of life, which comes so rarely to them. Altogether the numbers receiving the benefit of the Home are as follows:

For the week: Mothers, 1,004; children, 1,702; total..... 2,706

For the day: Mothers, 1,306; children, 2,120; total..... 3,426

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Oldest in point of organization, the Sick Children's Mission occupies an unique position among the children's summer charities of the city. There is no other which does precisely the same work. It conflicts with neither dispensaries, hospitals nor with private medical practice. Its beneficiaries are the little children of the poorest among the poor; children whose parents could not pay the smallest fee to a physician nor even the trifling charge which dispensaries make for medicine. In very many cases they have not the means of purchasing necessary food for their little ones, and "inanition" frequently appears in the list of ailments for which the children have been treated.

Our visitors co-operate with the physicians in instructing poor mothers regarding the care of the sick, the preparation of food, the clothing and bathing of children, the ventilation of their dwellings and other sanitary matters.

In closing this report we offer our grateful thanks to all the friends who have contributed to the support of this good work.

BRONZE MEDALS.

The Children's Aid Society has received two medals from the World's Columbian Commission at the Chicago International Exhibition, awarded one "for evidence of original plans and effective methods," the other "for excellence of the Rhinelander School exhibit and for aiding 80,000 children in finding country homes."

DEATH OF MR. WM. A. BOOTH.

Mr. Booth, for thirty-five years our president and trustee, died December 28, 1895. Only we, who intimately knew him, realize the ability and the wisdom which enabled him to cope successfully with the many problems of the Society.

At a special meeting of the board of trustees, the following resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, William A. Booth, having fallen asleep, December 28, 1895, at the end of a long and Christian life, the Children's Aid Society desires to have placed on its minutes this record as a memorial of his worth, so that in future times new members of our board may know of his goodness, and the memory of his love and his labors may be perpetuated.

"During thirty-two years, from 1860 to 1892, he was the president of our Society. Always active and vigilant, no weather or feebleness detained him from duty. Wise in counsel, gentle in admonition, prudent in presiding, gracious in association with his fellow trustees, and lovable to all the little folk under his care, his memory is as a bright and shining light in a dark place."

DEATH OF MR. GEORGE S. COE.

For nineteen years Mr. Coe has been treasurer of this Society, during which time $5,600,000 of trust funds have passed through his hands. He himself looked carefully into the appropriation and expenditure of these funds, and his name was a guarantee to the public. His sympathy and earnest feeling for the work we are engaged in was an inspiration to us. Officers and trustees alike have sustained by his death the loss of a valued and endeared friend.

At a meeting of the board of trustees on May 20th, the following minute expressive of his loss was adopted :

"Whereas, God in his Providence has removed from our midst our fellow trustee, George S. Coe, who for nineteen years has acted with rare fidelity as the treasurer of this Society. His voice and pen have always been eloquent in our behalf, and millions of money have passed without default through his hands, and his monthly accounts have been rendered all this time punctually, accurately and with sweet good will ;

"Therefore, we record the memory of a life full to old age of all good works, and are comforted at his death, being assured that 'Blessed is he that considereth the poor.'"

A few months previous to his death, Mr. Coe resigned his position as treasurer, continuing as trustee. Upon his resignation, Mr. A. B. Hepburn, president of the Third National Bank, was elected treasurer in his stead.

DEATH OF MRS. W. H. VANDERBILT.

The Society has met with an irreparable loss at the close of our year in the death of Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt. She has not only during the last fifteen years liberally helped to the support of our Summer Charities, but also presented a cottage to our Health Home at Coney Island for the care of women and sick children. Besides all this, she has sent over four hundred homeless children to homes in the west, by this means changing their lives from misfortune and misery to careers of usefulness. These will grow up to bless the unknown friend who rescued them.

Conclusion.

These pages describe the work of one year done by the Children's Aid Society. Nearly the same work has been done year by year since the organization of the Society in the year 1853. The trustees whose names appear in this report, and the others who have gone before, have devoted their time and their best endeavors to aid the work without pecuniary compensation, and often at much sacrifice. They do not make personal appeals for money, but through this report tell their tale of work done. If the simple history of that work does not reach the heart of the reader, all other solicitation will fail.

Trusting with God's help that this work may go on, though this generation of workers may fail, we humbly submit our report.

CHARLES LORING BRACE,

Secretary.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY, 105 EAST TWENTY-SECOND STREET, NEW YORK, November 10, 1896.

FORTY-FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
Treasurer of the Children's Aid Society.

To the Trustees of the Children's Aid Society:

GENTLEMEN—The late Mr. George S. Coe, shortly prior to his death, asked to be relieved of the duties of office, and I was on January 15, 1896, elected his successor as treasurer of your Society. For more than nineteen years Mr. Coe had been your treasurer. During this period his devotion to duties and his efficient and conscientious discharge of the labors devolving upon him won the respect and love of all the friends of the Society. In the wider field of his labors his great ability and noble Christian character commanded the admiration of all, and won him the highest place in the esteem and affection of the community. His life, so full, so complete in all the attributes of manhood, is a splendid addition to the list of distinguished Christian men who have devoted themselves to the interests of this Society.

In taking possession of and receipting for the property and securities of the Society, in conjunction with J. Kennedy Tod and Gustav E. Kissel, Auditing Committee, I made a thorough examination of the same and the different trust funds into which they are classified, which at the time was reported to the board in detail. I wish to congratulate you upon the very superior character of your investments. Tested by the severe strain of the present depression, you are not embarrassed in your labors by reason of defaulted interest upon investments.

The deficit at the commencement of the present fiscal year, as shown in the last annual report, was $11,442.97. There has been paid out during the past year $373,447.59 and there has been received from all sources $351,827.13, which shows a total deficit at the close of the year of $21,620.46.

This deficit is a matter of great anxiety to the trustees. Owing to the hard times since 1894, the demand on the Children's Aid Society in all directions has been greater than ever before. Especially is this true of the industrial schools, which have been crowded to the utmost, owing to the fact that the public school system does not supply school room for all the children who should attend. We have enlarged our capacity whenever it was possible, notably in the case of the Sixty-third Street School, where a large building formerly occupied by the Home for Discharged Convicts was offered us at less than half its cost. Our school in that neighborhood was in a small, mean building, entirely inadequate. In order to meet the needs of this district, where hundreds of children were upon the streets and unable to attend any school, the trustees thought it wise to purchase this building for a small part in cash, the balance in the form of a mortgage. Our president provided the cash needed at the moment. This school has now 400 children, proving the wisdom of its establishment, but the additional expense of remodeling it for a school building, and additional teachers, has been a severe tax upon our resources. In all departments the officers of the Society have endeavored to economize, but the work is carried on so carefully that it is almost impossible to reduce expenses without cutting off some of the work which is so valuable to the community. The trustees have hesitated to do this, and hope that by some means this deficit may be met. Our buildings are generally in good order, though several are inadequate to our needs. Especially is this true of the West Side Italian School, No. 24

Sullivan street, which is situated among the poorest class of Italians. Much more efficient work could be done if we had a new building. New schools are greatly needed in several of the over-crowded districts; especially is this true of the Seventh ward, one of the worst districts in the city, and also in the Italian colony in East One Hundred and Thirteenth street.

We have to thank Mr. William Waldorf Astor for the new building for our Avenue B School. He has very generously given this Society $50,000 for this purpose, the building to be a memorial to the late Mrs. Astor, who was so much interested in this school. The new building will allow much needed improvements in carrying on our work.

In addition to the former generous contributions, Mrs. Joseph M. White has materially helped on the good work by making us a gift of $22,700 toward an endowment fund for the Farm School, and $2,750 for a new laundry at the farm.

It is unfortunate, but necessarily true, that the hard times which diminish our donations from the well-to-do increase the necessities of the poor, and while the seemingly imperative demands upon us during the last year have increased, the funds placed at our disposal have not equalled our necessities.

Our 20 industrial schools, located in the most populous and poorest portions of the city, are a most important supplement to the public school system, not to mention the aid to good citizenship and morality rendered by bringing these children into school and surrounding them by Christian influences. We reach children not sufficiently well clad to enter the public schools. Of course, the public schools have no prescribed requirements as to clothing, but the desire to attend school on the part of these poorly clad children is not sufficiently strong to induce them to endure the neglect, or, perhaps, overt offensive treatment of those better clad. Poverty compels these children to contribute to their own support by selling newspapers morning and evening, for instance, or domestic work at home, so that they are unable to comply with the public school requirements as to punctuality and regularity in attendance. We reach children of emigrants, whose lack of familiarity with our language will not permit them to enter and maintain positions in the classes of our public schools. We reach those whom the public schools do not attract. We interest them with industrial training, objective teaching, and we command their sympathy and confidence by the visits of our teachers to their homes to ascertain their real condition and surroundings, by obtaining for the most needy better clothing, and by furnishing to those who require it a midday meal. Our instruction is accompanied by a kindly interest and attention to their material wants and welfare, which public schools necessarily can not extend. We are in the circumstances enabled to reach and retain children who in other circumstances would drift away, extend to them the benefits of education and impart to them an incentive to good citizenship which they otherwise would not receive. We feel that our work is a deserving charity, worthy the continued confidence of a generous public.

Respectfully submitted,

A. B. HEPBURN,

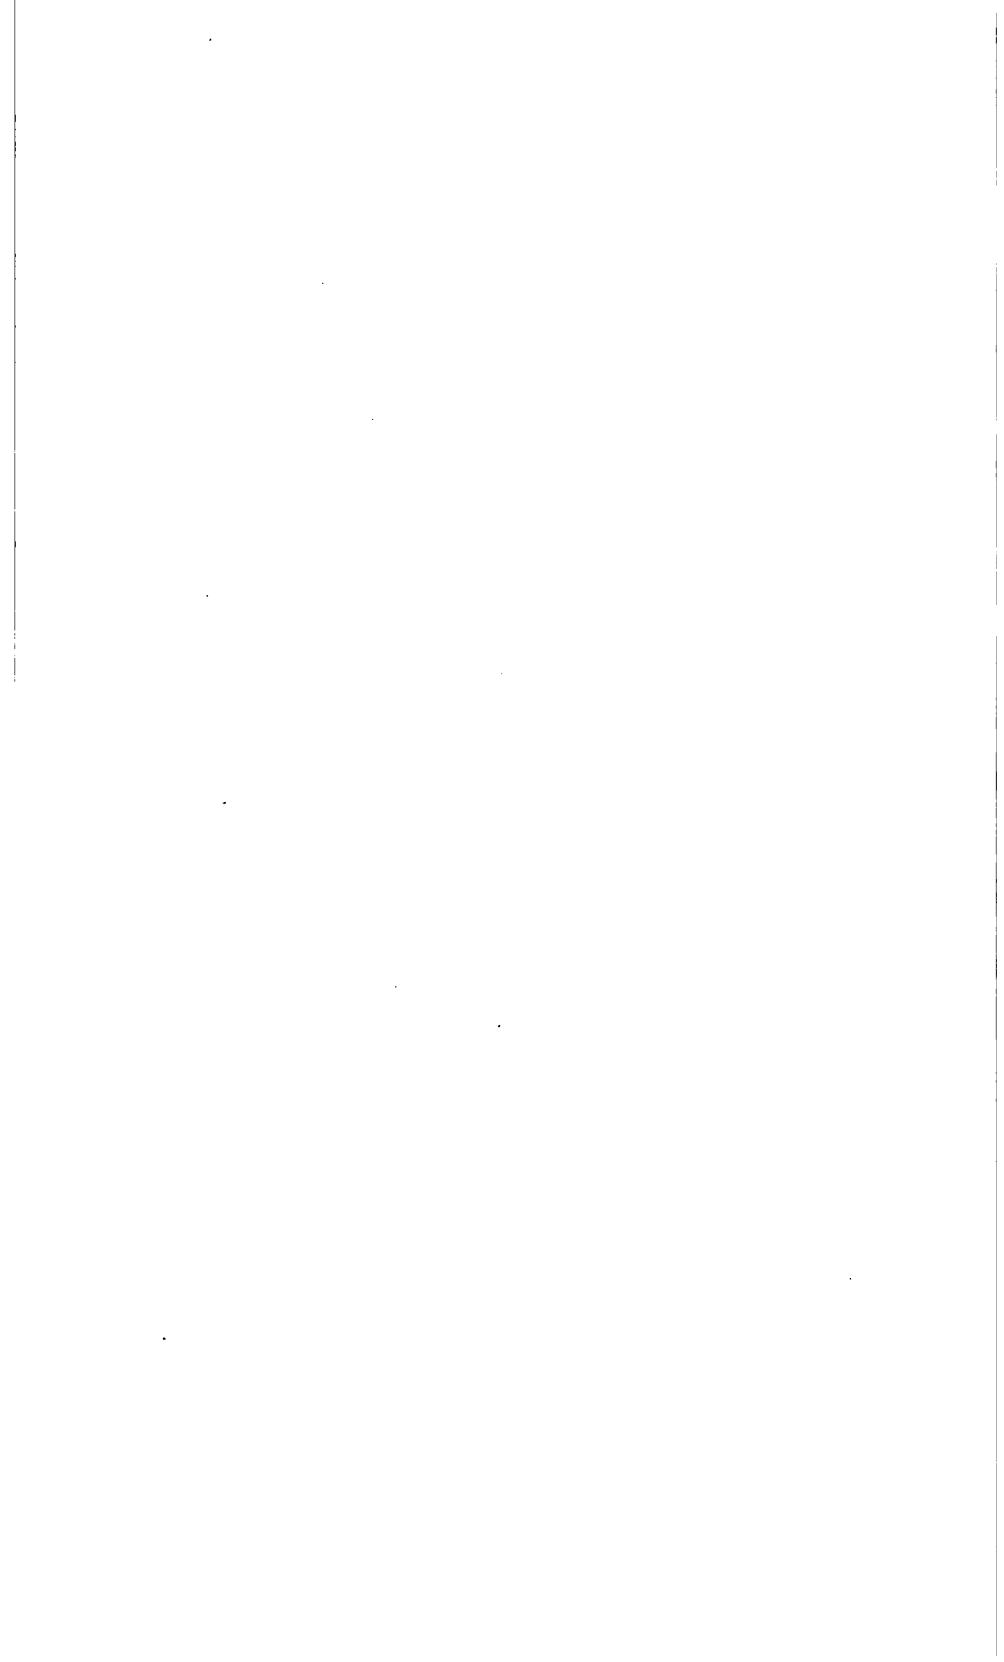

NEW YORK, November 1, 1896.

Treasurer.

SIXTH STREET SCHOOL.
(Erected in 1891 by Mrs. Wm. Douglas Sloane.)

The undersigned have examined the assets and also the accounts of the Children's Aid Society, and find the accounts correctly set forth in the foregoing report of the treasurer to November 1st.

J. KENNEDY TOD,

GUSTAVE E. KISSEL,

Auditing Committee.

NEW YORK, November 24, 1896.

APPENDIX.

Emigration.

A PAGE FROM OUR RECORD BOOK.

John C——, age 8 years, orphan, from Home for the Friendless, sent west June 17, 1877. Placed with John H. K., in Adrian county, Mo.

March 8, 1878, John is reported as doing well.

September 28, 1878, John is reported well.

September 17, 1879, John was transferred to a new home in Callo-way county, Mo. Transferred again to Charles C——, Williams-burg, Mo.

December 15, 1891, John writes a nice letter, stating that he is working for himself now and has saved $100, with which he is going to start a course at the Montgomery City College. He asks advice as to whether it would be best for him to go to school and study law or to keep on working on the farm.

August 17, 1892, John reported doing well.

October 16, 1892, John writes an excellent letter. He is attending school and making good progress. Thoughts of his childhood often recur to him, and when he compares them with his present condition and prospects he can not refrain from expressing anew his gratification to the Society. He is a Democrat, and hopes some day to participate in political affairs himself.

July 7, 1893, John writes that he is doing well; is working on a farm, earning $14 per month. He is anxious to teach school, and asks our advice whether it would pay to borrow some money to take a course at the State University.

February 15, 1894, John writes that he is studying Blackstone in the office of two prominent attorneys, and expects to be admitted to the bar this spring.

June 20, 1895, John writes that he was examined in open court and passed for admission to the bar without missing a question. He encloses a clipping from the county paper, which congratulates him on having passed the best examination ever taken before that court.

May 3, 1896, John writes that he has formed a partnership and has started in the law and real estate business. He expresses much gratitude for all that has been done for him.

ANOTHER PAGE FROM OUR RECORDS.

On July 3, 1862, John W——, foundling, 5 years of age, from the Nursery at Randall's Island, was taken west by C. C. Tracy, and placed with Mr. C——, in Trumbull county, Ohio.

July 11, 1864, John reported doing well.

June 19, 1865, John reported getting along very well, and will make a smart man.

February 5, 1866, John was reported as getting along in some respects, but he does not make much progress at school.

March 12, 1867, Mr. C—— writes that John has left home several times without cause, and that they can not control him.

April 18, 1871, John still in the same place.

June 18, 1876, John writes from the same town that he is at work for himself. He is anxious to know about his relatives and friends.

October 28, 1880, John writes that he is married and has one child; is earning $40 per month.

September 26, 1894, Mr. John B. W—— calls at the office to-day and presents his wife, a fine intelligent woman. Mr. W—— holds a good position with the Erie Railroad Company, and lives with his wife and six children in Ohio.

April 17, 1895, John is still with the same railroad company and doing well.

A CONGRESSMAN.

James A. Gray, 18 years old, American, half orphan, without home or employment, was sent west with Agent Tracy, April 16, 1861, and placed with Mr. Henry R——, at New Philadelphia, Ohio.

November 24, 1861, James reported as doing well.

March 17, 1861, the visiting agent reports that James is still living with Mr. R——, and is much liked by all who know him.

April 2, 1862, James writes giving an excellent account of himself, and saying that he is much encouraged by the letters received from the Children's Aid Society.

May 5, 1862, James reported as teaching school at Stone Creek, Ohio.

October 29, 1862, James writes an interesting letter, saying that he is teaching school and getting on.

January 15, 1863, another letter to the same effect.

August 2, 1863, James informs us that he is teaching and studying law.

January 4, 1868, James reports himself a counselor-at-law, under the name of James A. R——, having adopted the name of his foster parents. He states that he is exceedingly well, and expresses his profound gratitude to the Children's Aid Society.

February 19, 1868, James writes that he is doing as well as he could wish, his law business being good.

February 27, 1895, James is reported as a member of the Fifty-third Congress, from the ——— Congressional district of Ohio.

A WESTERN EDITOR.

November 25, 1873, E. A. M——, 15 years of age, orphan, goes west with Mr. Fry and is placed in a home with J. R——, in J——, Ind.

This home was not found to be satisfactory, and the boy was transferred to another in Jonesboro.

March 7, 1877, Edward reported running about and was urged by the agent to behave himself.

November 13, 1878, Edward reported as working for his board.

December 8, 1884, Edward reported as working for a printer.

April 16, 1889, Edward reported as editor and proprietor.

January 7, 1892, Edward reported as editor and proprietor of the F—— Times. He writes that he is doing well, is married and on the road to prosperity.

January 25, 1895, Mr. M—— writes an excellent letter. He is still in F——, Ind., managing the "Times." Speaks eulogistically of the Society for having lifted him out of the slums and having helped him on the road to happiness and success. One of his ambitions is that he may some day be able to show in money his appreciation of what has been done for him. He incloses a picture of his four beautiful children. He closes his letter, "I have a good business and a nice home, a good wife and an interesting family — all due to the Children's Aid Society."

ANOTHER PAGE FROM OUR RECORDS.

The following page from our records is characteristic of the majority of cases. A large proportion of our boys become farmers.

Eugene S——, half orphan, 13 years of age, from the New York Orphan Asylum, was sent west June 8, 1886, with Agent McCully, and placed with Ellis H. D——, in Riley county, Kan.

July 18, 1886, Mr. D—— reported that Eugene is doing well and giving perfect satisfaction.

December 18, 1886, Mr. D—— writes that Eugene has been a very good boy until the last two months, when he has become homesick and threatens to run away as soon as warm weather comes. Mr. McCully is instructed to see the boy.

January 26, 1887, Mr. McCully reports that Eugene has been transferred to another family and is with the superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. M——, in the same town.

January, 1888, the visiting agent reports that Eugene is living with Mr. M——, and is a member of a church. He seems strongly attached to Mr. M——, who speaks of the boy in the highest terms.

December 14, 1888, Eugene is reported as doing well.

March 19, 1892, Eugene is reported as doing well.

January 24, 1894, the agent reports that Eugene is in college.

May 4, 1896, Eugene reported as still with Mr. M—— and doing well.

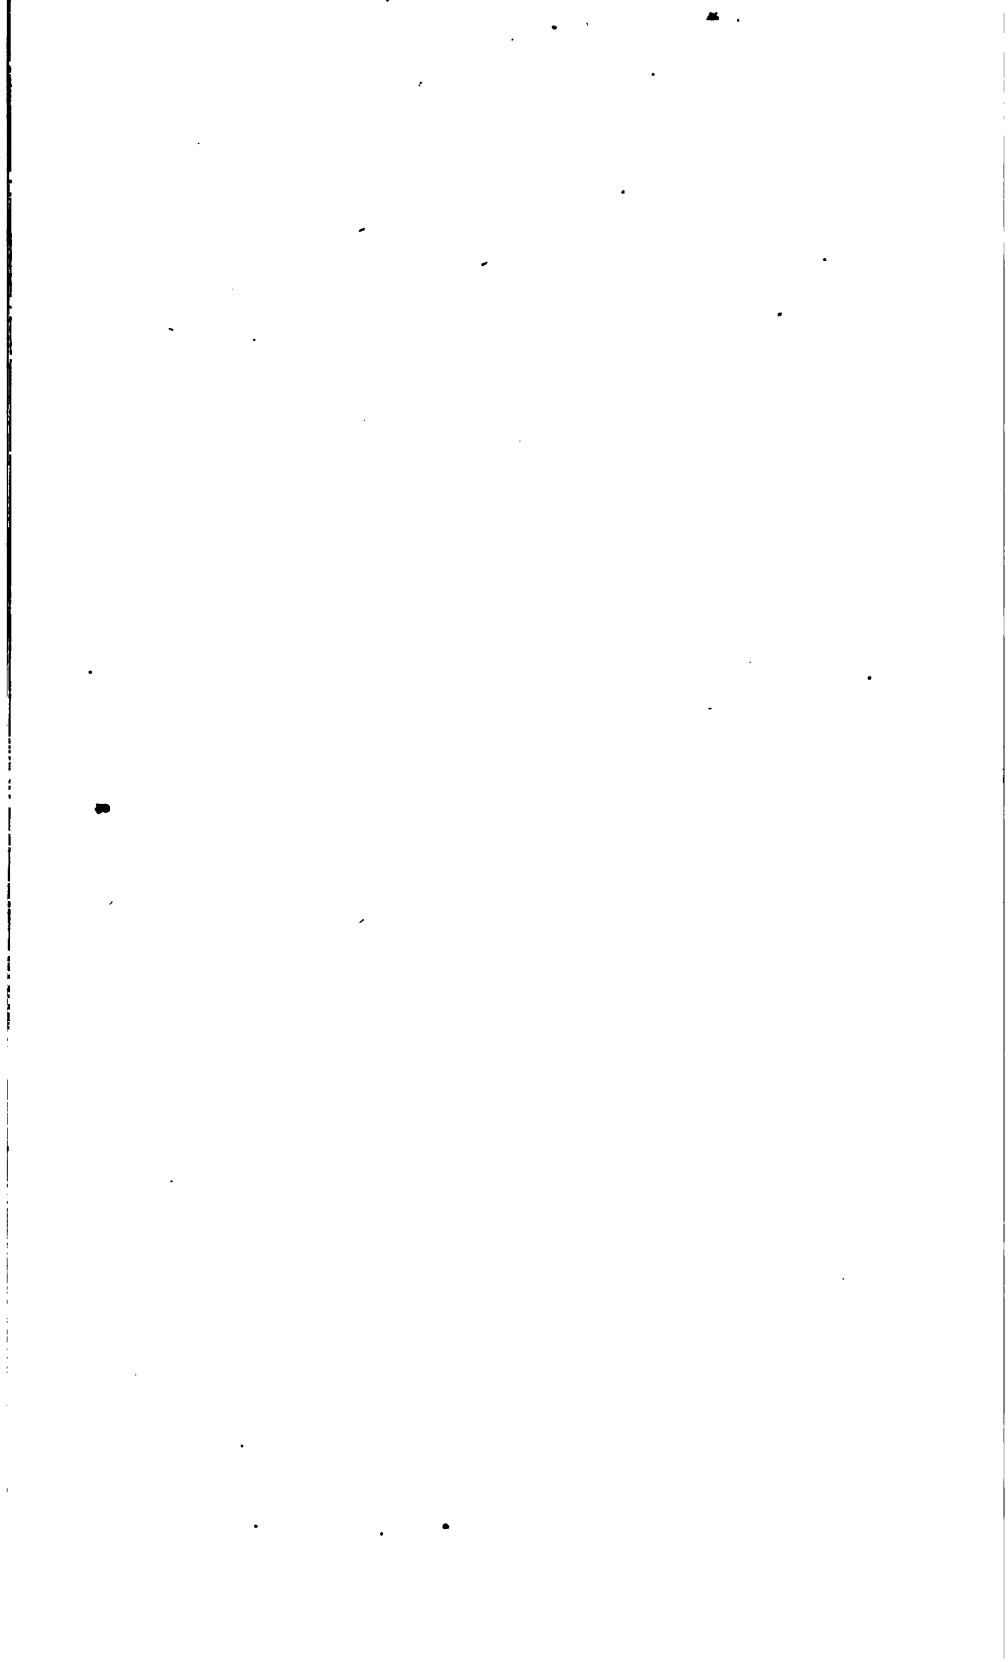

July 9, 1896, Eugene writes, "Yours of July 1st is received. I am doing very well, and have 80 acres of land and a good start in stock. I expect to stick to farming. I consider the future holds much of brightness for me, as I expect soon to have a home of my own on my little farm. I think the west is the place for boys; the broad, open prairies seem to me so much brighter and sweeter than the stifling dust of the streets of the city. May God prosper you in your noble work."

Harold Walker has a very brief history. About four years ago the matron of an orphans' home was awakened by the sudden ringing of the door-bell. She hastened to learn what a caller could want after 11 o'clock at night, but found only a large basket. Thinking it might be a donation of perishable goods, the basket was borne into the reception-room, the gas lighted, and the covering removed, bringing to light a beautiful pink-cheeked, blue-eyed baby boy, too young to give any account of himself, and who persistently said "Goo-goo" to every question the kind matron asked.

The Lady Board of Managers held a meeting, and the first duty devolving upon that body was to "name the baby." One lady suggested Harold, which name was accepted. Another said, "We know not whether he was brought here in a carriage or was carried. Suppose we call him 'Walker.'" It was then agreed that he should be named Harold Walker.

When 2 years of age he was taken west, and on account of his rare beauty and finely-developed head, he was selected by a prominent physician as a child of unusual promise. Nor was the doctor mistaken, as his letters often speak of Harold as a lovely child, who has brought cheer and comfort to his household.

IN ASSEMBLY,

JANUARY, 1897.

ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

WYOMING BENEVOLENT INSTITUTE.

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of New York :

The undersigned trustees of the Wyoming Benevolent Institute, in compliance with section 5 of chapter 479 of the Laws of 1870, respectfully report on the affairs of the institute and its management and submit a statement of the funds and property of the corporation in their charge and under their control and the condition thereof with the items of receipts and disbursements for the year ending September 30, 1896.

The said corporation owns twelve acres of land in a commanding and pleasant situation on lot No. 90 of Elisha Johnson's subdivision of the Cottringer tract in the town of Genesee Falls, Wyoming county, N. Y. This land is in good condition and well-fenced. It was leased during the year to a tenant. In the library of the corporation at Glen Iris, in the town of Genesee Falls, and in the branch library of the institute at Portageville, Wyoming county, N. Y., there are five hundred entertaining and instructive books, as also many leading magazines and periodicals. Belonging to the corporation there is also a small stock of tools which were purchased with the intention of eventually establishing a department of industrial training.

In pursuance of the policy outlined at the last annual meeting of the board of trustees no children were received during the past year; and the benefits of the corporation have been extended to indigent young persons by means of the library at Glen Iris and the branch library at Portageville. The increasing demand for reading matter at the branch library at Portageville has induced the trustees to add by purchase one hundred and eighty volumes of new and carefully selected books to the library department and to increase its subscription list to popular magazines.

The landed and other property of the institute has been under the general supervision of the superintendent, Mr. Henry A. Pierce.

The library at Glen Iris has been under the immediate charge of Miss A. E. McCloud, and the branch library at Portageville has been in the immediate charge of Mrs. A. J. Craig.

As soon as an expected legacy is available it is the intention of the trustees to extend the work of the corporation.

The treasurer's report, a copy of which is herewith submitted, shows the cash receipts and disbursements of the said corporation for the year ending September 30, 1896.
